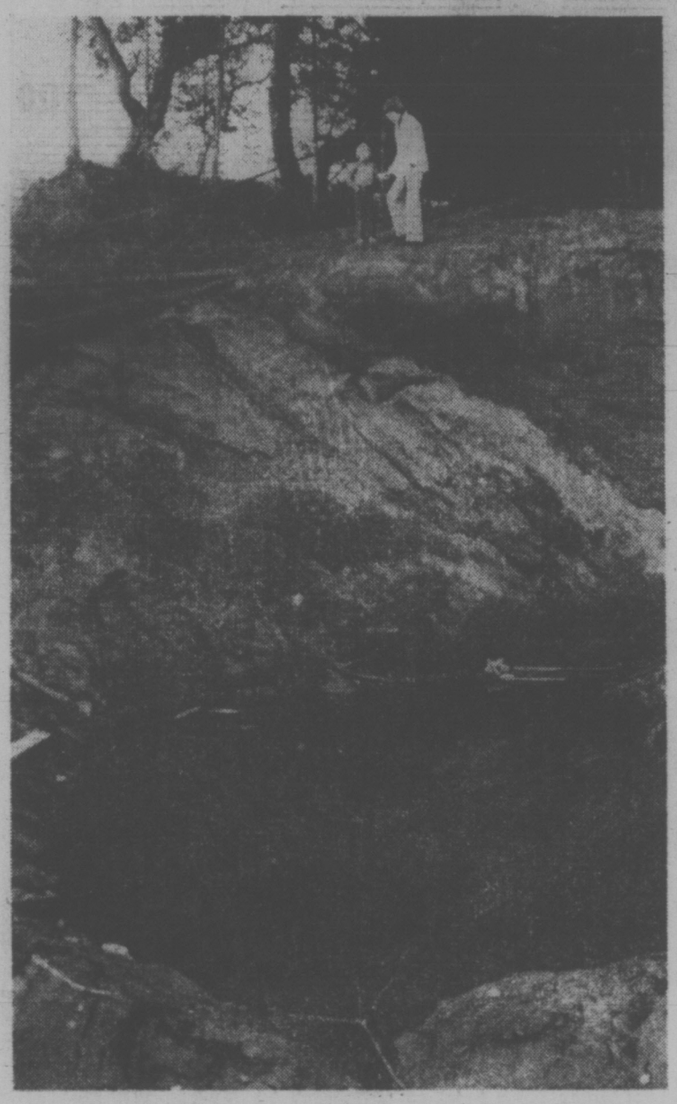
Five-Year-Old Hero Saves Sister's Life



Paul and his mother look at the scene of near tragedy

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Quick-thinking Paul Fournier is only five but he's a hero today in the eyes of his parents Ray and Bonnie Fournier and his three-year-old sister Karin.

Paul saved Karin's life Thursday afternoon when she fell into a deep pool in a gravel pit behind the family home at 3270 Galloway in Colwood.

"It amazes me he thought so fast," Mrs. Fournier said today.

Bill Young, Victoria representative of the Royal Life Saving Society, said today after being told of incident he will almost certainly recommend Paul for a special award.

He said when he gets the full details he will forward them to the society's awards committee in Vancouver.

The society hands out awards annually normally in November, at Government House.

If Paul is selected he would likely be the youngest recipient of the award in B.C.'s history.

Mrs. Fournier said Paul, Karin, and a friend Kenny Hardy, 4, were playing in the backyard when Karin tumbled over the edge of the pit and fell 20 feet into the water.

The youngsters saw Karin disappear under the surface and then bob up face down.

Mrs. Fournier said Paul scrambled down the bank taking off his clothes and waded in up to his armpits.

He removed a piece of a car bumper that had somehow become wedged over Karin's body and then stuggled to hold her head above water as he sank slowly in the mud.

Young Kenny, meanwhile, had run to get his father, Pete, who arrived moments later and carried Karin to safety.

"I don't know how to thank you," Mrs. Fournier said she told Hardy as he came to her door with Karin in his arms.

Karin was covered with mud, blue with cold and barely conscious.

"Don't thank me," Hardy replied. "It was your son who saved her life."

Mrs. Fournier said she put Karin in a hot bath but when she didn't respond she was taken by Langford ambulance to Royal Jubilee Hospital and admitted suffering shock and severe hypothermia.

She is in good condition today.

Mrs. Fournier said she has no idea how long Karin was in the water.

Before the children went out to play she said she told Paul, a kindergarten pupil at Wishart elementary school: "Stay out of water and don't get wet."

She said she believes the 'don't get wet' edict prompted Paul to remove his clothing before going in after his sister.

"It's lucky he did. He was wearing a heavy winter coat and the weight would have probably dragged him under."

She said the ordeal didn't really hit home to Paul until later in the night when she was settling him into bed.

"He looked up at me and said 'We kept sinking in the mud, Mom, we kept sinking in the mud.'"

She said area residents have been concerned about the pit for years and its danger for young children.

Mrs. Fournier said two years ago she asked the pit owners, Mattison and Patterson, to erect a fence around the property but nothing was ever done.

The pit has not been worked for some time and is now being used mainly for dumping unwanted fill and junk cars, she said.

Sudden Oil Port Death Surprise Puzzler

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opponents and proponents of a Kitimat oil port were caught by surprise by the federal government's announcement Thursday that an oil port is not needed on the British Columbia coast.

Jack Cressey, president of Kitimat Pipe Line Co. Ltd., charged the decision was made without the technical information to support it.

Dr. Andrew Thompson, commissioner of the West Coast Oil Ports Inquiry, returning here from Ottawa where he had presented the government with a report on the commission's findings, said he was disturbed by government policy.

Environmental and fisheries representatives greeted the announcement with qualified delight, seeking assurance that the oil port was permanently killed and not just as a politically expedient gesture.

The federal government rejected the $750 million oil port and pipeline as not needed to meet domestic energy needs.

The surprise decision leaves the United States with the sticky problem of finding a port on its own Pacific coast willing to accept the risks of oil spills.

It was announced in Ottawa by Environment Minister Len Marchand just after Thompson held a news conference on the report.

Thompson had said one of the government's alternatives was to kill the project entirely, but the assumption was that it was going ahead, and he said he intended to continue holding hearings on it, pending a review of oil needs and official consideration by the National Energy Board.

He also said he wondered if the proposal has been killed definitely even though Marchand said the cabinet "sees no need for a West Coast oil port now or in the foreseeable future."

Thompson said in an interview he wants to make a detailed study of the government's order-in-council because he is sure people will ask if "the action the government has taken has decisively removed the application at this time?"

At his weekly news conference Thursday, Prime Minister Trudeau said the issue could be re-opened if such a port is required to meet domestic oil needs.

"Quite frankly, if it is just

Cabinet Return For Fox?

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said at his weekly news conference in Ottawa Thursday that he was pleased with the Ontario decision not to prosecute former federal solicitor-general Francis Fox.

Fox resigned Jan. 30 as solicitor-general after admitting in the Commons that he had an affair with a married woman who became pregnant and that he signed her husband's name to a hospital document when she entered hospital for a therapeutic abortion.

Trudeau said he did not anticipate any cabinet changes immediately but that if changes were made before a general election, Fox would be considered along with other candidates.

Opposition leader Joe Clark said he had no comment.

Aides to Fox say the 38-year-old MP will return to the Commons next week.

Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry said Thursday that "to launch a prosecution in this case would be to bring disproportionately harsh consequences to a person of good character who has already suffered greatly as a result of his act."

Justice Minister Ron Basford praised McMurtry, saying that "I think a very able attorney-general has arrived at that decision."

Fox, member for the Montreal-area riding of Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes, has not been seen in public since the resignation.

Blais Opens Probe On Allmand 'Bug'

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais has started in investigation within the RCMP to find out whether they ordered an informer to bug former solicitor-general Warren Allmand and New Democratic Party MP John Rodriguez (Nickel Belt).

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons on Thursday he stands by a statement he made last year that the RCMP has never ordered electronic surveillance of any MP without his consent.

Trudeau declined further comment until Blais completes his investigation of allegations made in documents tabled in the Commons on Wednesday by Progressive Conservative MP Elmer MacKay (Central Nova).

They quoted Warren Hart as saying he had bugged Allmand and Rodriguez during the 4½ years he worked for the RCMP in Canada. He was then an FBI agent, Hart claimed.

Trudeau said there obviously is some contradition between Hart's claims and the information given to him by the RCMP.

The allegations have been handed over to the McDonald commission, the federal royal commission investigating illegal RCMP activities, Trudeau added.

Trudeau also said he doesn't take "seriously" the charge by Conservative MP Tom Cossitt that a Soviet newsman in the Parliamentary Press Gallery is a spy.

At his regular news conference, Trudeau explained his reaction to the accusation by saying he has no faith in the MP's credibility.

"I never take Tom Cossitt seriously and I just don't take this last accusation seriously."

The PM said he "wouldn't even bother" to check out the charge made in the Commons earlier in the day by Cossitt, adding: "If he has some incriminating data, I think he should turn it over to the police."

The Ontario MP told the Commons that Alexander Palladin, a correspondent for the Novosti news agency, has been named in a report to the cabinet security committee as "a member of the Russian intelligence service."

Cossitt alleged the Soviet newsman had attempted "to cultivate two special assistants" to Canadian cabinet ministers in a bid "to obtain highly secretive cabinet documents."

Hydro Talks Break

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations aimed at averting a strike by 600 British Columbia Hydro gas workers were short lived Thursday.

A corporation spokesman said the talks with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers ended after the two parties failed to make headway on the two major stumbling blocks—wages and pensions.

The hydro spokesman said the IBEW is "considering again plans for strike action" but there were no indications when a strike would occur.

IBEW business agent Rick Dowling said he would make no comment until the union conveys its position to the membership.

Plans to strike at midnight Wednesday were cancelled while a final effort to resolve the dispute was undertaken.

M - B Profit $60.7M

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. Thursday reported net profit before extraordinary items in 1977 was $60.7 million or $2.70 a share.

This compares with $22.8 million or $1.07 a share with no extraordinary items in 1976.

Net profit in 1977 after extraordinary items was $38.4 million or $1.65 a share.

The lower profits result from a provision last year of $22.3 million against the company's 40 per cent interest in La Cellulose d'Aquitaine, a French pulp producer which had its financial viability seriously impaired by lower pulp prices, the company said.

The latest M-B profit compares with a loss of $18.9 million in 1975 due to losses incurred by a shipping company subsidiary, and profits of $72.3 million in 1974 and $81.7 million in 1973.

Net sales and other income was $1.71 billion in 1977, compared with $1.52 billion the previous year.

Net profit in the fourth quarter was $22.5 million or $1 a share on sales of $455.8 million.

CHANGE EYED FOR INDEXING

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday the government intends to alter its formula that ties social benefits to increases in the cost of living.

Trudeau said at his weekly news conference that the government had received a special study on indexation with very precise recommendations.

Treasury Board President Robert Andras would indicate the way the government intended to amend its current formula, which provides for full indexing of the cost of living, Trudeau said. An announcement could come next week.

Trudeau said the government agreed with the principle of indexation of benefits to protect them against inflation, but there might be some question of whether a particular formula is too rich.

"We support the general theory that a person who's able to earn his living should be protected against inflation," he said. "This could be done by bringing down inflation or bringing in indexing that is "just or economically feasible."

No French Here?

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Post Office official says an investigation will be held into a complaint from a Winnipeg businessman who believes a letter was returned to him because it was addressed in French.

Alex Sasnow said he mailed the letter Feb. 6 to his mother-in-law in St. Laurent, a small community about 40 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

He said he used the same address he has used without problem for "umpteen years," but this time it came back marked address incomplete.

"Nobody at the post office was able to tell me what was wrong with the address," he said. "I have to think it was rejected because of the French address."

Gilles Herbert, manager of the Post Office's northeast Manitoba district, says he cannot immediately explain why the letter was returned.

Advertising Doesn't Always Pay

OZARD
... two-hour job

Bill Ozard was so happy he'd been hired as travel marketing supervisor by Grace McCarthy's travel ministry he ran a classified thank-you ad in Victoria newspapers.

A former deputy minister of travel for Nova Scotia, he learned Thursday that it doesn't always pay to advertise.

Ozard, 40, was fired from the $2,035-a-month job with the provincial government two hours after he started.

It turns out, says Ozard, that Mrs. McCarthy was "madder than hell" about the ad and he ended up getting the axe.

Ozard, a former Victoria radio man, said today he is waiting for a letter from A.G. Richardson, chairman of the Public Service Commission outlining the government's position. The letter will be sent to Ozard's lawyer who will decide if Ozard can take any action.

Ozard said he has no doubt that McCarthy was behind him losing his job although deputy travel minister Wayne Currie agreed what he had done was "not too smart."

However, Ozard said several senior public service people went to bat for him and told the minister he should be allowed to serve out his six-month probationary period and rise or fall on the basis of his actions during that period.

Ozard said when he called Richardson on Wednesday for an explanation of what was going on, Richardson told him the job was withdrawn.

Ozard said he was notified Feb. 3 by Richardson he had been hired for the position — one of several created by Currie.

He was told to report for work Feb. 13, but agreed to delay until Feb. 16 because Currie would be out of town.

Ozard, who earned $36,000 a year as deputy minister in Nova Scotia, said on the basis of his new job, he rented an apartment, took out a bank loan and decided to say thank you to the people

'Ghost Town' Fear

STEWART (CP) — The Granduc copper mine, the sole industry at this isolated northwest British Columbia town of 1,500 people, will be shut down June 30 and the community will become "B.C.'s newest ghost town," according to Mayor Ian McLeod. See story on Page 35.

Turn to Economic Right Seen Grit Meeting Result

By DOUG SMALL

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 3,000 Liberals, apparently bent on moving the government to the economic right, opened a three-day policy convention today armed with proposals to restrain federal spending and give a freer rein to private business.

Kick-off sessions took place in a downtown hotel converted into a large television studio and spilled across the street into the government Conference Centre for a series of workshops on regional problems.

Policy chairman Martin O'Connell told delegates as the convention opened that they would find economic conservatism a common theme in policy resolutions submitted in advance for debate.

And, he said, "there is a clear toughness on law-and-order issues."

As the convention opened, all delegates but one appeared to have an impending federal election on their minds. The one was Prime Minister Trudeau, the man who decides when it will be.

"One doesn't know when the election will be," Trudeau told a news conference Thursday shortly before registering with other early arrivals and attending a reception for reporters financed by his office.

"I don't think I'd describe it as a launching pad for an election."

Meanwhile Senator Al Graham, party president, maintained that scheduled policy sessions are critically important because they would give Liberals a chance to make themselves heard on national unity, economic and other issues as the party "prepares to go to the electorate."

In preparation, Liberals released a book containing 800 resolutions up for debate at the convention. The 800, which range from suggestions to recycle garbage to electing senators, were drawn from 1,500 debated during several regional conventions in the last year.

In addition, Trudeau and Graham released a document designed to show what action has been taken on resolutions passed at a party policy convention in 1975.

The document shows the government has implemented "in full or in part" about half the 150 resolutions adopted then by the party.

No action had been taken on 13 resolutions, including one to restore separate army, navy and air force identities and another to provide an income stabilization program for farmers raising milk-fed calves.

Trudeau's major convention appearance comes tonight, when he makes a speech and answers delegate questions during a session carried live on the French and English CBC television networks.

On the social side, Liberals are holding drinking and dancing functions in two local hotels after Commons Speaker James Jerome made them cancel plans to turn the Parliament Buildings into what opposition critics described as "Trudeau's tavern."

Organizers originally planned to set up 26 bars and three bands on Parliament Hill to entertain delegates, but Commons Speaker James Jerome scrubbed the idea following an opposition outcry.

PM Backs Chretien

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau jumped in Thursday to defend Finance Minister Jean Chretien's handling of the country's dollar difficulties, but differed with him on the cause of the problem.

As opposition MPs continued pressing for details of planned foreign borrowing and standby credit to prop the dollar up, Chretien said false rumors spread by the opposition are behind the dollar's decline.

But Trudeau, at his regular weekly news conference, said it is "impossible for me or for anyone else to know with certainty what causes a speculator to buy or sell currency."

The prime minister added that he didn't intend to get into the dispute between Chretien and Opposition Leader Joe Clark. During the Commons question period, Clark said Chretien had a curious view of the dollar problems if he was blaming the weakness on the opposition.

At noon today in New York, the Canadian dollar continued to slip, trading at 89.61 cents U.S.

The dollar closed Thursday at 89.67 cents, down slightly from Wednesday.

Cabinet Return For Fox?

gathered between 5,000 and 8,000 names on petitions supporting their MP.

McMurtry said in his statement to the legislature that the decision not to lay charges would have been the same for anyone, regardless of his or her status.

He said that the woman's husband asked that criminal action not be taken against Fox, a factor that could not be disregarded lightly.

McMurtry said there is evidence upon which a peace officer might have reasonable and probable grounds to lay charges concerning one or more offences under the Criminal Code.

However, "this does not settle conclusively the question of whether a charge should be laid." Law officers have broad powers to decide whether to begin a prosecution, taking into account all the circumstances of a case.

He also said no charges could be laid against Fox without charges also being laid against the woman, whose identity has not been revealed.

McMurtry said that forgery was the offence mentioned most frequently in what he called the public banter about the Fox case.

He said that proving forgery presents problems, especially in view of the fact that the signature on the document was, in all likelihood, immaterial to whether the abortion was performed.

The attorney-general read a lengthy statement that also gave details of the incident from beginning to end.

Fox had a brief affair with a married woman who became pregnant. She informed Fox that she could look after the matter herself because she felt she qualified for a therapeutic abortion on medical grounds unrelated to the cause of pregnancy.

She went to the hospital on an appointed date, but some time before the operation, hospital administrative staff told her that her husband's signature was required on a form.

"Being afraid that she might be denied the abortion, she asked Fox to come to the hospital to help her," McMurtry said.

Fox arrived at the hospital and without question from the staff was handed a form and asked to sign.

"Mr. Fox then affixed the name of the woman's husband to the form."

Job Was Short - Lived in Victoria who had really gone out of their way to help.

To save time and energy, he said, he decided to say thank you in the personal columns of the Victoria newspapers. The advertisement said:

"Three months ago, I decided to return to Victoria after a 17-year absence. It took me that long to find a job and get settled. A lot of people gave me support, advice and help during that time. I want to publicly thank them.

The Ozard family, Mel Cooper, Clare Copeland, Hon. Grace McCarthy, Hon. Hugh Curtis, Wayne Currie, Bill Henderson, Brian Small, Maurice Cownden, Floyd Fairclough, Bruce Rogers, Ray Orchard, Bill Newton, Ray Peters, and other nice people whom I may have forgotten. And special thanks to Pam. God's blessings are many. Bill Ozard."

Ozard said that when Currie saw the advertisement "he called me to tell me the minister was madder than hell about the dumb advertisement I'd run in the newspapers.

"He told me that by mentioning the minister's name I had made it look as though the whole thing was a political appointment. He told me that it might look as though I had got the job on a political basis."

Ozard said he couldn't understand the anger of Currie or the minister.

"I never dreamed there could possibly be any adverse comment on a thank you note."

Ozard said that when he reported for work Feb. 16 Currie explained that in the ministry of travel no one commented on anything, no one talked to the press and no one published anything without the express permission of the minister.

"He then suggested we forget the whole thing and get on with the job."

Ozard said two hours later he was told to go home until Currie could talk further to Mrs. McCarthy.

Ozard said he was told later that the minister wanted to think the matter over during the weekend.

Mrs. McCarthy today refused to discuss the matter, referring all questions to her deputy and the public service commission.

Currie said Ozard was hired on the same terms as anyone else:

"There was to be a probationary period. In Mr. Ozard's case it was a short-termed probation. And I have no other comments on the reasons for its shortness."

Currie said that his decision to quit as deputy minister, announced Monday, had nothing to do with the Ozard case.

Richardson said the letter withdrawing the job offer was made on the recommendation of Currie who had stated that "subsequent events lead him to question various judgments."

the weather

The dry look is becoming established across B.C. as a ridge of high pressure strengthens over the province. Sunny skies will prevail over most regions during the next few days. A frontal system will move inland across Oregon tonight causing some high cloud in southern B.C., but precipitation will be confined to areas below the 49th parallel. Temperatures over most of the province will remain a few degrees above the seasonable normals.

Realty Ad Nets Suit

Daon Development Corporation was charged in provincial court today with misleading advertising in connection with an ad the company placed in the Victoria Times on Jan. 20.

The charge alleges the ad was misleading because it specified an 8 per cent mortgage for purchasers of three-bedroom condominiums the company has built at Montreal and Niagara in James Bay.

The case has been remanded three weeks to set a date for trial.

Minority Schooling Wins Support

By PETER HADEKEL
Times Quebec Bureau

MONTREAL — Canada's provincial premiers have recognized the right of French and English language minority groups to educate their children in their own language.

But they agreed at a one-day meeting here Thursday that it is up to each province to implement its own education policies for its linguistic minority.

While Quebec Premier Rene Levesque was unsuccessful in getting the other premiers to accept his idea of reciprocal language agreements, he signed the final communique.

At a conference of provincial premiers in St. Andrews, N.B. last August, Levesque walked out of a discussion on minority language rights and disassociated himself from the conference communique.

The premiers Thursday reaffirmed their decision at St. Andrews to make their "best efforts" to provide minority language instruction wherever numbers warrant.

And they requested the Council of Education Ministers to take responsibility for "achieving further progress."

But Premier Levesque said his government will not alter restrictions on English-language schooling contained in the controversial Charter of French Language (Bill 101). The bill prevents English-speaking newcomers to Quebec from attending English schools.

Levesque said his government will not open English schools to Canadians moving from other provinces unless reciprocal agreements are signed guaranteeing French education services in those provinces.

Quebec will continue to insist on such agreements, even if the other provinces build a sufficient number of French schools, Levesque indicated.

While the conference resolution does not go much farther than that produced at St. Andrews, English-speaking premiers called it a victory for Francophone minorities across the country.

The premiers agreed that Quebec is supplying better educational opportunities for its English-language minority than other provinces provide for their Francophone minorities.

A spokesman for the Federation of Francophones Outside Quebec, Hubert Gauthier, told reporters after the meeting that "we have seen no change and no evolution since St. Andrews."

He said English-speaking premiers made "more speeches" about Francophone rights but failed again to come up with "concrete actions."

"The last six months have been wasted," Gauthier said. "When one realizes the rate of assimilation of Francophones across the country one wonders if there is any real desire (by the premiers) to make any progress."

B.C. French Classes Up

By TERENCE O'NEILL
Canadian Press

Despite a highly-publicized setback and warnings of teacher shortages, the future of French immersion classes in B.C. is bright, education experts say.

The 1977-78 school year saw the number of B.C. students enrolled in immersion classes grow by one-third to more than 1,300, and a similar increase is expected next year. The number of the provinces' 75 school districts offering the programs doubled to six.

"It's very encouraging," says Michael Wood, assistant French program co-ordinator in the education ministry. "It's definitely on the upswing."

In a province where 1.7 per cent of the adult population speaks French as a first language, experts see the increasing demand for French education as an indication of English-speaking parents' growing awareness of the bilingual nature of the country.

Premier Bill Bennett says there is a lack of qualified teachers for immersion programs and the province's universities are not meeting that need.

At the just-completed premier's conference in Montreal to discuss the minority language education issue, Bennett was able to draw attention to B.C.'s burgeoning program in response to Quebec's request for a reciprocal agreement on minority language education.

Bennett also was able to tell the conference of B.C.'s plans to draw up a French-only core curriculum, to be ready by the fall of 1978. The Baldwin-Cartier school district in Montreal has been contracted by B.C. to help develop the curriculum.

Unlike the immersion program, in which kindergarten students begin learning in a totally-French environment but gradually are exposed to more and more English, the new program would allow students to go through the entire school program in French, treating English as a second language.

In addition to Burnaby, Nanaimo and Surrey school districts which added primary immersion programs this school year, several more have expressed interest in beginning programs next year.

Red Arms To Syria Boosted

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Soviet Union is to increase its arms supplies to Syria following a visit to Moscow by President Hafez al-Assad, a communique indicated today.

The joint communique covering Assad's talks with Kremlin chief Leonid Brezhnev said the two leaders "discussed and mapped out measures for increasing the level of military capability of the Syrian Arab Republic."

The apparent reference to military aid appeared in the full text of the communique, published in the Communist party daily Pravda.

In a summary Thursday night following Assad's departure, the official Tass news agency dropped two sentences mentioning the subject and concentrated on sections condemning Egypt's peace talks with Israel—a main topic in the president's Moscow talks.

FIVE SENIORS PERISH IN RESIDENCE FIRE

CHELMSFORD, Ont. (CP) — Five elderly persons died Thursday in a fire at a privately-owned boarding house in this community about 25 kilometres northwest of Sudbury.

A sixth resident of the Rosaire Vachon boarding house was admitted the intensive care unit of a Sudbury hospital. Four others were released from hospital after treatment.

Gerard Joliet, chief of the nearby Rayside-Balfour fire department, said in an interview all five deaths were apparently caused by smoke inhalation.

"If they had been young people they would have escaped without injury," said Joliat. "When people are that age they can't move that fast.

Tax Leak Informer Known

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister Joe Guay said Thursday the RCMP knows the name of a person who leaked confidential tax information to two Toronto broadcasters but does not have enough evidence to lay charges against that individual.

Guay said in reply to a question from Perrin Beatty (PC-Wellington-Grey-Dufferin-Waterloo) the RCMP has not told him the name of the individual.

Beatty said Guay had been quoted in a newspaper article as saying an employee of the taxation office had released the information knowing it was to be used for an improper purpose.

Guay referred Beatty to a report made public earlier this month by deputy revenue minister B.A. MacDonald which said junior clerks in offices in Montreal, Vancouver and Ottawa had been duped into giving out the information to a man posing as a tax officer on the telephone.

Guay said the investigation is continuing.

HEATING WITH WOOD
At the present time approximately two per cent of Canadians heat their homes and/or cook their meals with wood. About another four per cent do "something" to save on oil and electricity.
In four to five years, nine per cent of all Canadians will heat their homes with wood. At this point, the trend will level off. But where do we get the wood from? There will be no shortage of wood in this country as we do have an indefinite supply for fifteen per cent of all Canadians.

Who Represents Whom?

There is absolutely no reason why the Victoria Chamber of Commerce shouldn't run or support candidates for civic office if it wants to. It is a membership organization, and if its members decide to change its constitution to allow political activity, that's nobody's business but their own.

However, both the chamber members and the public should be aware of the facts about representation in civic government rather than consider only the somewhat distorted ideas put forward by chamber economic director Cedric Steele, and, to a lesser degree, by president John Ansell.

The implications by both Steele and Ansell is that left-wingers (some of them might even belong to the NDP, good gracious!) are beginning to have an undue influence on local councils, getting elected as aldermen and acting as pressure groups against development.

Presumably these anxieties are caused by the election in the city in November, 1976 of Larry Ryan, a labor representative, followed by the success last November of two (count 'em, two out of nine) candidates who represent neighborhood associations instead of business interests.

In Saanich things are even worse. A person actually on the staff of the provincial NDP caucus was elected to that council in 1976, followed by a neighborhood group representative in 1977. Clearly a takeover by the Chinese Red Army cannot be far behind.

What the chamber conveniently neglects to mention is that all these takeovers give the non-business community anywhere between 25 and 33 per cent representation on council. It is the first time in years that the businessmen-lawyer-real estate community has had less than 100 per cent representation in civic government, that the city council has reflected the fact that not everybody in Victoria is in business.

When Steele says: "I think it's time for the real estate and business community to involve itself in municipal politics," one cannot help but wonder where he has been for the past 20 years.

Even looking at the current council, after all takeovers, it still includes out of nine members: one lawyer (Mayor Mike Young), one businessman (Ron McKenzie), one businessman-developer (Bob Wright), one employee of a land management company (John Hayes), one engineer (Murray Glazier), and one manager (Bill Tindall, of the Better Business Bureau).

Ansell is so magnanimous as to say that he didn't mind the amount of input the non-business representatives now have. "There is a nice balance now, but if it becomes weighted in favor of the community groups, then we would have to take a serious look at it."

Strange. One of the reasons the community groups organized was to counter the business influence on council.

Stand Tall, Small People

Short holidays for small people? Little package tours of British Columbia for little people? Arrange for groups of five-footers to hit the low spots?

When you need tourists like British Columbia does, no gimmick is too small to be scoffed at. Provincial tourist circles picked up the idea from Missouri, which offered special tours for small folk mad at Randy Newman's top pop song, Small People.

The lyrics claim those short of stature are creepy, nasty people — just tongue in cheek, we think. Sensitive smaller people say it's unnecessarily offensive, they get enough grief already. Dislike of people who aren't six feet is the last hidden pool of prejudice, the shorties say.

We don't know too much about society's attitudes towards short people, but in B.C. at least there is no excess of place names attesting their immortality. There are six Big Creeks in B.C., five Big Bays, three Big Lakes — in fact two full pages of "bigs" in the B.C. Gazeteer. There are 13 "greats" and four "jumbos" and seven "elephants" — from creek to promontory.

But short people get . . . short shrift. Here and there a spot memorializes the puny — Mount Shorty Stevenson in the Kootenays, Tiny Tim Creek near Lillooet — but they are few and far between. There's a Shorts Point on Okanagan Lake for diminutive boaters, Shorter Point on the coast for smaller boaters and the Elfin Lakes up by Squamish, but they pretty well exhaust the list of Lilliputian topography.

Little guys are getting short-changed, no doubt about it. As for short tourists, how about Victoria as a destination? We already have an attraction that bills itself for "little people."

Give it a little thought . . .

Some Inaccuracies

The letter Trapping Thoughts by Mr. Johnson (Times, Feb. 6) contains much information which we feel needs correction.

The picture of myself holding a leghold trap is not "trick photography". The trap in question is a No. 14 Oneida jump trap with teeth. This same illegal trap recently held a struggling beaver that was released by two people while out for a walk. The public is welcome to see this most cruel trap at any time.

There are no laws in British Columbia or in Canada requiring trappers to set traps to drown such animals as muskrat, mink, and otter. Drowning is certainly not a "humane" death. We know of no group that recommends it. It is true that a muskrat might eventually drown from a floating log set but in many cases the muskrat remains swimming on the surface for who knows how long trying to support the weight of the trap until exhausted.

Mr. Johnson should also obtain an up-to-date copy of the trapping regulations to learn that there is indeed a closed season for the weasel and even the fox in most parts of B.C. That it is legal to trap the fox on Vancouver Island 12 months of the year is most unusual, and we can't understand why. This means of course that the females can be trapped while the young are awaiting her return in the den or that the young foxes are also exposed to stepping into these cruel traps themselves any time of the year.

Does Mr. Johnson realize it is illegal to trap the wolverine on Vancouver Island, and that it is illegal to use a leghold trap for wolves in B.C.?

Though we have tried to correct most of the obvious errors in Mr. Johnson's Trapping Thoughts, we would be happy to supply further information to him or to others at any time. — George V. Clements, Director, Association for the Protection of Fur-Bearing Animals, 1316 East 12th Avenue, Vancouver.

Lesser Evils

A letter of mine, which appeared recently in the Times, has received some adverse criticism from sincere people who believe that every form of animal exploitation and suffering should be eliminated.

While I agree that this is a noble ideal, however impracticable, I regret that my allusion to those whom the general public term "bleeding hearts" has given offence to some. The term refers to people who are guided by sentimentality as opposed to emotion and reason, the qualities which make us truly human.

The evolution of mankind is bound up with hunting and food-gathering. According to most, if not all, anthropologists, the human race would not have evolved as it did apart from our adaptation from a fruitiverous to a meat-eating animal. Whether we accept or reject this hypothesis is now beside the question. The fact is that, at present, human life and civilization are dependent largely upon the raising of animals for food and clothing, etc.

This may have been the "original sin" and perhaps it would have been better to have remained a vegetarian species innocent of all killing for whatever reason. Those who would have us return to a pristine state and repudiate flesh eating, including even fish, have a perfectly legitimate ideal.

As the world is constituted, however, it is not a goal to which we can look forward in the next hundred or perhaps thousand years unless forced on us by the depletion of such food resources.

There exists, and always has existed, pain and suffering in this imperfect world. All we can hope to do in our lifetimes is to minimize avoidable suffering. If we squander our energies in trying to abolish all evils at once we are foredoomed to failure. Those of us who are working for the abolition of cruel methods of trapping wild animals must compromise to some extent with the world as it is. True, we can all become strict vegetarians but we cannot expect to convert everyone to that life style.

Let us tackle the important things first and be tolerant of those who eat flesh and wear furs, while holding to the ultimate goal of the cessation of killing for any but merciful reasons. At least we can fight for humane killing as the lesser of two evils.

Those interested can contact me at the address below. — R. H. Mann, 1577 Gregory Place.

Victoria NDP

At its February meeting, the Grace MacInnis NDP Club unanimously passed the following two resolutions:

1. We strongly protest the actions of Patrick McGeer, minister responsible for ICBC, in hiring a United States citizen for the responsible position of president of the Insurance Corporation of B.C. while qualified Canadians are available.

2. We support the medical profession of Victoria in their opposition to the closing of the Victoria General Hospital as a acute-care centre. — Irene Bruce, Secretary, Grace MacInnis NDP Club, 1018 Blanshard Street.

Why Upheavals?

Why is all this upheaval of hospitals necessary? Why with the closing of Resthaven was government approval given for a 75-bed acute care addition to the Saanich Peninsula hospital at Mt. Newton, ready for occupancy in one year and costing less than $4 million? Why cannot the same authorization be given to the western region for a similar addition to the Priory, at a cost today of about $5 million and to be ready in about the same time?

Why has the minister of health (plus the Capital Regional Board) complete control over the entire medical profession, and what, where, and how hospitals should be built? Why won't he listen, not only to the doctors, but to the taxpaying and voting general public who, by his arbitrary decisions, will be the sufferers?

Why is he making it impossible — owing to the distance to Helmcken — for low income, elderly and possibly infirm friends and relations to visit the sick? Why, when it takes at least 50 minutes there and back (plus the time spent with a patient), is he putting this intolerable burden on the shoulders of the doctors, whose only concern is the welfare of their patients and who cannot clear a way through traffic and lights as an ambulance can?

Why is he so determined to downgrade Victoria General Hospital, and eventually eliminate the very departments that must be included in a general hospital? Why does he ignore the fact that, from a population of 82,553 potential patients, 70 per cent live within one mile of this hospital, and very many of those are senior citizens living in retirement homes?

Why, in answer to a letter I wrote him, does he conclude with the astonishing words that the decisions have been made "with a view to providing the best service for the greatest number of our population" when he should know that in the densely populated area of the city of Victoria is where a large general hospital should be, is and must continue to be?

Why, when the government owns both hospital and grounds — already serviced with light, water and main drainage — don't they utilize them by renovating the one and building on the other, both projects being considerably cheaper? He should remember too that a patient can get to a hospital and his doctor far faster than a doctor to his patient.

Why does he not specify now for what purposes these properties are going to be used? Why has he disregarded the moral obligation towards the Sisters and their expressed wishes that 4.5 acres of the St. Ann's Academy grounds were for hospital expansion only?

Why has the minister's dream to become the people's nightmare? — Collie Huntley, 4-1195 Fort Street.

More's the Pity

On Feb. 16, 1968, Pierre Elliott Trudeau entered the Liberal leadership race.

On March 13, 1968 Quebec's separatist Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale came out in support of Trudeau "because he'll bring about separatism quicker than anybody else" (Martin Sullivan, Mandate '68, Doubleday, page 317).

With the wisdom of 10 years' hindsight one must at least acknowledge Pierre Bourgault's perceptiveness, if nothing else.

More's the pity. — F. Kerfoot, 6244 Rodolph Road.

GERALD GODIN

A Redressing of Historic Wrongs

(Gerald Godin is a Parti Quebecois member of the Quebec legislature.)

The most talked-about judgment of the past 12 months in Quebec and probably in Canada also, was rendered by Chief Justice Jules Deschenes about Chapter 3 of Bill 101, the charter of the French language.

I intend to give you the background of that chapter in the minds of the legislators, but at the same time, to re-open the book of precedents in the same matter.

Chapter 3 of the bill makes French the prime language of the courts, but at the same time, sets no limits to the use of English, with these two exceptions:

1. When it is a legal person (a company, a corporation, a bona fide association, etc.) which is before the courts, French shall be the language used, unless both parties agree to use the English language;

2. Any judgment must be rendered in French.

This is a clear illustration of what I called "the shift of the burden of bilingualism," a few months ago.

What was the thinking behind these articles? Axe-grinding against "les maudits Anglais?" The settling of accounts with the past? Opening the can of worms of minority rights in the other provinces? None of that.

Burden Shifted

In the minds of the Quebec legislators, it was intended to solve in favor of French a deadlock like this one: two companies are before the courts and one wants the trial to proceed in French and the other in English. Under the law the language used would be French and the second company would be obliged to use the services of a bilingual lawyer.

As far as judgments are concerned, if a judge wants to write it in English, it would have to be translated into French to become official. It means a few more jobs in the translators' trade.

What we wanted, as legislators, was to guarantee that the majority is tried and judged in its own language. And since no act or court decision can force the majority to be bilingual, then the burden of having a bilingual counsel was put on to the minority.

As for judgments, the legislators wanted to make sure that French Quebecers could read all the judicial archives of the provincial courts in their language in the future.

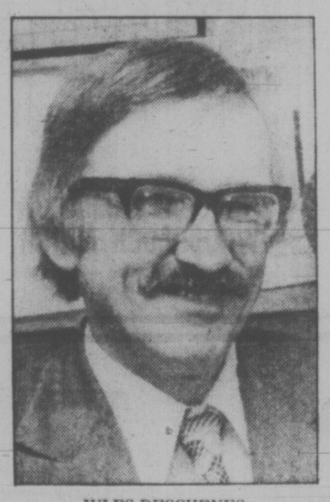
The law does not apply to individual citizens who can use the language of their choice before the courts as always.

Justice Deschenes found these provisions to be contrary to the letter and spirit of the British North America Act of 1867, especially Article 133.

Since then, it has been said by many commentators that the Deschenes judgment was the proof that Bill 101 infringed upon the rights of the English-speaking people of Quebec. That is overextending the judgment a little bit. All it says is that it contradicts the BNA Act, period.

At this point, one must then remember the old saying: do not blame the judge for the law.

Because all this is quite new territory, there are not many judicial decisions for guidance. The Quebec legislature had to find the delicate balance between the rights of the majority to use its language in any of the state's apparatus, and the rights of the minority to be treated with justice and respect.



JULES DESCHENES
. . . momentous decision

Everybody I talked to in both communities agrees with the principles, but they were rather short on solutions. If anyone has a better solution, let him come up with it. And let us stop thinking the government wants to destroy or strangle the minority. The government had to find concrete solutions to specific problems.

But there is another aspect to all this — the precedents in this very country.

Almost a century ago, in Manitoba, the constitutional status of the French minority was exactly the same as that which exists in Quebec for the English minority. It was part of the deal when Manitoba became a province in 1870 three years after Quebec, Ontario and the Maritimes established Confederation. Twenty years later, in 1890, the Greenway government in Manitoba decided to break the law. In a first step it abolished the French school system before abolishing in a second step, the use of French in the courts and in the records and journals of the legislature. They did not look for a delicate balance. They simply and brutally stripped the French minority of all its rights to French schools and the use of French in courts. This is why, if you go to a library and look for the records and statutes of Manitoba, you will see side by side from 1870 to 1890, The Manitoba Statutes and Les Statuts du Manitoba and after that, only The Manitoba Statutes. Vivid illustrations of some dark days in Canadian history.

The French-speaking minority challenged both laws before the courts. The school question twice went the merry-go-round of the judicial process from the local courts to the privy council in London. The first time, the privy council decided against the French minority and the second time, they decided for it. But the decision rendered in London did not settle the matter since, in the mind of John A. Macdonald, the privy council was to be considered merely an advisory board to the federal government in such a case. The result was that, in the end, the whole thing became again a political problem and not a judicial problem.

And even after that victory in court, the federal government did not give the minority back its full-fledged rights.

The other law, called the Official Language Act was also brought before the courts in 1909 and the local court declared it unconstitutional. But the whole matter died right there, since nothing had changed after the previous merry-go-round, and all hope was lost.

Today, a mere five per cent of the population of Manitoba is still French-speaking. At the time of the privy council decisions, the proportion was over 14 per cent.

A Manitoban named Georges Forest decided two years ago to take up the contestation of the Official Language Act just where it was left in 1909. He challenged in the courts a parking ticket written in English only.

So, sooner or later, the supreme court of Canada will be confronted with the task of arbitrating the rights of French in Manitoba and the English in Quebec.

What can happen in Manitoba? If the supreme court goes along the lines of the second privy council decision about the Greenway bills and decides that the Official Language Act goes against the BNA Act, the French will have won.

But they are a mere 40,000 and less than five per cent of the total. The doctor will, at long last, have bent sympathetically over the patient. But the patient has been slowly dying for 80 years . . . Will we be able to say, in that case, as in others, justice delayed is justice denied? Will it not be too little and too late?

When Manitoba joined Confederation, half the population was French-speaking. There were campaigns conducted by the bishops of Quebec to convince Quebecers to establish themselves on the prairies. But then came the Greenway laws and the total failure of the privy council and the federal government to guarantee the rights of the French. That meant the end of the road for many farmers from Quebec already in Manitoba or willing to go there.

That was one of the deadliest blows to the true spirit of the Confederation as it existed in the minds of some of its fathers.

Deadliest Blows

The Manitoba schools question, as we know of it in our textbooks, and the attitude of the legislatures of New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Ontario towards the French-Canadians in those times, had a traumatic effect. Slowly but surely, the French-Canadians lost confidence in Canada and the feeling grew and grew that they were not welcome outside Quebec, since they could not gain respect for their language and culture.

They felt their well-being, which is the main goal of any living thing, did not lie with Canada, but with Quebec. And there are the roots, very deep, of the events of Nov. 15, 1976.

Will a dash of redress here and there, a droplet of goodwill such as the recent speech of Ontario Premier William Davis before the Canadian Club in Toronto, or in New Brunswick's partial recognition of French as the language of 40 per cent of its population, change the dynamics of things? The emotions, traumas, experiments, delusions and conclusions of a people are like a very big boat: it is very difficult to make it veer in any direction, and once it has started its course, it cannot be stopped easily.

My fear is these new attitudes of open-mindedness will appear to some like the recent re-opening of the cases of Sacco and Vanzetti which now exonerates them of the crime for which they were executed. I suppose it is okay, but, as far as their health is concerned, is it not too late?

Angry Americans Fight Back Against Phone Hucksters

By WILLIAM SCOBIE

LOS ANGELES — Battle has been joined in California over a new telephonic horror, the seemingly unstoppable advertising "junk call" — now computerized — which is invading homes across the United States.

A lead in the struggle against this multi-billion dollar industry has been taken by the California Public Utilities Commission, which is attempting to ban use of a novel device which is programmed to call every number on an exchange, listed or unlisted, in alphabetical sequence. It can even keep your telephone tied up after you slam the receiver down.

The commission's move has roused telephone solicitation firms to strike back with threats of action in defence of "free speech" in this land of private enterprise. But some seven million Americans who are already receiving unwelcome commercials annually may also have something to say.

Among them is Dr. Walter Baer, a Rand Corporation physicist who, working late one night in the Santa Monica think-tank overlooking the Pacific, became the target of a string of unsolicited calls from encyclopedia salesmen, insurance agents and people peddling books.

Defeated in his effort to complete an important paper, Baer decided he could take no more. He petitioned the Federal Communications Commission for relief in the shape of public hearings on how to put constraints on use of the machines, if not a total ban. Specifically, he asks that people should be able to have their names removed from calling lists "in the same way as we can tell the Post Office to stop delivering junk mail."

Baer notes that each electronic dialler has the potential of calling up to 1,000 homes or offices a day — or night (when most of the family is at home). "One operator, using one computer-driven dialler could make a quarter-million calls a year. If 400 machines were in use, and they soon may be, the U.S. would be hit with 10 million junk calls annually."

Telephone-peddling by human agency is already a major growth industry, employing some 200,000 people. They offer everything from diet plans and dictionaries to chest-expanders and face-cream. Although a good half of subscribers hang up at once, an astonishing three million listen to the full message, and 470,000 of them, says the industry, buy something. The annual turnover in goods and services is put at nearly $5.7 billion.

Often, the publicity spiel comes in the voice of a Hollywood celebrity. Individuals hired by companies place a call, tell the subscriber to hold on for an "important message": there's a click, then "Hello! I'm Doris Day, and I'd like to invite you to become a studio beauty girl adviser . . ." Miss Day is selling cosmetics. Actor Charlton Heston makes a recorded pitch for cable television. Sports star Mickey Mantle promotes a muscle exerciser called "the Bullworker".

There is often no way to disengage the recording once it has begun. Emergency calls for medical and other aid have been blocked for up to six minutes while a sales pitch droned on. "We're receiving hundreds of complaints, mostly about the new automatic machines, and the number is rising daily," said an FCC spokesman.

The industry retorts that telephone hucksterism is vital to the U.S. economy. "What's more," said William Norcutt, chief of Selling Systems, Inc. which markets the machine, "the sequential dialler is on the verge of a mighty boom. It'll be used in banks, for bill collection, by doctors and dentists to remind patients about appointments, by politicians getting out the vote. This is not just a nuisance invention."

Maybe, but consumer group pressure has led to a bill in Congress, with co-sponsors, which would allow subscribers to have their names taken off calling lists. With the industry girding for a fight, however, it could be years before a resolution is reached.

U.S. Caught on Dilemma of the Horn

By JOHN DARNTON
New York Times

ADDIS ABABA — Only three short months ago, U.S. policy-makers were congratulating themselves on developments in the Horn of Africa. The Soviet Union, in siding with Ethiopia instead of its old ally Somalia in the Ogaden conflict, had been expelled from its valuable base at the Somali port of Berbera. The United States, in scrupulously avoiding involvement on either side, had simply sat back and won a good old-fashioned coup.

Now, the picture is not so clear. Ethiopia, after a formidable airlift of Soviet arms and personnel, is poised to try to retake Ogaden. The United States is under mounting pressure — both from Arab countries abroad and conservatives at home — to meet the Soviet challenge and come to the aid of Somalia, a poor country with few American citizens, no American businesses and no American interests.

Eritrean soldiers set up Russian-made anti-aircraft gun to defend against Ethiopian airstrikes

Relations between the United States and Somalia are not very solid, since Mogadishu is now crying that it is being abandoned by the West. And relations between the United States and Ethiopia are at their lowest ebb ever, with Addis Ababa reading treachery and conspiracy into every American call for negotiation.

The Soviet Union has not been loudly condemned by black Africa for its intervention. Although some African diplomats express their concern in private, few governments will do so publicly. In a sense, Moscow's willingness to rush to the aid of a country that said it had been invaded increased Soviet prestige.

In Africa, where governments fear hostile neighbors and secession and sometimes think they may have to call upon greater powers to put them down, the inviolability of borders outweighs charges of superpower meddling.

The reactions of black Africa can be read in the response of the Organization of African Unity, which has all but taken Ethiopia's side. A mediation committee refused to recognize the Western Somali Liberation Front, which many see as a cover for invasion by regular Somali forces, as a legitimate liberation organization. The O.A.U. condemned Iran for promising to support Somalia if Ethiopia invaded.

Many African countries, however, find Ethiopia's fiery brand of revolution disquieting and are worried about the reports of a large Cuban presence here. If the Ethiopian offensive were to gather momentum and move across the border, Ethiopia would lose its claim to being the injured party and the tide of African opinion could well shift to Somalia.

Anti-Americanism here is seen in the government-controlled press and in bitter attacks upon the United States by Col. Mingistu Haile Mariam, the leader of the Provisional Military Advisory Council. To some extent, it can be explained as an attempt to establish credentials among the "progressive" nations of the world and as a device to politicize what is invariably called "the broad masses." But also behind it lies the conviction that the United States is an implacable foe of the revolution. In part, this stems from the fact that more than any other country, the United States was identified as the power behind Emperor Haile Selassie.

Many Ethiopians believe, with little evidence to go on, that the government is correct in its charge that America is funnelling weapons into Somalia through third parties. Many also believe that the United States encouraged Somalia to invade Ethiopia to begin with.

The encouragement may have been inadvertent. Well before April 30, when Ethiopia renounced its 1953 mutual defence agreement with the United States, American military supplies had begun to slow down.

"The Ethiopians saw the Somalis arming themselves as a threat," said one Western diplomat. "They made a judgment in the summer of 1976 that the United States wasn't going to be as responsive as they thought. They made overtures for arms to the Soviet Union and eventually the Soviets responded, thinking they could retain a toehold in both countries."

The Soviet Union has lost its "toehold" in one of the countries. This means that it has nothing to lose by swinging all of its weight behind the other, Ethiopia, and by insuring that Ethiopia has the wherewithal to win the war.

America's quandary can only increase if and when the war swings in Ethiopia's favor. Ethiopia's leaders have made a point of stating publicly that they have no designs upon Somali territory and no plans to occupy it. Similar assurances have been relayed to American officials by the head of state and by the Russians.

But Ethiopia's leaders are military men, and they have left open a loophole — that Ethiopia reserves the right to pursue the enemy across the border during military actions. Certainly the temptation to do so would be great if they threw the Somalis back but had not crippled them. Indeed, Somalia already says that Ethiopian planes have bombed targets across the border.

Even if Ethiopia engaged in wholesale border violations — which could hardly measure up to Somalia's trespasses over the past seven months — American options would still be limited. A large infusion of American arms to a country that claims to be Marxist would fly in the face of President Jimmy Carter's policy of reducing arms exports and would not be welcomed in Congress. Also, even if the arms were airlifted, they could arrive too late, since the Somalis have no exerience with American weapons.

In the final analysis, America can only count upon the Soviet Union to restrain the Ethiopians if they need restraining. But observers pointed out that when the Soviet Union was in Somalia, it was unable to restrain the Somalis from attacking Ethiopia. There are some who say that Col. Mengistu, like President Mohammed Said Barre of Somalia, is a nationalist first and a Marxist second.

Three months ago, it was the Russians who were caught in the dilemma of the Horn, and now it appears to be the Americans.

A Change of Class

katharine whitehorn

LONDON — A Canadian girl I knew once worked in a London menswear store during vacation and was selling a tie to an American when he remarked, "I just love your country; but when your Queen says jump, you jump."

Horrified at his misunderstanding of limited monarchy, she took a long time wrapping the tie as she tried to explain about elections, and parties, and the purely decorative role of the Sovereign. When she'd finished he took the tie and said, "Yes, but when your Queen says jump, you jump."

Just one more example of the blind refusal of Americans even to consider that Britain may actually not be the most class-ridden society in the world. What he simply couldn't get through his head was that rank may still exist, but yet carry no more clout than a rosette worn at a fair. Americans want to believe in our class system, and so a large amount of the material shovelled their way gives them what they want.

The TV that sells to the States are series like The Forsyte Saga, Henry VIII and Upstairs, Downstairs. And a cynical syndication man told me that if you want to sell to America, you just plug three themes: punk rock, the Royal Family and class — I suppose "Princess Margaret snubs Johnny Rotten" would be the all-time best-seller.

Why should the British class structure have this unholy fascination? My own unkind theory is that it enables Americans to feel smug about the vastly greater inequalities in their own society. A semi-literate New Mexican has a good deal less chance of becoming head of General Motors in the U.S. than a miner's son has here of becoming prime minister. Nobody in Britain is anything like as rich as their rich, or, probably, as down-and-out poor as their poor.

I do see that Rosalynn Carter doesn't get to wear much in the way of coronation robes, but the Presidency has two 707s of its own, just like any other rich company; the Queen has a few small propeller-driven Andovers, no jets, and has to borrow anything bigger from British Airways. They kit it out for her, of course, but when an oil sheikh commissioned one "exactly like the Queen's" he was bitterly disappointed at its utility fixings.

The Queen's holiday homes, Sandringham and Balmoral, don't even have swimming pools, and Prince Philip, we are told, had to throw his weight about no end before they even got proper heating at Buckingham Palace.

When it comes to archaic snobbishness the French can eat us hollow any time — catch a French premier having trouble with his knives and forks; and as soon as they start an equalizing institution like the Ecole Nationale the upper classes start to take it over. Or the Germans: I was stunned to see the credits on one of his beautiful nature films the other day spell out Baron Hugo von Lawick; what on earth is a German barony compared to his international reputation?

Certainly in Britain people can still tell a lot about you from the way you speak — but a posh accent's as likely to be a liability now as an asset; I know, because I've got one; it used to be one of the reasons they chose me for TV and radio. Now they would much rather I sounded more "sincere" - i.e. regional.

When they put on the old film of Pygmalion made with Leslie Howard and Wendy Hiller before the War, it seemed incredible how thin the veneer of "cockney" was over the OK tones of BBC English, even in a film that was about accent; we are now accustomed to so many more of the richer varieties of class and regional accents.

If you're talking about the edge the educated have over the uneducated, or those with know-how and the right contacts have over people without them, or those with a spot of capital have over those who start from scratch, then yes, Britain is a horribly unequal society — as are most European countries and all American ones. But to suggest that we are still duke-ridden to the point of paranoia is to miss the essential fact: which is that though the airs and their Graces still exist, they're simply not important.

Time was when if you didn't curtsey to your landlord as he spattered past you in his brougham he could have you flung off the estate; now you've probably got a protected tenancy under the Rent Control Acts. Lady Snottsborough may still leave you out of her dinner parties because she doesn't like your accent — but the fate of the nation no longer takes any account of Lady Snottsborough's dinner parties.

The fact that people like Tony Wedgwood Benn gave up being lords in order to get any real power shows just how things have altered; and if anybody doubts it, let them ask themselves when they last heard the upper classes criticized in any contemporary debate. It's only the middle class nowadays that even gets mentioned; the upper have for practical purposes simply ceased to exist. But I suppose it'll be another hundred years before the Americans catch on.

B.C. French Rap CBC Bias

VANCOUVER (CP) — French-language radio and television programming should be expanded in British Columbia to enable greater coverage of regional affairs, a representative of the Federation des Franco-Colombiens said Thursday.

Marie Warzecha told the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission that while French-speaking British Columbians appreciate the television and radio coverage now provided by Societe Radio-Canada, expansion is needed to cover communities in outlying areas.

In an intervention to an application for renewal of licences for Radio-Canada's radio stations in Vancouver, Chilliwack, Prince George and Terrace, Mrs. Warzecha said the programming provided by the CBC's French service often reflects a Quebec bias.

Programs assume a close knowledge of Quebec affairs, she said, something that frustrates Francophones in B.C. who want more programming dealing with regional concerns.

The French-language licence renewals were part of a package of CBC applications covering its English-language Vancouver station CBU, Vancouver French outlet CBUF, the French repeater stations and 82 English-language stations rebroadcasting CBU programming in a provincial network.

The only major intervenor on the English-language applications came from the Gay Alliance Towards Equality, a Vancouver group working for homosexual rights.

TV U SITE UNDECIDED

Recommendations on where the televised portion of the proposed provincial government's open university plan should go in British Columbia will be released next week, John Ewing, of the ministry of education, said Wednesday.

"It's intended for areas socially or geographically isolated," said Ewing. "It won't be on television in the metro areas of Vancouver or Victoria."

Defiant Convict Blasts System

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Prisoner Andrew Bruce of the British Columbia Penitentiary, handcuffed and shackled, had to be escorted from provincial court Thursday by sheriffs' officers and a penitentiary guard when he became violent and defiant in front of Judge J. K. Shaw.

Bruce, 29, was remanded to March 2 when he appeared charged with breaking jail, attempted escape, two counts of possession of a dangerous weapon, mischief, extortion and forcible seizure of hostages.

Four other penitentiary prisoners were involved in the escape attempt last month from the maximum security institution. Thirteen hostages were taken.

Bruce told Judge Shaw that he would not take part in the proceedings and "I'm not going to sit here and listen to my lawyer trying to make sense out of the mindless nonsense of the seven years I've spent in segregation."

Defence counsel John Conroy told the judge he had been unable to meet with his client in private and the prisoner demanded a court order allowing him to see his lawyer in private.

Before he was led from the room, Bruce demanded that the attorney-general's ministry grant a stay of proceedings.

Bruce also said there would be "no more outbursts of rage or indignation from me . . . ."

"Even if you could hang me, you'd win nothing," he said. "Your own twisted machinery wouldn't make me an example; it would make me a martyr."

Bruce is serving a life sentence for the contract killing of a Vancouver night club dancer in 1971.

Also facing various charges in the attempted escape, hostage-taking incident are prisoners Steve Albert Hall, 28, Ralph Lee Saumer, 27, David Gary Bennett, 29, and Richard Clarence Wright, 35.

Two of the hostages, Betsy Wood and Gay Hoon, also face charges related to the escape bid.

Women's Jails Slammed As Sexist, Paternalistic

VANCOUVER (CP) — Women's jails are sexist, paternalistic institutions where the prisoners are called girls and vocational training is limited to women's work, a royal commission was told Thursday.

Lorri Rudland, speaking for the British Columbia Federation of Women, said jails for women have failed to keep up with the changing role of women outside.

"Women prisoners are subjected to sexist and paternalistic attitudes that work against self-definition and self determination," Ms. Rudland told an inquiry into conditions in provincial jails for women.

She said a federation member asked an official at the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre (Oakalla) women's jail why no prisoners were given copies of the B.C.'s jail rules and regulations.

"The reply was: 'That is unnecessary. We tell our girls everything they need to know. It would just cause trouble,' " Ms. Rudland said.

What little vocational training there is for women offenders is "women's work in the lowest-paid occupational groups — hairdressing, power sewing, laundry and kitchen work," Ms. Rudland said.

Even this does little to help offenders get jobs outside because no vocational training certificates are given to cover the training, she said.

In provincial jails for men, she said, there are more training options, including logging, sawmilling, construction work, mechanics, farming, metal work and woodworking.

At the Oakalla women's jail, she said, the only books to be found outside the school's meagre library, are 30 paperback romances and a book entitled How to Carve Your Own Workbench.

Earlier, Dr. Guy Richmond, for 17 years the senior medical officer at Oakalla, said he supports the recommendation that male staff should not be assigned to female quarters.

He said that women's prisons should be run by women.

Richmond said that with the possible exception of a male psychiatric nurse, no male staff should be permitted within the women's living area.

He also said that women prisoners should have access to the same level of training programs as male prisoners, and co-educational facilities would reduce homosexual behavior and attempted suicides, but would also increase the need for strict rules and regulations.

Richmond said he is most disturbed because women are becoming more aggressive and violent, which could become a grave problem if authorities fail to take it into consideration.

Good Teachers Lost To Class Snobbery

Professional snobbery and wage disparities are forcing good teachers to become administrators or university academics, according to the University of B.C's dean of women.

Dr. Margaret Fulton told Victoria area teachers the notion that university professors are superior to high school teachers, who in turn are higher on the academic ladder than elementary teachers, is harming the education system.

In a speech to high school teachers from Greater Victoria, Sooke and Saanich school districts, she said the classification system and false value judgements lead to unequal salaries that lure good teachers away from the lower grades.

Excellence from the primary teacher or the university president is more important than classification, and hierarchy is no longer a tolerable concept, Fulton said.

Border Heroin Seizure

VANCOUVER (CP) — A four-day stakeout resulted in the arrest Thursday of six people, four at the Douglas border crossing, and seizure of two ounces of heroin with an estimated street value of $24,000, RCMP said.

Charged with conspiracy to import heroin were Keith Timpany, 23, Ralph Clark, Wayne Donald Hooper, 22, and his wife Debra, all of whom were arrested as they attempted to enter Canada. The four also were charged with conspiracy to traffic in heroin along with Robert Hooper and William Pozzolo. All six are from the Vancouver area.

A spokesman said the arrests and seizure resulted from a combined operation by the Burnaby RCMP, New Westminster police, Canada customs and the United States Drug Enforcement Administration.

Canadians Unwilling

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. H. J. Burhenne of the United States has been chosen to head the University of British Columbia diagnostic radiology department after a selection committee failed to find a Canadian willing to take the job during a two-year search.

"In this appointment, as in all appointments, we beat the Canadian bushes very hard to find a person with the high qualifications we required," Dr. Erich Vogt, UBC vice-president for faculty and student affairs, said Wednesday.

Vogt said there are several Canadians qualified to take the post, "but we were not able to attract them."

His appointment is effective April 1.

A. G. ANSELMO

Mr. D. L. Lynch, President and Chief Operating Officer of Safeway Stores, Inc., announced today the appointment of Mr. A. G. Anselmo as Regional Manager and Managing Director of Canada Safeway Limited. Mr. Anselmo, President of Canada Safeway Ltd., and formerly Manager of the Prairie Division, will be based in Calgary.

Mr. P. A. Magowan, formerly Regional Manager and Managing Director, has been appointed a Vice-President and Manager of a newly formed region in the United States consisting of five Retail Operations in California and Arizona.

Mr. Anselmo was born in Michel, B.C., and his career with Canada Safeway Limited began in 1939 in Vancouver. Since then he has held various management positions with the Company in Vancouver, Victoria, Regina and Calgary. He was appointed Vice-President and a Director of Canada Safeway Ltd. in 1965 and President of the Company in 1971.

Mr. Anselmo is Past-President of the Calgary Stampeder Football Club, Executive Director, Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, a recipient of the Israeli Prime Ministers medal, and was appointed to the Order of Canada in January, 1978.

Tax Tips '78

Tax tips are prepared by Revenue Canada. More information may be obtained from the Victoria office of Revenue Canada, 1415 Vancouver Street, by phoning 386-2176.

Q. What is the responsibility of the fish buyer where no declaration is made?

A. Under these circumstances, the buyer has no responsibility. However, some other person will most likely be the "designated employer".

Q. How does one determine the insurable earnings of a fisherman's helper who is paid on a share-of-the-catch basis?

A. The fisherman must declare to the buyer the share arrangement. the amount paid or payable to the helper in accordance with the share arrangement is the amount on which a premium for Unemployment insurance is required. This is subject to the minimum and maximum insurable earnings for the pay period.

Q. Last year I bought a new boat for $30,000 but the government gave me a subsidy of $7,000. Can I claim depreciation on the full cost of the boat?

A. No, the subsidy must be used to reduce the amount on which you may claim depreciation (capital cost allowance). In your particular case, you would base the deduction on your net cost of $23,000.

Q. Do Fishermen have to pay Canada Pension Plan contributions?

A. If you were between the ages of 18 and 70 and earned sufficient income from fishing, the answer is yes.

Q. Is the interest on a loan used to purchase equipment for fishing deductible?

A. Yes, provided the equipment is to be used to earn self-employed income.

Q. I did not know that I was supposed to have part of my tax paid by the end of the year, leaving a smaller amount to be paid by April 30. Now I find that I owe a large amount. What can I do?

A. Pay as much as you can when filing your return or before. When you receive your notice of assessment, telephone the Collection Section of your District Taxation Office if you are unable to pay the balance at that time. If your circumstances warrant, a reasonable arrangement can be made to pay the amount over a period of time.

Q. After I filed my return, I received a T4F slip showing income I had forgotten about. What should I do?

A. If you have already received your Notice of Assessment then send a copy of the T4F slip to your District Taxation Office together with your name, address, social insurance number and a detailed statement of any expenses paid to earn this income. If you have not yet received your Notice of Assessment write to the Taxation Data Centre serving your region. In the future, before sending in your income tax return be sure you have reported your income from all sources.

Q. Last year I bought some in-shore fish from school children and sold them to a fish plant. Would this qualify me for unemployment insurance benefits?

A. No. Since you did not participate in the catch you should not be classified as a fisherman and would therefore not be entitled to the benefit.

Q. What are the requirements regarding keeping my business records after I have filed my income tax return?

A. Records must be kept until written permission to destroy them is received from the Taxation Department. This would involve writing to your District Taxation Office stating what records you wish to destroy, the years involved, and your reason for wishing to destroy them.

Q. How do you determine the earnings from which the fish buyer will establish the insurable earnings of a captain-owner for purposes of calculating his Unemployment Insurance premiums?

A. The earnings of the fisherman who owns the boat or gear used in making the catch and who is a member of the crew, is for any week considered tobe the greater of:

(1) Gross returns of the catch
Less
(a) Amounts paid to other members of the crew
(b) 25 per cent of gross catch
(c) The wages paid or payable to persons making the catch and employed under a contract of service or
(2) $50.

Q. My husband and I jointly own a farm. The income has always been declared on my husband's income tax return and the cost of running the business has been claimed on my husband's return, also. As the farm is owned by both of us, can I claim the cost of operation on my income tax return?

A. The taxability of any income derived from this particular source, where there is a joint ownership, depends entirely on which of the partners supplied the money that originally purchased the property or business. In most cases, it comes entirely from the husband. Unless the wife has money of her own that she earns herself, or she had money that was left to her to invest in the farm, it is always considered for tax purposes to be the husband's income. A husband and wife may operate a partnership where they both invest their own property in or are actively engaged in the business of partnership.

Q. I am married with a wife and two children, one seven and the other seventeen. My wife and children did not earn any income last year. What exemptions am I entitled to claim?

A. Everyone is entitled to the basic personal exemption of $2,270. You may also claim a married exemption of $1,990, a $780 exemption for your seventeen-year-old and a $430 exemption for your seven-year-old.

When making your claim be sure to give all the information requested on page 2 of your income tax return. For more details, check your 1977 Tax Guide.

Q. Can I claim my common-law wife and our children?

A. Since your common-law wife is not considered a spouse for income tax purposes, you cannot claim the married exemption for her. You can, however, claim the children as dependents provided that you and not your common-law wife supported them.

Q. My husband and I separated in 1977. How should I claim my British Columbia Renter's Tax Credit?

A. Where separation of a married couple occurs during the year, and each spouse then maintains a separate residence, each spouse may claim the Renter's Tax Credit. In calculating total rental payments each claimant may include the following:
—Rent paid for the part of the year following separation.
—A share of the rent paid prior to separation.

Note: The rent paid for the period prior to separation may be divided in what ever fashion the separated couple decides upon but the combined total of rent claimed must not exceed the actual rent paid upon the shared residence.

Q. I am a full-time university student but have a temporary job some 200 miles away. Can I deduct from my income the moving expenses I must pay to move closer to the new job location?

A. Yes. If you were in full-time attendance at a university or other post-secondary educational institution in Canada and you moved your residence to take a job (including summer employment) or to start a business you may claim a moving expense deduction. You claim the deduction against income earned at your new location, not from any income you may have earned before the move.

CREATE A SUMMER JOB — WE'LL SHARE THE COST

EMPLOYERS here's an opportunity to help yourself and the economy by hiring a hard-working young man or woman this summer. It's called the Youth Employment Program. If you create worthwhile jobs for young persons in your business, on your farm, or with a non-profit organization the Province of British Columbia will share the cost of wages with you.

This is how it works.

Businesses:
If your business has been in operation for at least a year, the Ministry of Labour may help you pay the wages of up to five young persons this summer. We will pay between $1.30 and $2.00 an hour as our share of the cost.

Farms:
The same rules apply, you create jobs for youth and the Ministry of Labour will share the cost with you.

Societies:
You are invited to apply for funding to hire young persons to work this summer on a worthwhile project. We will pay an average of $3.40 an hour. We will also provide funds for holiday pay, employee benefits and essential project costs.

Applications MUST be received by March 24, 1978.
Applications for funding are available from any Provincial Government Agent or Ministry of Labour Office, or any of the B.C. Youth Employment offices listed below.

$53,000 GRANT TO SYMPHONY?

The Victoria Symphony Society will get a $53,000 grant from the Capital Regional District if the regional board approves action taken by the grants committee on Thursday.

Committee members decided the grant, six per cent more than the $50,000 approved in 1977, would be in line with Anti-Inflation Board guidelines.

Last year was the first time the regional district had given a grant. In 1976 the symphony had received $25,000 from the Intermunicipal Committee.

The symphony grant is the only one given by the regional district to date but the board is hoping to get letters patent to allow it to make grants to other regional organizations.

Cost Clamps Seen Vital to Tourism

Visitors Information Centre president Ted Balderson said Thursday the Victoria tourist industry must keep its costs under control if it is to maintain its present strong growth rate.

He said the city was hampered in 1976 by prices much higher than in nearby states but in the ensuing two years prices in Seattle and Portland have caught up to Victoria's. Only a policy of price restraint has enabled the tourist industry to recover, Balderson said.

Balderson was commenting on a report released by Canada Manpower showing that tourism now is Victoria's No. 1 industry, providing 28,000 jobs.

Balderson said many more jobs could be created in the tourist industry as long as costs are kept under control.

"I don't expect the growth rate in the tourist industry will be spectacular but it should be steady over the next few years."

The Canada Manpower report said there were 94,000 people at work in the Victoria area in 1977.

Largest category was 31,500 service employees, including teachers, recreation workers, hospital employees and the hospitality industry.

Second-largest group was government and defence, totalling 18,200 while third was retail stores with 17,000 workers.

The Canada Manpower report says many of the hospitality employees, in hotels, motels and restaurants, should be regarded as in the tourist industry. A large number of store clerks also are employed mainly because of the tourist trade.

The report takes note of the difficulty of determining whether an employee is basically dealing with tourists or local people — and so it puts a percentage of employees in each group.

Also added to the tourist industry total were a few of the 6,200 employees in the transportation and communications industry along with a small number of bank employees among the 5,800 workers in finance, insurance and real estate.

Some provincial government employees were included in the 28,000 total, especially those in the travel ministry.

Other major industries listed in the report include 6,700 employees in manufacturing, including sawmills and plywood plants, and 6,400 contruction workers.

There are 1,200 employees in agriculture and another 1,000 in logging, fishing and mining.

Balderson said the totals do not indicate the dollar value of each industry. For example, he said, the forest industry is important in dollar terms to the city although the number of employees directly in the industry is only a few thousand.

"The tourist industry has by far the largest number of employees because it is labor-intensive, unlike the manufacturing industries."

He said there are about 4,000 hotel and motel employees in the district, one for every hotel and motel room. The Empress, for example, has a peak labor force of 400, or about one for each of its 416 rooms.

NIP Projects Face Delay

Oak Bay council has asked that the Poet streets and Oak Bay village area be set aside for redevelopment under the federal Neighborhood Improvement Program in 1979.

Municipal administrator James Craven, however, told a lands, buildings and housing committee the federal government is not accepting any more 1978 applications for grants under NIP.

This means federal assistant for redevelopment of the Poet streets and Oak Bay Village will be delayed for a year.

Federal assistance includes paying half the cost of selecting the area and assisting the formulation of plans for the neighborhood.

Ottawa also provides funds for acquiring or clearing land to provide parklands or social or recreational space and for residential development for families of low and moderate income.

Relocation asistance is also available for those displaced as the result of the implementation of the project.

$20,000 Grant To Whistler

The federal and provincial governments have awarded a $20,000 grant to the resort municipality of Whistler to complete a market research study of its tourist business.

Spokesmen for the two governments said in a news release the study, also financed with $25,000 from the municipality, will provide a profile of the tourist skier.

Sergeant Status For Pair

Two Victoria city policemen serving as acting sergeants will become full sergeants next Wednesday.

Patrick Thomas Braiden, 43, and Peter Bridgewood, 36, recieved their promotions at a police board meeting earlier this week.

Braiden, an acting sergeant since June 1, 1975, has been with the force for 11½ years, while Bridgewood has served with the Victoria department for 16 years.

Bridgewood was made an acting sergeant last June.

Braiden is former president of the police union and Bridgewood is treasurer of the Victoria City Police Athletic Association.

JUNGLE TWINS RADIO-BORN

WALLINGFORD, Conn. (AP) — Ham operator Paul Boardman was nodding over his radio shortly after midnight recently when he heard a call for help.

An inexperienced physician was faced with the task of delivering twins by surgery in a South American jungle village in Guyana, which borders Venezuela.

A ham operator at the Mission Village outpost had obtained crucial information through another amateur radio operator in Virginia. But the doctor urgently needed guidance about using an anesthetic.

"The first thing to come to mind was to wait and see if someone else would get an anesthesiologist," Boardman recalled. "But almost without thinking I got on the phone to Yale-New Haven Hospital."

It was about 12:10 a.m. and, with Dr. Sturla Stefansson on the hospital telephone, Boardman began a 1½-hour relay of medical information to the ham operator in Guyana, Albert Touchette, formerly of Redwood Valley, Calif.

Dr. Stefansson, a third-year intern from Iceland where he had used radio relay, gave guidance to the Guyanan physician about which anesthetic to use and how to perform a tracheotomy, if necessary.

Boardman broadcast the details to Touchette, who then had to go a short distance by car to pass it on to the physician attending the woman.

"This was the first time I had handled emergency traffic — I was nervous," said Boardman, a former aircraft worker who turned to broadcasting as a hobby two years ago when he was disabled by arthritis.

He lost radio contact with Mission Village, but over the next few days learned from ham operators that the woman had given birth to two "strong baby girls," each 6 pounds, 3 ounces.

The day of the birth was Feb. 14, St. Valentine's Day, which Boardman said seemed somehow appropriate.

Vesco Seeks P.R. Papers

SAN JOSE (AP) — Fugitive U.S. financier Robert Vesco is trying to get Costa Rican citizenship before President-elect Rodrigo Carazo is inaugurated and throws him out of the country.

Vesco, who renounced his U.S. citizenship in 1973 and has lived in Costa Rica for six years, applied for citizenship Thursday. Carazo told the financier on Wednesday that if has not left the country by his inauguration on May 8, he would expel him.

The law is vague on how long action on a citizenship application can be delayed. If he becomes a citizen, he cannot be forced to leave the country.

Vesco met the requirements of five years residence in the country, a promise to remain and proof of an income. His list of character witnesses was headed by former president Jose Figueres, whose financial dealings with him while he was still president became a major political issue and are responsible for the pressure for him to leave the country.

Outgoing President Daniel Oduber has said Vesco must stay in Costa Rica until two lawsuits charging him with fraud are settled. The complainant, Carlos Reichnizer, said this week he would withdraw his charges if that would facilitate Vesco's departure.

Students Riot

MANAGUA (AP) — National Guard soldiers dispersed rioting, anti-President Anastasio Somoza students with machine-gun and rifle fire over their heads Thursday night after the students set fire to two buses and a movie studio.

Authorities said nobody was hurt.

The riot followed a rally by more than 1,000 students on the campus of the University of Nicaragua. The rally commemorated the 44th anniversary of the death of guerrilla Augusto Cesar Sandino, who fought the U.S. Marine occupation in the 1930s that put the Somoza family in power.

The rally ended with calls for the resignation of Somoza, the son of the founder of the family dictatorship.

The students set fire to two buses and the building of a movie company 100 metres from the campus.

U.S., Soviets Oppose UN Salary Hikes

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United States doesn't like it, and neither does the Soviet Union, but soon 75 officials of the United Nations will be making more than $75,000 a year.

Ignoring demands for belt-tightening from the United States, which pays more of the UN costs than any other member, the world organization has promoted six assistant secretaries-general to the rank of undersecretary-general. Their new titles carry raises of $10,000, making their annual salaries about $86,000.

In addition, a new under-secretary-general will be named in a few weeks to oversee all the economic problems of the world. His salary: $99,350. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim gets $110,650, not counting benefits and other allowances.

The latest round of "reclassificathons" brings to 35 the number of UN officials making more than $85,000 a year and to 75 those making more than $75,000.

Among professional politicians, West German cabinet ministers are the highest paid in the world at $73,300 a year. France pays its government ministers $52,250, Sweden $36,000 and Japan $53,033.

The United States, which foots 25 per cent of the UN budget, has consistently opposed enlargement of the upper echelons of the UN civil service. Representative Lester Wolff of New York, a Democratic member of the House of Representatives committee on international relations, has warned that the United States might consider voting against future UN budgets unless salaries are kept "in line."

Yury Fokine, a minister in charge of financial affairs in the Soviet mission, agrees that UN salaries are "unjustifiably high."

"These reclassifications do not mean the high officials have acquired new functions or responsibilities," he said. "They are just promotions for the sake of promotions — higher positions and more money."

Fire Destroys Flight Museum

SAN DIEGO (AP) — One of the United States' finest collections of flying machines — from the earliest planes to space capsules — was destroyed by a fire that officials said Thursday appeared to have been arson.

The uninsured Electric Building in Balboa Park burned to the ground during a three-alarm fire Wednesday, destroying the city-operated San Diego Aerospace Museum and its collection of 45 historic aircraft. No injuries were reported.

"The best information is that two juveniles were at the base of one of the pillars right before and right after the fire broke out," Roger Philhips, acting fire chief, said Thursday.

Firemen first estimated the damage at about $4 million, but City Councilman Jess Haro said it will cost $20 million to replace the museum and its Spanish-baroque building, erected in 1915 for the Panama Pacific International Exposition.

About 50,000 persons visited the museum every month.

Fish Boat Seized

JUNEAU, Alaska (Reuter) — The U.S. Coast Guard seized a Japanese fishing vessel Thursday night for trawling in a closed area south of the Pribilof Islands in the Bering Sea.

The cutter Confidence arrested the 167-foot Sachi Maru No. 22 for trawling in the Misty Mood Halibut Nursery Grounds, a spawning area for halibut.

Owner of the Japanese ship was given as Yamasan Endo Co. Ltd. of Shiogama Miyaga, Japan.

There's the Phone, Now Start Third World War

WASHINGTON (AP) — General examination for the doctor of philosophy degree:

History
Describe the history of the papacy from its origins to the present day, concentrating especially, but not exclusively, on its social, political, economic, religious and philosophical impact from Europe, Asia, Africa and the Americas. Be brief, concise and specific.

Public Speaking
Some 2,500 riot-crazed aborigines are storming the classroom. Calm them. You may use any ancient language except Latin or Greek. Your performance will be videotaped.

Biology
Create life. Estimate the differences in subsequent human culture if this form of life had developed 500 million years earlier, giving special attention to its probable effect on the English parliamentary system. Prove your thesis.

Music
Write a piano concerto. Orchestrate and perform it with flute and violin. You will find a piano under your seat. In the interest of time, you may omit the coda.

Psychology
Based on your knowledge of their works, evaluate the emotional stability, degree of adjustment and repressed frustrations of each of the following: Moses, Alexander of Aphrodisias, Rameses II, Gregory of Myssa, Hammurabi, Freud, Hitler, Idi Amin. Support your evaluation with quotations from each man's work, making appropriate references. It is not necessary to translate.

Sociology
Estimate the sociological problems that might accompany the end of the world. Construct an experiment to test your theory. Use charts if appropriate.

Political Science
There is a red telephone on the desk beside you. Start the Third World War. Report at length on its socio-political effects, if any.

Engineering
The disassembled parts of a high-powered rifle have been placed on your desk. You also will find an instruction manual printed in Swahili. In 10 minutes, a hungry Bengal tiger will be admitted to the room. Take whatever action you feel is appropriate. Be prepared to justify your decision.

Economics
Develop a realistic plan for refinancing the national debt. Trace the possible effects of your plan in the following areas: Cubism, the Donatist controvery, the wave theory of light, the automobile industry. Outline a method for preventing these effects. Criticize this method from all possible points of view. Point out the deficiencies in your point of view, as demonstrated in your answer to the last question.

Physics
Explain the nature of matter. Include in your answer an evaluation of the impact of the development of mathematics on science.

Mathematics
If x equals pi times a squared, construct a formula showing how long it would take a fire ant to drill a hole through a dill pickle, if the length-girth ratio of the ant to the pickle were 98.17:1.

Philosophy
Sketch the development of human thought, and estimate its significance. Compare with the development of any other kind of thought.

General Knowledge
Describe in detail. Be objective and specific. Abbreviations are permitted. You will be graded for punctuation and grammar.

EDITOR'S NOTE—The following spoof is circulating among doctoral candidates at a number of U.S. universities, reports the Chronicle of Higher Education which recently printed it. The author is unidentified. He's a Tycoon at 19

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — Being a Texan, Randy Veselka had a predictable boyhood ambition. He decided that when he grew up, he would be a tycoon. Now he is one.

The business he started 2½ years ago will gross close to a million dollars this year. He is equally sure that in a few more years, he himself will be worth a million. Then he can sit back and enjoy the fruits of his labor.

Randy is 19.

He took time out the other day from appointments with his banker, his lawyer, his accountant and his worries to explain how he did it, and why.

"Why? I used to visit a friend who lived in a four-storey house with 58 rooms and a Rolls-Royce parked out front. I decided I liked that kind of living.

"How? I put in 70 to 90 hours a week on the business and go to college two days a week. I don't mind hard work if the reward is large."

There is, of course, more to the story.

Like many another teenager, Randy Veselka earned his spending money working after school. He washed cars, flipped hamburgers, waited tables.

Unlike others his age, he was ever on the prowl, not for pocket money but an idea. He itched for a big score. "I intend to be a millionaire at 25. You don't do that working for somebody else."

In the fall of 1975 he hit on it.

"The CB radio craze was just warming up. It looked like a hot item. I had $500 saved up and I figured if I lost it, I could always go out and earn another $500 and try something else."

He bought 10 radios from a distributor, stuck 100 handbills under windshield wipers, sold out his stock in five days and ordered more. The second batch went as fast, so did the third, fourth, fifth.

In two months he built his capital to $20,000.

By the following June, traffic was so thick in his driveway, and neighbors' complaints so frequent, the city cracked down on him with zoning laws.

He borrowed $10,000 from the bank, leased an old shed, fixed it up and put up a sign: CB Warehouse.

In 60 days, he had outgrown the shed and expanded. In a single torrid month last year, his gross was $80,000.

Before long, the parking lot was so crowded, the cash register so overworked, that his father sold his own business, a chain of exercise parlors, and joined his son.

Randy's success also attracted other eyes. Two of his distributors switched to retail and went into competition on the same highway.

"I've already driven one out of business, and have the other on his knees," Randy said. "I'm not afraid of competition. I have better products, better prices, better service."

Perhaps more energy, too.

He has buttonholed contacts at manufacturers' conventions, built his product line to 500 items, hired a crew of 11, leased a townhouse, tripped to Europe, bought a fleet of four trucks, enrolled in college toward a law degree and bought property for a new two-storey building for his retail business and a distributorship he is starting. Branch offices are next.

TERRITORIES NEED A MIRACLE

EDMONTON (CP) — The population of the Northwest Territories could outstrip the capacity of its renewable natural resources by the end of the century, Dr. William Fuller, a zoologist, warned Wednesday.

Fuller, a former member of the Canadian Arctic Resources Committee (CARC), told the group that the population crisis is an unspoken issue which has been "simmering below the surface."

He said nothing short of a major disaster could prevent the territories' population doubling by the end of the century.

Fuller said the territories' growth rate is 3.9 per cent, twice the world average.

"Only someone who believes in miracles can believe that the north's resources can support a doubling of its population," he said.

The Edmonton zoologist said that if native people do not cut their birth rate, they will have to make a forced move into the industrial wage economy or else send their children to live in southern Canada.

However, Dave Nickerson, a member of the Northwest Territories legislative assembly, said the territories can easily allow the present population of 40,000 to double.

"We have the resources in the North to sustain well in excess of that number," he said.

The three-day CARC conference ended Wednesday.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 17-year-old who took his father's car three times was handed a suspended sentence by Judge Harold Alder in Victoria provincial court Thursday and ordered to perform 50 hours of community service work.

Richard Allan Maddocks, 615 Camellia, pleaded guilty to taking an auto without the owner's consent Jan. 15 and Crown counsel Nicholas Lang told the court the owner in this case was Maddocks' father.

Lang said the father knew his son did not have a driver's licence and did not want him to have his car. However, the younger Maddocks took the vehicle three times, twice replacing the rotor which the father had removed and once replacing the coil wire.

"He should be a mechanic," Lang added.

"He may yet be," Alder said.

"Apparently, you do have mechanical ability of some nature," Alder said to Maddocks, who also had a juvenile record for such crimes as auto theft.

Besides the community service work, Alder also placed Maddocks on six months probation and warned the youth this might be the first step in an adult criminal history.

A 23-year-old who accumulated 60 driving demerits was sentenced to five days in jail for driving while suspended.

Carl Herbert Goodwin, 3054 Albany, pleaded guilty to the charge which Lang said occurred Feb. 1 on Wilkinson Road when Saanich police stopped him about 2:40 a.m. Lang said the points had been accumulated since 1973 and that Goodwin's driving record included a conviction for impaired driving on June 28, 1974, when he was fined $375.

A 22-year-old who broke into his uncle's house was given a suspended sentence, placed on three months probation and ordered to pay for a broken window.

Paul Thomas Little, who told the court he was living at Cool-Aid, pleaded guilty to a charge of wilful damage. A charge of being unlawfully in a dwelling house was stayed.

Court was told RCMP in Port Alberni spotted a broken window, saw some blood and found Little inside lying on a bed. Little told police he had been drinking with his uncle prior to breaking in. He had stayed at the uncle's house before, court was informed.

Fined for drinking-driving were: Dale Brian Kerr, 20, of 3660 Tillicum, $300; Venicio Raposo, 39, of 2900 Queenston, $300; Byron William Dench, 17, of 10613 McDonald Park, $200; and Denise Smart, 34, of 2033 Weiler, $50. In addition, Dench was given a suspended sentence and placed on three months probation after pleading guilty to driving while suspended.

Dentistry Dean

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. George S. Beagrie of Toronto has been appointed dean of University of British Columbia's Faculty of Dentistry, effective July 1.

Hong Kong Arrest Refused

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial court judge John Macintyre refused Wednesday to rule on a federal justice department request that the RCMP be authorized to execute a warrant for the arrest of Hon Kwing Shum, former Hong Kong police detective.

The federal government is seeking extradition of Hon, 56, on behalf of the Hong Kong government to stand trial on a charge laid under a Hong Kong prevention of bribery ordinance.

A decision on the Hong Kong warrant was adjourned to March 29 to accommodate appeal procedures by defence lawyer H. A. D. Oliver. He will appear March 20 in Ottawa to seek leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada a ruling last month by the Federal Court of Appeal.

The appeal court ruled that a British Columbia Provincial Court judge can hear extradition proceedings against Hon. The ruling set aside a judgment in June, 1977, by the Federal Court of Canada that a Provincial Court judge has no jurisdiction.

Mayfair Mishap Victim Found Partly to Blame

A pedestrian who sued for damages after she was struck by a car in a shopping centre parking lot has been found partly to blame in a B.C. Supreme Court judgment.

Mr. Justice J.G. Ruttan gave Mrs. Denise W. Wiggins $8,350 in general and special damages, but said in his judgment she was 25 per cent to blame for injuries she suffered Sept. 21, 1976, in Mayfair parking lot.

A claim for special damages and a $5,056.80 claim by her husband Dr. Robert Wiggins, who rendered care services during his wife's convalescence, were disallowed along with a claim by the husband for loss of consortium.

Mrs. Wiggins suffered a broken leg and broken foot as she walked with the traffic flow in a lane marked for vehicles.

Mr. Justice Ruttan noted she was not able to guard herself against cars coming from behind.

A small car driven by Mabel B. Lloyd, 83, apparently knocked the plaintiff down, although the court had no direct evidence of this.

He awarded principal damages of $8,000 and $350 special damages for the cost of a therapy bath and two pairs of flat-heeled shoes.

MDA PROBATION

A man found to have 47 capsules of MDA when arrested on a trafficking charge pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of simple possession when he appeared Thursday before Judge E. J. C. Stewart in Victoria county court.

Dennis Leonard Shaffer, 25, was placed on 12 months probation and must do 40 hours of community service work as a condition of probation.

The offence occurred May 16, 1977.

These Youngsters Don't Play Soldier

FIYAMBIRO, Ethiopia (AP) — Children in oversize, cast-off uniforms clutching wooden rifles are a common sight in the brushfire wars that periodically erupt across Africa.

But in the rebellion to end Ethiopian control of the Ogaden Desert and join it to Somalia, the children are not playing soldier. They are actively engaged in combat, to avenge the deaths of loved ones and to help turn the dream of Western Somalia, the rebels' name for the Ogaden, into a reality.

Three such youngsters seen here in the mountains and valleys on the rebel side of the Fiyambiro battlefront appeared to be between childhood and adolescence.

Wearing brown uniforms, they crouched in the bush facing Ethiopian positions on an opposite ridge. Across each boy's back was an AK-47 automatic rifle about half his size, a weapon the Russians supplied to the rebels' backers in Somalia before the Kremlin switched its support to Ethiopia.

"As is our tradition, they want revenge for the deaths of their parents," said Mohammed Hassan, a field commander for the Western Somali Liberation Front. "They have all received military training."

Hassan explained that the Ethiopians killed the boys' parents when they recaptured hilltop Fiyambiro temporarily last month and killed persons suspected of working for the Liberation Front.

Hassan did not say how many armed children were under his command, but he indicated there were more in the area.

Fiyambiro is in the Amhar mountains, about 175 kilometres west of the Somali border and 11 kilometres north of the strategic Babile Gap.

It is one of two main battlefronts in eastern Ethiopia, where the Liberation Front guerrillas are battling an Ethiopian army counter-offensive to reclaim the Ogaden.

The people of Fiyambiro, like most of the people in the Ogaden, are ethnic Somalis, Moslem nomads like the people of neighboring Somalia, with no cultural ties to the Christian Ethiopians to whom the Ogaden was ceded by the colonial powers in the 19th century.

Liberation Front officials here said thousands of the Ogaden's nomads are receiving military training at 40 camps in the "liberated" zone conquered by the rebels since the war erupted in mid-July. They said thousands of others have been armed with weapons supplied by Somalia or captured from the Ethiopians.

Cardinal Dies

OSAKA (AP) — Yoshigoro Taguchi, Japan's only Roman Catholic cardinal, died Thursday of a kidney ailment at Osaka University hospital. He was 75. Taguchi was the second Japanese to be made a cardinal. Pope John XXIII appointed him in 1973.

BURIED SHEEP RECOVERING

WICK, Scotland (Reuter) — A three-year-old sheep was recovering Thursday after being buried alive for 25 days in a snowdrift.

The sheep, trapped by blizzards on Jan. 28, was dug out after being discovered by a sheepdog at Rogart, 50 kilometres southwest of here. It was reported to be eating and recovering well.

Black Dancers Refused U.S. Visas

TORONTO (CP) — Ten black dancers and two producers of a touring theatre company who wish to return home to South Africa on an airplane flight from New York City have been refused visas to the United States, a spokesman for the group said Thursday.

Pat Stewart, a Toronto literary agent, said U.S. officials will not allow them to go to New York to a board a flight to Johannesburg because officials fear the group will want to defect to the U.S.

Eight other members of the touring theatre company sought political asylum in Canada two weeks ago because they said they fear reprisals in South Africa over the political content of the play they performed here.

The group has decided to return home via London rather than fight the authorities.

The Bahá'í Faith Unifies Mankind
For the last 130 years, the Bahá'í Faith has been single-mindedly striving to establish unity throughout the world. Convinced that disunity lies at the root of all human problems, Bahá'ís from every background, race, nation and religion have seen a new vision of the world as one country and mankind its citizens.
Through the teachings of Bahá'u'lláh, Prophet-Founder of the Bahá'í Faith they are building a world community based on the dynamic principle of unity in diversity. There's a part in it for you.

FBI Meets Tongsun Park in Honolulu

HONOLULU (AP) — Tongsun Park, the central figure in the South Korean payoff scandal, stopped in Honolulu on Thursday on his way to Washington and was met by U.S. marshals, FBI agents and immigration officials.

In Washington he is to testify before congressional committees investigating South Korean influence-buying in Congress.

Park left his Korean Air Lines plane by a private stairway and was driven off with officials in a waiting car.

He is expected to spend two days in Hawaii at a private residence.

The airline said earlier that Park was scheduled to fly to Chicago on Saturday and to Washington on Sunday.

Park told a CBS reporter aboard the flight to Honolulu that he welcomes his return to Washington "because it gives me an opportunity to testify truthfully."

Ottawa Kills B.C. Oil Port

for the Americans, my off-hand attitude is why don't they build a port on their west coast if they want to bring oil for themselves," Trudeau said.

"If the federal government has killed the project, that's their prerogative," Cressey said. "It's the process that disturbs me."

He said such political decisions should come after the politicians see facts about how such a project might meet energy needs. Those facts are only collected by the NEB in hearings of the kind which had been slated, and which won't go ahead, he said.

"In Canada, we've encouraged industry to come forward with proposals, and told them the NEB would be the forum," Cressey said.

"In this case, obviously a political decision has been made in the absence of the technical data. I'm really asking myself what kind of precedent this sets."

Bristol Foster, the provincial government's director of ecological reserves, said the decision doesn't remove the threat of oil pollution on B.C.'s coast.

Foster said oil will continue to find its way to the U.S. one way or another and the Kitimat decision may lead to increased tanker traffic.

"It looks as if the oil will be coming down to Panama or the U.S. outside the Charlottes — that threat's growing anyway despite the oil port decision."

He added that those who say the decision will cost jobs are being short-sighted because "jobs in the long run depend on a healthy envoronment."

Foster said that although construction workers may lose some work, "at least the fishermen and Indians have their jobs preserved."

Tony Pearse, co-ordinator of the Kitimat Oil Coalition, an organization of 20 groups opposed to a West Coast oil port, said the coalition is pleased at the decision to kill the Kitimat port proposal, but it should have been done a year ago, without wasting taxpayers' money.

Pearse said that in spite of the government decision against a B.C. oil port there is still tanker traffic off the B.C. coast going from Alaska to Washington and California.

"So there's still the possibility of a Port Angeles superport," he said, referring to the Washington state oil port site which has been under consideration for several years.

Bill Otway, executive director of the B.C. Wildlife Federation, described the decision as great but said "it took them a long time to come to their senses."

George Manuel, president of the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs said his organization viewed the federal government's announcement with "guarded optimism."

"If they mean what they say, then the announcement by Mr. Marchand means the Indian people of B.C. have won a victory today, as have all the citizens of this province and all residents of this coast," he said.

"We remain unconvinced at this time that a west coast oil port has been conclusively rejected by Canada. For the cabinet to simply state an opinion, as it has done today, is just not good enough.

James Gosnell, president of the Nishga Tribal Council, said the government decision was just what the Indians wanted.

"In the long run the question of food, the commercial fishery, is more important than oil supply," he said. "You can find a substitute for oil but not for food. The cabinet made a very wise decision."

George Hewison, general secretary-treasurer of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union, said he is sceptical of the Ottawa announcement because it came very close behind "a hard-hitting report" by Thompson and because Marchand said only that the oil port was ruled out for the foreseeable future.

"I suggest the foreseeable future may only be until after the spring election," said Hewison. "Our position is that there should be no oil port ever."

Deadbeats On Taxes Targeted In Saanich

Saanich may follow the example of the city of Victoria in suing delinquent taxpayers, if finance committee chairman Ald. Dave Paterson's advice is accepted by committee members next month.

At a press conference Thursday, Paterson said he intends to recommend the get-tough action because he is disturbed by what he considers an unprecedented increase in overdue taxes, which now total more than $1 million.

But elsewhere, in a wide-ranging review of the municipality's current economic health, Paterson had an optimistic short-term outlook for taxpayers.

He predicted that estimated additional revenues of $1 million this year should allow council to hold the line on its general purposes mill rate.

He also said he would like to see a changed emphasis in municipal spending, to provide more funds for the improvement of "hardware" — roads and other aspects of public works — and recreational facilities and programs.

Preliminary year-end figures show that Saanich had a modest surplus of $125,000 in 1977.

But Paterson said if there had not been an unusually large allowance for uncollected taxes totalling $374,000 — only $30,000 had actually been budgeted — there would have been a surplus of almost $500,000.

At the beginning of the year unpaid taxes amounted to $636,000, and the total now tops the $1 million mark.

The bulk of the outstanding taxes is owed by commercial operations, including office blocks, shopping centres and vacant parcels of land held for development, he said.

Paterson said the impact falls on the average homeowner who does pay his taxes on time.

"Because of the failure of some sectors of the business community to pay their taxes on time, we will not realize a surplus as high as we should have."

Before any possible changes resulting from court of revision appeals, Saanich's gross taxable assessment for 1978 stands at $238.2 million. That's an increase of $31.1 million or 15.6 per cent over last year.

Paterson said revenue prospects this year include an additional $800,000 from the provincial government. This, together with council's instruction to staff to hold expenditures to the 1977 level plus an allowance for salary increases, makes it "unlikely" that the general purposes mill rate will be increased in 1978.

But Paterson said the actual dollar impact on taxpayers is impossible to predict, because of changes in the property assessment structure.

Based on his findings from updating the Ward economic study prepared three years ago, Paterson said council needs to ask itself some basic philosophical questions as to its spending priorities.

For example, his figures show that Saanich commits by far the lowest proportion of its total municipal expenditure (11.4 per cent) to recreation. At the other end of the scale, Oak Bay allocates 23.7 per cent.

However, Saanich recorded the largest increase in spending on police and fire services, which rose 49.9 per cent between 1974 and 1976.

Cutbacks in protective services were highly unlikely, Paterson said.

Aldermen Hit Choice Of Hood

City council named former alderman Alf Hood to the Victoria city police board Thursday night but not before three aldermen questioned his acceptability, saying he was out of touch with the community.

Hood replaces Jack Cowan who is leaving to take a judge's seat in Vancouver.

Hood's appointment was opposed by aldermen Larry Ryan, Robin Blencoe and Bill McElroy.

All three argued that some changes are needed on the police board to make it more responsive to community needs.

Ryan said Hood had been an excellent alderman "but we should get away from the idea of appointing ex-politicians and people attached to City Hall to the police board."

Ryan said the board needs a better cross-section of representatives from the community.

"Because of his background and the fact that he was a colonel, this isn't the best type of appointment for such a sensitive position," said Ryan.

Ald. Murray Glazier, however, who had suggested Hood, said it was an ideal appointment.

Glazier said Hood had led the aldermanic polls in two elections "and that shows he is clearly in touch with the community and very acceptable to its members."

Doris Ganton, left, and Linda Prior drive Major the Belgian and Rozello, a Polish Arabian mare

One Horsepower Real Horsesense

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Fed up with car repair bills? ICBC payments getting you down? Depressed by the steadily rising price of gas?

Don't despair, there's this new invention — well, not exactly new, but only a few thousand years old — that some Greater Victoria folks swear by.

They claim it's a relatively inexpensive, energy-saving, non-polluting (except for the occasional organically-rich emission) form of rural transportation. But above all it's a heap of fun.

There are no infernal combustion things to go wrong and the only sounds from the one-horsepower conveyance are a steady clip-clopping, a drumming of gracefully-spoked wheels and the wind in your hair.

In short, the carriage age has dawned. Again.

And to cater to the growing band of enthusiasts, a special club called the Horse and Buggy Driving Club was formed two months ago.

Already the club has 36 members, ranging from the young and the fit to the elderly and not-so-athletic, and an equally varied assortment of steeds and vehicles.

Organizer Linda Prior says on a recent 10-mile drive through the back roads, fields and woods of the Saanich Peninsula there were 10 horse and buggy combinations.

The vehicles included home-made wagons, cross-country carts, phaetons and Democrat buggies, hauled by Arabians, hackneys, cross-breds, you name it.

For sheer comical contrast there was Major, a massive Belgian dray-horse weighing in at 2,400 pounds and standing 18 hands (six feet at the withers), towering above a miniature donkey barely 28 inches tall.

Major's owner, Doris Ganton, burst out laughing as she recalled how, at the start of the drive, some confusion prevailed and the tiny donkey looked in danger of being flattened by Major's dinner-plate-size hooves.

When the little chap still refused to budge his frustrated owner finally lifted him bodily and moved him to one side!

For Mrs. Ganton, who operates a harness and carriage sales business from her home on Livesay Road, the marked increase in the pastime's local popularity is particularly satisfying.

She has been driving horses since before she could ride them, and when she came here 16 years ago from Ottawa she was amazed to find total disinterest.

"No one drove. Simply because there's no heritage here, like there is back East," she said.

Today's local trend is only a modest illustration of the extraordinary renaissance of horse-driving across North America. Antique carriages and traps of every kind have long since been unearthed from barns and sheds, to be lovingly restored. And in order to meet the continuing demand, five or six special carriage factories have sprung up in recent years.

Mrs. Ganton, as a prominent authority on the subject and the author of a definitive book on breaking and training the driving horse, spends six months a year travelling to conduct clinics in Oregon, Montana, California and as far afield as Massachussetts, Texas, Vermont and Missouri.

This year she has even been asked to teach in Alaska.

She says any breed of horse can be trained for driving. And the initial outlay need not be prohibitive. For $500 she can provide a harness and cross-country cart, which will never depreciate in value.

Linda Prior said the newly-formed club is planning outings — including a trip to Salt Spring Island — clinics and shows, to promote both the pleasure aspect of driving and show ring work.

The spectacle of a mass turnout of buggies apparently creates quite a stir among passers-by, and she said some motorists become so excited they stop their cars in the middle of the highway to stare or take pictures.

For those who would like to catch the sight, there's another outing this Sunday, starting from the south end of Central Saanich Road at 11 a.m. The 11-mile route takes in Oldfield Road, Keating Cross Road, Bryn and the Old West Saanich Road.

NO CHARGES, TIGHTER AUDIT

No charges or any other form of disciplinary action will be taken against Saanich public works employees who have been taking and selling materials salvaged from municipal projects, Mayor Mel Couvelier said today.

Couvelier said a police investigation into the matter has been concluded, and the only action Saanich will take is to tighten up its audit procedures at the municipal yard.

He said it would be difficult to require restitution of the amount involved, which he had earlier said amounted to less than $10,000 over a four-year period.

"It would be impossible to identify the individuals accurately because the individuals who participated in a particular job split whatever was received from the job, and there might be a whole series of sub-splits," he said.

Trio Nabbed After Spree But Court Not for Tots

The kiddy crime wave is over in Central Saanich and the culprits will pay for their sins.

But the three youngsters believed by Central Saanich police to be responsible for a series of car and other thefts in the municipality won't be formally charged.

The youngsters, police say, are "too young and too tender" for court action.

Instead, Chief Bob Miles said today the 12-year-old leader of the group will wash cars, do some fencing and move horse manure for the victims of the month-long spree of thefts.

His 10-year-old companions will pull duties like cutting lawns, weeding and gardening.

Miles said the trio admitted stealing three cars, four motorcycles and three or four bicycles as well as attempting to steal four other cars and a citizen band radio over the past three to four weeks.

In addition, one of the youngsters told police he had taken a number of sets of keys left in cars with the intention of returning later to take them for a joyride.

Their activities ended abruptly last Sunday night when a woman checking on the home of her vacationing parents surprised the trio taking a citizen band radio out of her parent's car in the driveway.

The youngsters dropped the set and fled. But the woman gave their description to police.

Const. Don Mann conducted a house-to-house search in the area and eventually one of the 10-year-old boys admitted his part in the crime and implicated the other two.

Miles said a fourth boy, aged 11, may also be involved in some of the thefts but the investigation is not completed.

He said no charges will be laid because the courts would likely consider the youngsters too young to take any action.

"There's no way a judge would accept charges against a 10 or 12-year-old."

TOWN TALK

It's better to forgive and forget, believes Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy, who has sent a thank you note to Helen Beirnes for helping to organize the Victoria Chamber of Commerce's daffodil blitz to the Prairies this month.

McCarthy, who accompanied Beirnes on the blitz, wrote that she was impressed by "the energy and friendship shown by all members of the team."

Just before the tourist promotion trip, Beirnes had been sharply critical of McCarthy's handling of a provincial hospitality program.

But while she was forgiving, McCarthy was forgetting how to spell Beirnes. She addressed the letter to "Miss Helen Biernes".

Conspicuous by their absence in radio news coverage of today's William Ozard story were Clare Copeland and Mel Cooper.

Copeland is chairman of the board of radio station CFAX, and Cooper is president and general manager. The two were named in Ozard's thank-you ad that is credited with losing the former deputy travel minister for Nova Scotia his new job with the province (see page 1).

CFAX covered the story and even read out some of the names listed in Ozard's ad — but Copeland and Cooper weren't mentioned.

It was a perfect piece of Python.

Channel 9, Seattle's Public Broadcasting System station, had trouble broadcasting a segment of Monty Python's Flying Circus earlier this week. Ten minutes before the end of the show the picture was lost, although the sound continued.

After a few minutes an announcer with a carefully controlled voice came on to ask viewers not to adjust their sets as "we're experiencing audio difficulties."

Sorry to hear that.

When Dr. Robert Stewart, director-general of the Institute of Ocean Sciences (IOS), is touted for an international scientific post it's news when he turns it down.

Stewart has more international involvement than your average scientist and has brought credit to this country's efforts toward global research in meteorology and oceanography.

Recently his colleagues in the International Council of Scientific Unions (ICSU) urged him to take charge of a group that would focus oceanographic input and the role of the Scientific Committee on Ocean Research (SCOR) in a new world climate program for the decade of the 1980s, in which the World Meteorological Organization (WMO) would be involved.

Stewart goes to London next month to discuss the organization as a member of the executive committee of SCOR, and thinks he will persuade his friend Henry Charnock, about to take a post with the University of Southampton, to head the new committee. Charnock is at present Stewart's opposite at the British IOS (Institute of Oceanographic Sciences), south of London.

The postal service receives more than its share of lumps, so it's nice to toss them a rose once and a while.

Terry O'Neill, reporter for Canadian Press here, asked a Vancouver office to mail him some documents. He phoned at 2 p.m. Tuesday.

The office put the documents in an envelope, and sent it to the Post Office at about 5 p.m.

At 9 a.m. the next day, O'Neill received the envelope.

That's not bad handling — through the province's two busiest post offices and across the Strait of Georgia.

What About the Ordinary People?

Ald. Murray Glazier won support from council Thursday night for a celebration to commemerate the 90th anniversary of passenger service to Victoria by CPR's Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway — but he got a few verbal lumps of coal thrown his way in the process.

Council gave Glazier $800 to organize the celebrations, even though two aldermen got a little steamed up about some shortcomings they saw in the plans.

Aldermen Bill McElroy and Robin Blencoe both complained that the lists of dignitaries Glazier planned to invite to take part in the ceremonies didn't include any ordinary people.

Invited were politicians and railway officials.

McElroy said representatives of the little guys in life should be asked along too, because they were the passengers for which the train was started.

"I don't see any reference to ordinary people and if we can find some somewhere maybe we could invite them," he said.

Joe Richards, an unsuccesful aldermanic candidate in the last election who is in constant attendance at council meetings, shouted from the public gallery: "It's going to be me."

"I said ordinary, Joe," replied Blencoe who was on his feet at the time in support of McElroy.

Richards had recommended himself to represent the ordinary people because it was he who had first brought the matter of the railway's 90th anniversary to council's attention.

Jones Leads Golf

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (ap) — Grier Jones says he's just beginning to find the winning touch at the Jackie Gleason-Inverrary golf tournament. Unfortunately for Jones, Jack Nicklaus says the same thing.

Jones shot a five-under-par 67 Thursday in the opening round of the $250,000 tournament to take a two-stroke lead over a group of eight that included Fuzzy Zoeller, Bob Shearer, Danny Edwards, Andy Bean, Kermit Zarley, Hale Irwin, Gibby Gilbert and Steve Melnyk.

Nicklaus, who won the $50,000 first prize here last year, heads a group of 11 that were three strokes behind at 70.

Jim Nelford of Burnaby, B.C., was six strokes off the pace with a 37-36—73. Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., the other Canadian in the field, had a 38-39—77.

"It's been cold and I haven't had much touch," said Jones, whose highest finish in five tournaments this year was a tie for sixth in the San Diego Open.

Nicklaus shot a 36-34—70 round and called it awful.

However, he added: "I'll be all right tomorrow. I should be in pretty good shape by the end of the week.

Style Change Scares Cats

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

If you can't trust a 10-1 lead, what can you trust?

Well, chaps, if the Victoria Cougars absorbed any lesson from an almost-disastrous turnaround, then they may wind up putting their faith into game plans without alterations.

The Cougars changed their style but managed to hang on to defeat Flin Flon Bombers 10-7 in a wild and weird Western Canada Hockey League shootout before 1,866 fans Thursday night at Memorial Arena.

Working, skating with authority and intelligence, the Cougars came barrelling out of the shute to whip up a 10-1 lead in the first 33 minutes and 24 seconds of play. But if the customers began to conjure annihilation of Flin Flon's favorites in the remaining period-plus, they were wrong.

The Bombers struck for three goals in 20 seconds, then two more in another 122 seconds and, the rout became a hang-on with 18 minutes left to play and only four goals (10-6) separating the teams.

Flin Flon's five-goal burst in two minutes and 22 seconds is believed to be a league record. The three goals in 20 seconds just missed, by three seconds, tying another mark.

Jack Shupe, the exasperated coach of the Cougars, was not impressed by Flin Flon's scoring feats. Rather, he hoped, his players might have absorbed, rather fortunately, another "do-and-don't" lesson.

"We go up 10-1 by playing hockey both ways," he said. "Then they quit. Rather than stay with what got them there, they change. The wingers stopped picking up their man and stopped backchecking. We stopped forechecking. We stopped everything.

"The first 29 minutes was probably the best hockey they have played as a team this year. Then they went to playing some of the worst. . ."

All quite true. Perhaps concentrating too much on padding their point totals, the forwards did a complete about face to ignore the tactics that provided them with 26 scoring points in the first 34 minutes of play.

Some blame, also, must be placed with a defence pairing's inability to detect trouble.

It was 10-1 heading into the final minute of the second period. The line of Dennis Fenske, Mickey Willgress and George Fritz ran into difficult times, primarily because they consistently strayed from their positions. Defencemen Glen Cochrane and Scott Lang were unable to finesse the puck out of the Victoria zone.

Goaltender Steve Amiss, for one, detected trouble and yelled a "freeze the puck" order to his mates. Neither Cochrane nor Lang, who had the chances to do it, obliged. Trouble persisted and Mario Botlik scored Flin Flon's second goal at the 19:18 mark. Ray Neufeld then scored two within a nine-second span, at 19:29 and 19:38, and it was a 10-4 game.

Two quick goals at the start of the final period made it 10-6 but the Cougars were able to muster some semblance of poise to hang on the rest of the way.

The play for the defence was to freeze the puck, or ice it. Had that been done, the line might have regrouped or Shupe might have used the pause to send out fresh troops. The complexion of the game might not have changed so dramatically.

Victoria's offense, mainly due to the efforts of Gary Lupul, Curt Fraser, Geordie Robertson, Mike Shields and Bob Jansch, continues to produce. The Cougars have scored 26 goals in their last three games.

Fraser and Robertson each enjoyed four-point nights and, for most of the way, worked hard to earn their totals.

Former Cougar defenceman Greg Tebbutt, playing as an overage and Flin Flon's captain, contributed a goal and four assists to the Bomber cause. "The Truck" also was on the ice for five of Victoria's goals.

Despite the victory, Cougars remained one point behind Seattle Breakers in the race for second place in the Western Division. Seattle protected its margin Thursday by breezing to a 10-3 victory over the Saskatoon Blades.

Errol Rausse, 18, scored twice in Seattle to break the his club's record of 51 goals set by Rob Flockhart in the 1975-76 season when the Breakers were Kamloops Chiefs. Rausse tied the record Wednesday.

Shutt, Lafleur In Form

The Canadian Press

Perhaps only the combined talents of Steve Shutt and Guy Lafleur could take the conversation away from Montreal Canadiens' record 28-game National Hockey League unbeaten streak.

Shutt scored four goals and Lafleur assisted on all four as the Canadiens defeated Cleveland Barons 5-1 Thursday night for their 23rd victory in the 28-game stretch.

It was Shutt's first four-goal game in the NHL and Lafleur's four assists, for a season total of 96 points, moved him within a point of leading Bryan Trottier of New York Islanders in the scoring race.

In other games, Buffalo Sabres blanked Philadelphia Flyers 4-0, New York Rangers dumped Chicago Black Hawks 6-2 and Detroit Red Wings downed Washington Capitals 4-1.

In the only World Hockey Association game, Birmingham Bulls beat Quebec Nordiques 7-3.

Mario Tremblay had the other goal for the Canadiens, who have 23 victories and five ties in their streak, while Mike Fidler scored for the Barons to create a 1-1 tie after one period at Montreal.

Goalie Don Edwards set a Sabres club record for season shutouts and tied a club record for victories when he helped them beat Philadelphia at Buffalo. The shutout was his fifth of the season and his 31st victory, tying a mark set by Gerry Desjardins last year.

Danny Gare scored two Buffalo goals for a season total of 31, and Gilbert Perreault and Andre Savard had singles as Edwards recorded 20 saves.

Pat Hickey scored three goals to lead the Rangers over Chicago and spoil the Black Hawks debut of veteran goalie Ed Johnston.

Don Murdoch and Nick Fotiu had the Rangers' other goals at New York, while Stan Mikita and Ivan Boldirev scored for the Black Hawks, who suffered only their third loss in 21 games.

Dennis Polonich scored two goals as the Red Wings defeated the Capitals at Detroit. Rookies Dale McCourt and Paul Woods had the winners' other goals, while Bob Girard scored for Washington.

At Birmingham, Paul Henderson's third three-goal game of the season and a 35-save performance by goalie Wayne Wood led the Bulls over Quebec in WHA play.

Ken Linseman, Mark Napier, Tony Cassolato and Dave Gorman added goals for Birmingham, and Real Cloutier scored two for the Nordiques. Warren Miller had the other in the last minute of play.

COWICHAN TO HONOR AL WILSON

Duncan and the Cowichan Valley will turn out Saturday to roast their favorite Canadian Football League all-star.

Al Wilson, the B.C. Lions' centre who has been a CFL all-star for the past three seasons and a Duncan product, will have a park dedicated in his name and then will be "honored" at a ceremonial roast at the Commercial Hotel in the evening.

Proceeds from the $20-a-plate dinner, which will have footballers Eric Guthrie, Jerry Tagge, Jim Young and Doug Carlson on the oral firing line, will be used to start an Al Wilson Scholarship Fund at Cowichan Secondary.

Scorpions Hit Century

Ian Scott and Dave Morgan ignited an early charge Thursday to carry Scorpions to a "century" performance and an easy Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League triumph.

Connecting for 48 points in the second half, Scorpions toppled the Little Giants 100-62 at Lansdowne Junior High.

Morgan connected for 36 points, including 14 in the second half, while Scott pumped in 30. Wayne Plewert added 14 points for the winners while Greg McInnes (15), Rob Spanier (14) and Keith Bridge (11) topped Little Giants' scoring.

Scorpions led 52-20 at the half.

Sedlbauer Sent Down

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks have sent left winger Ron Sedlbauer to Tulsa Oilers of the Central Hockey League, reducing the National Hockey League team's roster to 21 players, two over the limit.

Knutson Needs One More Victory

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — The Saskatchewan rink of Art Knutson from Elbow retained its hold on first place at the Canadian senior men's curling championship Thursday with a 9-4 victory over Ralph Atwill's Newfoundland rink from St. John's in 10th-round play.

Saskatchewan remains in top spot going into today's final round with a 9-1 record. Both the British Columbia rink of Kelly Carin from Kamloops, 9-8 winner over Bill Wagner's Ontario foursome from Ottawa, and the Prince Edward Island contingent of Art Ballem from Charlottetown, which took a 5-3 win over New Brunswick's Jim Murphy from Saint John, are second with 8-2 marks.

In other 10th-round games, Manitoba downed Alberta 9-3, Quebec whipped the Territories 12-4 and Nova Scotia beat Northern Ontario 11-6.

In the ninth round, Saskatchewan edged Ontario 6-5, Prince Edward Island whipped Nova Scotia 12-5, Manitoba trounced Northern Ontario 13-2, Quebec defeated Newfoundland 11-6, New Brunswick beat Alberta 7-3 and British Columbia nipped the Territories 9-8.

Stacey Leads

SARASOTA, Fla. (Reuter) — Hollis Stacey, defending United States Open champion, carded a three-under-par 69 Thursday to take a one-stroke lead after the opening round of the $100,000 Bent Tree women's golf tournament.

Sandra Post, formerly of Oakville, Ont., was two strokes off the pace in a three-way tie for third place with a 36-35—71. Laura Baugh andNacy Lopez also had 71s.

Dale Shaw of Sidney, B.C., shot a 76.

BEAUCHEMIN HAS 69

HONG KONG (Reuter) — Chang Ming-hsiung of Taiwan shot a five-under-par 64 Thursday to take the first-round lead in the $50,000 Hong Kong Open golf tournament.

Hsieh Yung-yo, also of Taiwan, shot a 65 and another Taiwanese golfer, Chang Chun-fah, was in third place at 67.

John Benda of the United States and Alan Murray of Singapore were tied for fourth at 68, followed by a group of 10 golfers at 69 that includes Gar Hamilton of Toronto and Bob Beauchemin of Victoria.

CHARTER MEMBERS of Victoria Curling Club who helped launch 25th annual Daffodil bonspiel are, from left, Doreen Perlette, Sheila Steuart, Marg Sturrock and Betty Stubbs. Silver anniversary 'spiel for women started Thursday and will wind up Sunday at 3 p.m.

Claremont Eliminated

Claremont Spartans have been shuffled out of the South Island senior high school boys' basketball picture while Oak Bay, Lansdowne, Lambrick Park and Central came up with the winning hands in the junior high playdowns Thursday.

Claremont, winless in 10 league starts, were bounced from further playoff contention after absorbing a 74-51 lesson from Esquimalt Dockers.

Greg Webber, with 23 points, and Bill Barber, with 22, provided Dockers with a solid offensive punch. Walt Phillips stood out in a losing cause with a 27-point performance.

Dockers meet Parkland Panthers tonight while Spectrum faces Mt. Douglas Rams in playoffs that will determine the South's remaining two qualifiers for next week's Island tournament at Nanaimo. Divisional champions Oak Bay and Belmont Braves have already qualified.

At Oak Bay, the host team and Lansdowne Flyers turned in solid victories to advance to the South Island junior high tournament final. Flyers laced Cedar Hill 58-33 behind Darren Alexander's 18-point performance while Oak Bay beat Arbutus 54-39.

In other games, Lambrick Park dropped Reynolds 48-26 while Central thumped Colquitz 50-35.

In addition to Alexander, other team sparkplugs were Oak Bay's Randy Hess (12), Ian Lang of Arbutus (14), Dan Thompson of Cedar Hill (14), Central's Ryan Campbell (18), Cal Van Buskirk of Colquitz (14), Dennis Mimic of Lambrick (19) and Steve Newnham of Reynolds (10).

The top three clubs advance to the Island tournament at Oak Bay March 10-11.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Impressive 306-258-384 — 948 series carried Jim LeBold to Bowler-of-the-Week honors in 18th week of Times-sponsored competition. LeBold qualified for year-end rolloffs in men's fivepin category with series in Monday Majors League at Town and Country Lanes.

"Whaddyer mean' I should have told you? I told you weeks ago."

TO CHECK OUT ISLAND TALENT

Coaches of the North American Soccer League's Vancouver Whitecaps, impressed with last week's look at talent in the Vancouver Island League, are anxious to have another good look.

That has prompted Saturday's exhibition at Royal Athletic Park between the Whitecaps Reserves and an Island select.

Vancouver coach Tony Waiters and assistant Allan Hinton viewed premier division games in Victoria last weekend. Expressing their pleasure, they requested the exhibition.

The Vancouver lineup will include Victoria's Bob Bolitho as well as other Whitecap regulars.

The Island team, basically, will be a young one but Island officials have included some experience to "make it enjoyable."

Time For WHA to Fold — Hull

WINNIPEG (CP) — Veteran superstar Bobby Hull, the man usually credited with bringing credibility to the World Hockey Association, says the end of the young league after six seasons may be the best thing for hockey.

"I've always felt that the best thing for hockey was to have one league, providing the people with the best possible entertainment," Hull said Thursday. "I thought after the WHA started it would be only a matter of a few years before that happened.

"But the WHA has struggled along for six years now and the best thing that could happen is the WHA cease to operate and the good franchises in the WHA be allowed to join forces with the NHL."

Hull made the comments a day after the WHA owners agreed to allow Winnipeg Jets, and all other franchises, to seek entry into the NHL.

But at the same time Hull says he's not overly optimistic things will be any different from last summer when the NHL said it was interested in a merger with the WHA but then vetoed the idea in August.

"The only thing different this year is that there will not be lawsuits hanging over the heads of NHL governors," Hull said. "The NHL led the WHA down the garden path last year. Who's to say they wouldn't do it again?"

Hull said if the NHL does accept WHA clubs it will be through the merger of individual franchises in the two leagues and not expansion.

Hollett, Smith Top Trios

Randy Smith and Tim Hollett both scored three goals Thursday to spark Fuller Lake to an 11-9 victory over Oak Bay Trios in the Flyers' final tuneup before the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League playoffs.

Flyers and Saanich Braves open a best-of-seven series for the league championship at Pearkes Arena on Tuesday.

Hollett, the league's top pointgetter with 111, boosted his goals total to 43, six fewer than Victoria's Wayne Proceviat, the league's top goalgetter.

A's Take Second

Victoria Athletics have wrapped up second place in the South Island Big Six Hockey League after skating to a 6-2 victory over Chemainus Blues on Thursday.

Bryon Preston and Ross Swanton each scored two goals to spark Athletics' victory at Pearkes Arena. Gord Neilson and Brian Hamilton connected for the other goals while Doug Lafleur and Pete Lemon replied for Chemainus.

Athletics rained 44 shots at Vic Malli in the Blues' goal while Jim Henry had to make only 19 saves.

FROZEN ASSETS DRAWS LARGE ENTRY

A Dinghy Race of Distinction

One of the most popular dinghy regattas of the season takes place at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club this weekend.

Around 50 Laser sailors are expected to take part in the Frozen Assets Regatta, coming from all parts of British Columbia and Washington.

Locally, students from the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific and the University of Victoria's sailing club will be among those on the racing circuit.

In addition, at least 10 two-man crews are expected to compete in Tasars.

Weather permitting, there will be six races with one throw-out. Racing begins at noon on Saturday and 10 a.m. the following day.

The club's Laser enthusiasts had another three series races on Saturday which provided a good warmup for this weekend's activities. Doug Taylor-Lee, Kim Hellwig and Charles Simpson led the fleet the first time around. In the second race it was Charles, followed by Chris Anstey and Dave Teece. Doug also won the third race, edging out Doug Gray and Dave for top honors.

When they're not racing their own dinghies a lot of the Laser sailors crew on keel boats of the RVYC and the Turkey Head Sailing Association. So, because of this weekend's regatta the THSA has cancelled its two around-the-buoys races on Sunday.

Several THSA boats were out last Sunday for RVYC's 12-miler to Zero Rock and back. Flukey light winds combined with fog to test the skills and patience of navigators and crews.

Roland Bremner's Reality was over-all winner in division one. After her came Greg Oliver's The Distant Drummer, Ted Trenholme's Impatience and Steve Merriman's Country Style.

In division two it was Gerry Howell-Jones' Sian, followed by Dennis Robinson's Hobo, Peter Young's Spice and Gary Jacobi's Salty Dream.

RVYC's Cal 20 fleet will host the Canadian nationals for the third consecutive year this summer. Although only using main and jib when racing one-design, the Cal 20 fleet has agreed to allow the use of spinnakers for two of its series races this season. A spinnaker race has been set for 1 p.m. Saturday.

Ed Life's Semiramis was first boat home in last Sunday's race. After her came John Martin's Refuge, Harry Marshall's Tongariro, Frank Cushion's Por Gusto, Les Ayer's L'Acadie, Peter Fisher's Klahanie and Ward Palmer's Calindigo.

The Canoe Bay Sailing Club will hold another six-miler in waters off Sidney on Saturday, the start being at 1 p.m. in the vicinity of the government wharf at the foot of Beacon Avenue.

Forty-six boats were on the line when the club sailed the first of its 10½-mile Sidney Channel races on Sunday, which was won by Roger Vale's Temenos.

After her came Rory Morahan's Starwagon, Alan Dickinson's Viking, Jim Ross's Toogooloowoo, Louis Lindholm's Annie Cadby, Gordie Inglis' Water Mellon, Kevin McCullough's Vagrant, Rick Baldwin's Summersalt, Cam Thomson's Cal Lori and Bert Buchanan's Lairig Ghru.

The Victoria Canoe Club is planning a trip on the Sooke River this Sunday with things getting under way after the basic paddling session in the Victoria Crystal Pool. Stan Luzzi is arranging this sortie and you should give him a ring at 478-7262 to confirm the starting time.

Mothers Taught How to Play

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A course at Sir Sandford Fleming College is teaching 12 area mothers how to play with their pre-school children.

Daphne Ingram, instructor for the course, called playing and learning together, says the course not only gives mothers and their children a chance to socialize, but increases the mothers' awareness of their children and how to guide the children in their play.

The first half of the two-hour classes is spent in a playroom where mothers and children learn how to play with such common materials as finger paints and play-dough, recipes for which Mrs. Ingram keeps on file.

Mrs. Ingram said mothers are taught to allow the children to experiment on their own. Young children often are unable to follow complex models set by their parents and will reject a new play material in frustration if not allowed to explore it in their own way, she said.

The second half of the class is devoted to discussion among the mothers while the children are left in the playroom under supervision of college staff.

Mrs. Ingram said the mothers' session allows them to discuss problems and help each other find solutions to difficulties such as finding babysitters and teaching their children the concept of sharing.

The Great Monkey Marathon

VENICE, Fla. (AP) — Mike Corradino is the United States, maybe the world's, only licensed and bonded monkey catcher.

Right now he is looking after 115 "homeless and unwed monkeys." He was once up to 160.

The other day Eastern Airlines called him up: "We got a monkey for you. Come get it." Unsolicited, some guy in Pennsylvania had sent him a monkey.

"I get them from every state," said Mike, who is the unsalaried curator of the Florida Monkey Sanctuary, located on the 10 acres behind his house.

"It's the same old story. People buy a young monkey for a pet, then when it gets old and makes a mess or bites one of the kids, they want to get rid of it."

Mike was a disc jockey with WJRZ in Newark, N.J., who came South 10 years ago to get out of the rat race and instead ended up in the monkey marathon.

It started simply enough, like most domestic situation comedies.

Three days after they arrived in Florida his wife Maryjane wanted a pet monkey. So for $80, "including the cage," Linus, a cinnamon ring tail, came into their lives. Mike and Linus never hit it off.

Then one day the Humane Society called and asked if Mike was interested in buying a homeless monkey for $2, the base fee.

Next the county called and asked Mike if he would capture a monkey that someone had abandoned. One thing led to another and Mike, who was living downtown then, soon had 28 monkeys in his backyard.

He successfully petitioned the Sarasota County commission for $500 for a watergun to clean out the monkey cages, and thereby became the country's first official monkey catcher.

In his first little while on the job, Mike captured 70 monkeys, while working full time as a newspaperman with the Sun Coast Times. One of them, who had bitten five children, took three days to corral, with the dubious help of a woman who appeared on the scene and said she could tranquilize runaway monkeys with a primitive sexual dance.

"She lifted her skirt and began making weird gyrations," Mike recalled the dance. "The monkey fled in horror into the garage, where I managed to grab him with a great Lou Brock slide."

Another day a man called up with the anguished plea, "Come get this monkey before I kill it." It was a spider monkey that had all but wrecked the house, ripped out the telephone lines, torn up the upholstery and curtains and blocked up the plumbing by dropping stones in the toilet.

"Softly, softly catchee monkey," advised ancient simian lore. After three futile days with a net, Mike concocted what he called a "Monkey-toff cocktail, two parts vodka, one part peach nectar. It worked, but the totally bombed captive bellowed in his cage and pounded his chest like King Kong."

School Drama Teams Compete at Home

There is a new look this spring for the 30-year long unbroken tradition of the Greater Victoria Schools Drama Festival. Interest in the annual event remains high for students and teachers at many schools, particularly at the junior and senior secondary levels. Witness to this is the list of more than 30 plays in rehearsal for the 1978 event which begins Wednesday

This year's major changes in format will see all but six productions staged in the evening and most teams presenting their entries in their own schools instead of four or five schools hosting the rest as formerly. And instead of the Schools Drama Festival Association giving over-all advertising coverage, each school will be responsible for its own promotion, publicity material and tickets.

There is a definite advantage for teams in performing on their home ground where all facilities are familiar.

Adjudicator for the festival is well known director-actor Peter Mannering, who will face the enormous challenge of selecting from among the 30-plus plays nine which will be repeated in a showcase entitled Drama 78 at Oak Bay Junior Secondary School on the evenings of March 15, 16 and 17. These showcase programs take the place of the former single "Honor Performance" evening.

First presentation in the '78 festival will take place at North Saanich Middle School at 10:30 a.m., Wednesday. The only other daytime performances will be four entries from Lambrick Park and one from Macaulay elementary schools which will be performed on two afternoons.

Secondary plays will be presented as follows: Wednesday, Claremont at Claremont; Thursday, Cedar Hill at Cedar Hill; Friday, Glenlyon at Glenlyon; Monday, March 6, Oak Bay Senior and Junior at Oak Bay Junior; Tuesday, March 7, Oak Bay Junior and Senior at Oak Bay Senior; Wednesday, March 8, Victoria High, Esquimalt and Colquitz at Victoria High; Thursday, March 9, St.Michael's University at St.Michael's University; Friday, March 10, Reynolds Secondary at Reynolds; Saturday, March 11, Mount Douglas Secondary at Mount Douglas; Monday, March 13, Arbutus Junior Secondary at Arbutus; Tuesday, March 14, Lansdowne Secondary and Monterey Elementary at Lansdowne. All evening programs begin at 7:30.

200 EGG RACE BUFFS

The provincial museum has received more than 200 requests for entry forms for B.C.'s great egg race.

The race, sponsored by the museum, will be held April 15.

Museum director Yorke Edwards said applications have come from all parts of the province. One has also come from Washington State.

"The University of British Columbia asked for 50 forms," he said. "Other requests have come from Queen Charlotte city, Golden, Dawson Craeek, Cranbrooke, Revelstoke, Ashcroft, Vanderhoof and many other centres in the province."

"It is generating a lot of interest. But just how many people will participate will depend on how many forms are filled in and returned to the museum."

Contestants in the race must build a machine powered only by a rubber band and capable of transporting a raw egg over a given course without breaking.

The race originated in Toronto in 1976 and since then has spread to Britain and the United States. Winner of the B.C. race will eligible for an international egg race to be held in Toronto this summer.

$1M X-Ray Machine Eyed

Radiologists from Victoria General and Royal Jubilee Hospitals will meet the radiological council of the provincial health ministry next week to discuss a $1 million x-ray machine proposed for installation at Jubilee.

The sophisticated unit is a C.A.T. (Computerized Axial Tomography) scanner, which spins around the body of a patient, firing x-rays from every angle and at every point.

The Capital Regional District's hospital and health planning commission has approved RJH's application for the scanner.

But provincial government final approval is still required.

VGH administrator Jim Fair told the hospital board Thursday the hospital's radiologists would naturally like to have a scanner, but at this point they were concerned that criteria be set up to ensure it will be available to any patient in the area, regardless of which hospital receives the equipment.

Fair said VGH radiologists also want access to the scanner to improve their expertise.

While the scanners are available in the United States on an average of one to every 50,000 patients, in Canada the ratio is more like one to every 200,000 up to 500,000 patients, Fair said.

He said VGH wants to avoid the public hassles that have taken place between hospitals in other areas of Canada.

Fair said today the most important thing is to get the scanner for the Capital Regional District.

Once the new Helmcken Road hospital is in operation, Fair said an application for a scanner will be made for the new facility.

SMUGGLERS ON STRIKE

BARI, Italy (AP) — Cigarette smugglers are on strike in this Adriatic port. They distributed leaflets accusing legal retailers of cutting prices to wholesale levels and wiping out the smugglers' sales. Cigarette smuggling to avoid heavy taxes is a multi-million-dollar business in Italy, but police generally overlook small dealers and sidewalk vendors.

High-Gear Musical

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Anyone who has "a feelin' for the gears" and an urge toward the highway will find the appeal of Tamahnous Theatre's 18 Wheels irresistable.

But the compact musical show now at The Belfry has much more going for it than can be deduced from its subtitle — "a truckin' musical."

Author John Gray, who has also directed the show for the Vancouver company, has created a compact script in which the wit indeed has a soul, not only through its brevity (the show runs 80 minutes) but in the way it sends delicate probes into areas of human need and frustration.

It is performed with electrifying energy directed and defined with a discipline that was not achieved in the last Tamahnous Belfry performance, the satirical 84 Acres.

The country-blues score is affecting and compelling in its rhythmic, onward thrust and performed with tremendous vitality and skill by Bruce Ruddell on guitar with now-and-then sizzling switches to piano keyboard, and by Kelly Booth on bass guitar.

Ruddell also achieves momentary effective insertions into the action and never misses a beat in the frenzied tempo when flat on his back.

It is difficult to imagine a more accurate casting than is provided by Edward Astley, Stephen Miller and lovely Barbara Williams. These three provide consistent, sustained and, in the context of the piece, virtuosic performances.

Their voices carry the material well with their capability of belting out such passages as the "Overture" — Truckin' down the highway — and yet injecting moments of lyrical charm and unexpected touches of haunting color.

The characters and the rhymes are equally predictable — "Her name is Sadie, she's a helluva lady" and something about "when it's easy to work it gets easy to shirk." The substance is part corn and melodrama laced with gritty bits of hard truth and more than a little poignancy.

It zeroes in on the rough life of the independant trucker who frequently drives all night and is away from home for long stretches, yet never keeps financially abreast of the situation, and whose wife takes a lover to ease the pangs of loneliness. And on the waitress — Sadie — a small-town Nova Scotian whose pretty face inspired fair dreams but who is now past her prime and spending her time in a roadside beanery.

The buoyant, what-the-hell mood changes only once with the relating of a multi-vehicle, multi-fatality pile-up in a white-out on Highway 400.

The whole thing works beautifully as a genre piece; a folk musical that is tight and economical, neatly balanced in content, and in performance, warm, intense and funny.

The show repeats tonight and Saturday at 8 p.m.

LRB PROMISE ENDS WILDCAT WALKOUT

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — About 120 sawmill workers ended a six-day wildcat strike here Thursday when the Labor Relations Board promised an immediate investigation into complaints that a supervisor propositioned part-time women workers.

Lorne Scott, local president of the International Woodworkers of America, said the crew at Raven Lumber Ltd. voted 59 per cent in favor of returning to work on the condition that the board finish its inquiry by next Friday.

Board vice-president Jack Moore, head of the three-member panel which begins its investigation today, said he expects it to make a decision by next week.

Both union and management spokesman said they approve of the board's decision.

The work stoppage began when local women set up a picket line outside the mill after a woman complained that sexual advances by a foreman had forced her to quit her job.

The board had threatened to order the men back to work if they did not return voluntarily.

Since the first woman made the problem public, three others have come forward and related similar experiences with the same man dating back to August, 1976, Scott said.

The supervisor has denied the complaints.

Habitat Roof To Calgary

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some of the papier-mache roofing left over from Habitat will be shipped to Calgary for use in an information centre at a privately-organized Habitat and Beyond conference in October.

The roofing, made by school children, was used to cover an information centre in downtown Vancouver during the 1976 United Nations Habitat conference on human settlements.

Since Habitat ended, the papier mache, covered with glass-fibre, has been rotting in a hangar at Jericho Park, site of an alternate Habitat festival during the official Habitat.

Dennis Blue, an organizer of the salvage effort, said Thursday that about 30 of the 112 roof panels are useable.

Etna Shakes

CATANIA, Sicily (AP) — A series of earth tremors experts said were caused by activity inside volcanic Mount Etna shook the eastern part of this Mediterranean island Thursday evening. There were no reports of injuries.

Vancouver Figures Prove Team Policing: Blencoe

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

Statistics showing a dramatic drop in Vancouver crime rates are being used by Victoria Ald. Robin Blencoe to advocate a team policing system here.

Blencoe said Thursday that a recent Vancouver police report shows most crimes dropped significantly last year compared to the same period in 1976.

Murders were down by 20 per cent, assaults against police officers dropped 32.3 per cent, theft from motor vehicles fell 30 per cent, indecent assaults against females were down 14.5 per cent and robberies declined by 16 per cent.

Not all crime rates were down, however, with attempted murders increasing 93.3 per cent and indecent assaults against males climbing 48 per cent.

Blencoe said despite the drastic increases in a few areas the over-all rate is down significantly, and the introduction of team policing in Vancouver deserves the credit.

"And if it works in Vancouver with their crime rate it's just got to work here," he said.

In the team system, police officers are responsible for a 24-hour delivery of service to a defined geographical area, such as the James Bay district. Working under a team leader, the police stress face-to-face contact with the public and increased communication with community social agencies.

Blencoe produced the crime statistics during an interview to back up a report to city council that he released earlier this week.

In his report, compiled after spending three days observing the Vancouver system at work, Blencoe says team policing greatly increases police contact with a community, allowing for the practice of preventative measures.

Victoria's traditional system of patrolling and responding to crimes after the fact alienates police from the people they're protecting, he said.

"Under team policing the apprehension of the criminal is still the paramount concern, but it is recognized that a better way to combat crime is to get to the problems before they produce the trouble."

That philosophy should be of special interest to city hall at the moment, he said, because of increasing concerns over juvenile delinquincy problems.

Blencoe said team policing is a cost efficient system that could easily be applied in Victoria if the city were broken up into about five separate regions or communities.

Teams of eight to ten law enforcement officers would be assigned to each area.

"We've got a small enough area in Victoria that we can make it really work and we don't have the heavy crime here — at least not yet. If we could get into prevention now we could cut if off before it ever gets established."

Despite his public endorsement of the team system, however, Blencoe pulled up short of formally recommending its adoption in his report to council.

Blencoe said he will not officially propose the system for Victoria until he's had adequate feedback from neighborhood and community groups in the city.

"I believe policing is such an important matter that it's in everyone's mind and they should get a chance to tell me what they think. Besides, I don't want to do it all myself, I don't believe in that. I've done a bit of research and hopefully it will spark some discussion, will get people talking and get the community involved."

Blencoe admits he's having some trouble getting his message to the people, however, as he was turned down by city hall staff when he asked to have 50 copies of his report run off for distribution to community groups.

"I was told there's no provision for that sort of thing, that I'd have to go to committee and get my report approved first. What I want to know is if I can't get my report out to the community, how are we going to get different ideas disseminated?"

Blecoe said he's decided to have the reports printed at his own expense and then will approach the finance committee for reimbursement.

He added he also plans to complain to council about the present system that bars him from using city hall equipment to run off copies of a legitimate report.

Council Nod To Pay Hike

City council Thursday night voted itself a four-per-cent pay hike although aldermen couldn't agree on whether they are already making too much or not enough.

Before the boost went through Ald. Bill McElroy failed in an attempt to have the matter sent back to a full committee for thorough debate.

McElroy said he is opposed to a blanket increase because some aldermen don't work as hard as others and it isn't fair that they all get paid the same.

Mayor Mike Young, however, informed McElroy the Municipal Act forbids the city from discriminating among aldermen, so they all must get the same regardless of how much work they do.

McElroy said the current pay of about $8,000 a year isn't enough to live on if an alderman wants to devote all his time to civic duties. He quit his job after his election.

Final Thumbs - Down On Neighborhood Pub

A long battle to establish Victoria's first neighborhood pub ended Thursday night when city council gave Roger Mawdsley a final thumbs down on his plans for a James Bay watering hole.

For more than a year Mawdsley has been fighting for permission to turn an old house at 512 Simcoe into an English-style pub.

He's been to dozens of council meetings, at one point filing a writ in B.C. Supreme Court asking that one council ruling be quashed, and even got so far as dragging the mayor and alderman down to James Bay to meet area residents in a public hearing.

At Thursday night's meeting it became clear aldermen hadn't liked what they'd heard in James Bay and didn't want any more to do with Mawdsley's proposal.

When his application came up, Ald. Murray Glazier rose quickly and moved that the correspondence be received and filed.

Around City Hall that means it should be put on the shelf and forgotten.

Just to make his point clear, however, Glazier said: "I intend that to have the effect of ending the episode."

Glazier said he is convinced the pub would bring more problems than pleasure to James Bay.

The rest of council agreed, voting unanimously to file Mawdsley's application.

Ald. Bob Wright, however, said council could expect to hear more about 512 Simcoe because he had received an application from a woman who wants to lease the residence from Mawdsley and open a neighborhood club.

The club also wanted a liquor licence.

Evening Sessions

At a night meeting Thursday Victoria city council agreed to extend their trial period of evening sessions throughout March.

Council began to hold their meetings at night in January and have been getting increasingly good turn outs by the public.

★ BANG APPROVED AT LAUREL PT.

The noon cannon at Laurel Point got the go-ahead from Victoria city council Thursday night despite complaints from one alderman that it will awaken night shift workers.

Ald. Larry Ryan complained that the cannon, which is to be fired every day at lunch time, is going to disturb people who're usually at home trying to sleep

Ryan said hospital and mill workers have to rest during the day and he opposed it on behalf of night shift workers in the city.

Ald. Ron Mckenzie voiced objection too, saying he agreed with a woman who'd complained to him that cannons are a symbol of war and should be in a war museum.

Ald. John Hayes listened to the debate in silence and then threw up his arms in dismay.

"I just can't believe all this hysteria over another bloody bang," he said as council finally voted to give the cannon a trial run.

If the cannon proves to be bothersome, council agreed, it should be silenced.

YOUR PERSONALITY CHANGES YOUR LOOKS

BELLEVUE, Wash. (AP) — If you notice that your face has altered over the years, don't blame age — it could be your personality that has changed.

So say personologists who study the relationships between physical characteristics and personal traits.

"It sounds corny, but its true," says Nancy Ross. "Life makes its mark."

Personology teaches that people have "dominion" over their facial traits, that although people are subject to genetic inheritance and environmental influence, those traits can be changed.

But Earl Hunt, chairman of the University of Washington's psychology department, is skeptical about the claims personologists make.

"Taking physical traits . . . and asking people what a person with those traits is like is nothing more than trying to find a statistical validation for racial and ethnic stereotypes," said Hunt.

"It's equivalent to asking white South Africans if dark skin is indicative of lower intelligence. You'd statistically validate that it is, but all you're really proving is that white South Africans think it is."

Ms. Ross conducts seminars in personology for real estate brokers and other business persons, has advised lawyers on how to select sympathetic jurors and how to handle witnesses, and does personality analyses in a beauty salon here.

Personology, as Ms. Ross practises it, was developed in 1957 by Robert Whiteside, who founded the Interstate College of Personology near San Francisco.

Personologists say that persons with close-set eyes tend to be more analytical than those with wide-set eyes. Persons with high foreheads are more reserved than those with low foreheads. There are 66 other physical traits used in personology analysis.

"We believe the body and the person are one. That they are linked," Ms. Ross said. "Most psychologists — especially Freudians — seem to believe they are entirely separate."

It All Goes Right Back to Mother

By JUDY KLEMESRUD
New York Times

When Nancy Friday was in Chicago recently, she met a distraught 25-year-old woman who said she was considering calling off her engagement because her mother didn't like the young man she deeply loved and planned to marry.

Miss Friday wasn't a bit surprised. Instead, she nodded her head in sympathetic recognition. You see, Miss Friday has become something of an expert on mother-daughter relationships, after four years of interviewing more than 300 women across the country, plus experts in psychiatry and sociology, on the subject.

The result is her book, "My Mother—My Self," which probes the mother-daughter relationship and finds that among other things, a woman's relationship with her mother forms the bond from which women's identities take shape and their sexual selves are born. Another finding: that mother love isn't always as perfect as it's cracked up to be.

Commenting on the confused 25-year-old Chicago woman, Miss Friday said: "What she felt was pure terror. We all feel it in certain situations, because we're afraid of losing our mothers."

Miss Friday (it's her real name), who at 40 is as slim and stunning as a fashion model, was interviewed recently in the plant-filled Central Park West apartment she shares with her husband, William H. Manville, a fellow author.

And yes, she does love her mother, she said, with a slight smile, in answer to a question that a lot of people have been asking her these days after reading her book, which explores the lies, anger, frustration and guilt — as well as the genuine love that mothers and daughters share.

"One of the biggest mistakes mothers make, she said, "is trying to project a perfect mother image to their daughters. If the daughter doesn't get that feeling of perfect mother love, she begins to feel the fault must be in her, that she herself is somehow imperfect. I think it's the root of women's guilt."

This notion of perfect mother love binds daughters to their mothers, she said.

"We go home to visit and we tell ourselves: 'This time it's going to be better. This time we'll find the mother-daughter relationships she told us existed.' But we never do."

Miss Friday likened this kind of mother-daughter relationship to the situation of battered children.

"The battered child always wants to go back to the original battering mother," she said. "He blames himself for the situation, because of the idea of perfect mother love."

Miss Friday said she first got the idea for her book in 1971, but was discouraged by her male literary agent, he shoved her 40-page outline into a desk drawer and muttered, "What about father?" She then acquired a woman agent, who quickly sold the book to Delacorte Press.

"It's not that I didn't think father was important," Miss Friday says now. "I'm saying that unless father raised you, fed you, held you and toilet-trained you, he cannot set this emotional pattern of how you relate to yourself.

"What the book is saying," she went on, "is that it is really the relationship we have with mother that determines the pattern for the intimate relationships of our lives. This is where the pattern is set, and unless a woman understands that, she is not likely to try and change the pattern if life keeps sending her Mr. Rat again and again. Mr. Rat is often the result of a mother who wasn't an emotionally giving person."

Author Nancy Friday wasn't surprised

How Clean Is Clean?

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Just how clean is clean?

Research done in a hospital here on surgical scrub techniques proved there was no significant difference between the conventional 10-minute scrub and a scrub of only five minutes to degerm hands.

The study was conducted in the interest of time saving and cost efficiency by the departments of laboratories and surgery at Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Centre (LIJ).

Two hundred surgeons, scrub nurses and operating room technicians scrubbed by standard techniques, using sterile, individually packaged, disposable scrub brushes impregnated with antiseptic solution. They scoured hands and arms 10 minutes as hospital procedure requires.

A second group of 200 followed the same routine but scrubbed only five minutes.

Skin cultures were then taken from the hands of all those in each group so that the remaining micro-organisms could be counted.

The germs apparently didn't know how long they had been scrubbed, or didn't care, because the count was equal in both cases, reports Dr. Alex Stone, staff surgeon.

Stanley Given Boot

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A large tarantula named Stanley has been hustled out of his basement office quarters in the Iowa Capitol after he unnerved legislative employees who refused to use nearby desks.

Stanley was kept for several days in a sealed aquarium on a bookshelf next to the desk of his owner, Joseph Royce, an employee of the legislature's rules review committee.

"I just wanted a conversation piece at the office," said Royce, 28, who bought Stanley for $20 at a pet shop. "But I got more conversation than I wanted."

PASTRY RECIPE

The following recipe was inadvertently missing in Wednesday's Times:

HERB PASTRY

Mix 1½ cups sifted regular flour. ½ cup grated parmesan cheese, 1 tsp. garlic salt and 1 tsp. oregaon in a medium-sized bowl. Cut in ½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine until mixture is crumbly. Sprinkle 4 to 5 tbsp. cold water over, 1 tbsp. at a time, mixing lightly with a fork until pastry holds together and leaves side of bowl clean.

Heat Storage the Key

caveat emptor

By LYNNE GORDON

Zero fuel bills will be a reality when sunshine is our fuel. Solar heated houses may be "in" when a major obstacle is overcome — a compact way to store heat. Storage of heat is necessary to provide for cloudy days.

Solar houses built to date have the heat from the sun stored in huge insulated tanks of water that sometimes fill the whole basement; others use, instead of water, a big pit full of rocks.

The heat is first collected on the roof which is covered with double panels of glass or plastic. Water pipes between the panels are heated by the sun. The hot water flows down to the storage tank and from there is pumped through a heat exchanger. Circulating air used for heating the house is blown by a fan past the heat exchanger where it picks up heat. The water is then pumped back to the roof to be rewarmed.

Most solar houses built so far have been very expensive experimental models funded by governments — of Canada, the United States, and others all over the world.

Nick Nicholson of Ayer's Cliffe, Quebec, has designed and built several solar houses which are not exceedingly expensive, but they are only about 900 square feet in area. He thinks this size house is well suited to modern small families; the days of huge parties and dozens of house guests are long gone.

A solar house is very economical once you are over the considerable hurdle of the initial investment. In 10 or 20 years you may well be ahead when comparing the cost of building a solar house with the cost of fuel and maintenance of more conventional heating.

Solar heating has many advantages. Solar energy doesn't get used up, there is no air pollution and the equipment is likely to need very little upkeep.

A good book on the subject which is easy to understand and lists names of firms with solar heating experience is "The Sun Book," published by Pollution Probe, 53 Queen St., Suite 54, Ottawa, Ont. K1P 5C5.

Another heating method of the future is the heat pump. This is already developed and used but has not become popular yet. One factor is that heat pumps run on electricity, which at present is more expensive than oil or gas. With more development of nuclear energy this situation may be reversed.

The heat pump provides both heating in cold weather and air conditioning in hot. It has a freon coil in the central air duct system, similar to an air conditioner. In the winter the heat pump heats the coil and in summer its operation is reversed and the coil is kept cold.

To be worthwhile heat pumps should be kept running all year round. They are not economical for vacation homes which are used only occasionally.

A heat pump can provide all the heat needed in climates where the temperature doesn't go much below freezing. In most of Canada heat pumps would have to be considered supplementary heating, but would significantly save on the use of other fuel.

If you are going to put in central air conditioning, it would definitely be worth considering spending a few hundred dollars more to get a heat pump, but be sure the people who supply and install it know their business.

Balm for the Bedsores

TORONTO (CP) — A Swedish scientist's research into the healing of wounds has led to a new treatment for bedsores and ulcers.

Debrisan, now available in Canada, is a powdery substance that works by absorbing the fluid, bacteria and other debris in an infected wound., so that healing can take place.

Dr. William E. Pace, a dermatologist in London, Ont., who has used Debrisan, said in an interview that the material is not a remedy but is a help in the surface treatment of ulcer conditions.

"It is a useful adjunct and cannot do harm," he said. "It is not toxic and creates no sensitization."

Bedsores cost Canadians about $60 million a year and ulcers, such as the leg ulcers that occur in aged or debilitated persons with poor circulation, are also costly to treat. Despite antibiotics and modern treatment, many remain unhealed for days, weeks and sometimes years.

Debrisan was developed by the Swedish parent company of Pharmacia (Canada) Ltd. The scientist who worked with the material wanted a substance that would draw out and separate the infection in a wound and when he used it on a patient with an ulcer, he found that the material cleaned out the sore, leaving healthy skin suitable for grafting.

Mothers March Over Top

A total of $103,500 was raised by the Kinsmen's Mothers March campaign.

Mrs. Sheil Manifold, co-ordinator of the campaign which ran from Jan. 29-Feb. 4, said the total exceeded this year's objective by $3,500.

"Youth groups — Demolay, Job's Daughters, Student Nurses and the Sooke Girl's Club — helped us greatly in our work," she said.

She added that the B.C. Hotels Association promotion raised $2,500.

PARENTS ADD TO HANDICAP?

OTTAWA (CP) — Parents and teachers who spoil children with hearing problems are adding to their handicap, says an American speech pathologist and author.

Helen Beebe told members of Voice for Hearing Impaired Children that children with such problems need special disciplining if they are to achieve their full potential.

"And the poor-little-deaf-girl syndrome has to be avoided at all costs."

A teacher of deaf children before hearing aids were invented, Mrs. Beebe said at her clinic in Pennsylvania the children are forced to use what residual hearing they have without lip-reading.

She said the children are encouraged to enjoy reading and develop a sense of humor.

Mrs. Beebe cited early detection of hearing impairment, proper fitting of hearing aids, intensive training to force use of residual hearing, full family involvement, therapy on a one-to-one basis and good disciplining as the main techniques to overcoming hearing disabilities.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

MAKE A WINDOW REFRIGERATOR

Although few people these days live without electricity, there are times when weather conditions cut off the "juice" for long periods of time. If such powerless stretches are common in your area, you might want to make a version of the old-fashioned window refrigerator to keep perishables cool in the colder months.

Take a stout wooden box and — with hinges — attach a lid. Then drive a nail into one end of the cover and another into the same end of the box. A chain fastened between the nails will keep the lid from falling backwards whenopened.

For ventilation, drill a small hole in each end of the cooler and cover the openings with wire screen or cheesecloth. It's also wise to tack a piece of waterproof material over the top to keep out rain.

Mount the cooler outside on one of the kitchen windowsills (with braces propped against the side of the house). That way, when you want some refrigerated goodies, you just open the window and reach in!

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: After being married for 19 years to the only woman I ever loved, God took her from me. We had always wanted a child, but she couldn't have any.

A year later I married a girl to give her child a name. Goldie was 18 and I was 41. She never tried to fool me. She told me right away that she was carrying another man's child. She was sweet, very shy and beautiful in my eyes, and I learned to love her.

I was looking forward to being a father but God didn't will it because the baby was born dead.

To make a long story short, I found out that the baby I had wanted so much belonged to her own father! That's not all, Abby. That was the SECOND baby she had had by him. (She gave the first one away.)

Here's the problem. Goldie and I now have a healthy baby boy of our own who means the world to me, but since I found out about the two babies she had by her own father I can't stand the sight of her!

If I kick her out, she'll take my son with her, and I'd rather see him dead than raised by a slut like her.

Please tell me what to do. I'm too ashamed to talk to my priest. BROKENHEARTED

DEAR BROKENHEARTED: It's unfair to blame Goldie for having been impregnated by her father. She was the victim, not the guilty party. Talk to your priest and get some professional counselling. You need to sort out your thoughts in order to view the situation fairly and objectively.

There is no reason to give up your son or your marriage. I recommend counselling for Goldie, too. The poor woman has obviously suffered a great deal. She needs compassion — not condemnation. Please try to save your marriage. And write again to let me know your decision. I care.

DEAR ABBY: Should a teen-aged girl accept a blind date with a fellow who calls her up and says he has "seen her somewhere," but she doesn't know anything about him? How about when someone she knows calls and asks her to accept a date with a third party? He could be real neat, but he could also be a creep. Is there some rule a girl can go by? TROUBLED TEEN

DEAR TEEN: If a boy calls and says he has "seen" you, unless you can check him out with a mutual friend, skip him. If someone you know calls, wanting to arrange a blind date, consider the go-between. If he's a solid citizen, say yes. (It's only a date, not a year's contract.)

DEAR ABBY: There's a guy in our office who is nosy to the point of looking over my shoulder while I'm writing a cheque. He also will pick up and read anything that happens to be on my desk.

While one of our co-workers was on vacation, his personal mail was stacked up on his desk. Mr. Nosy went through all the mail and commented to the rest of us, "Gee, Mr. Bigshot sure has a lot of bills!"

How does one handle such rudeness? PERTURBED

DEAR PERTURBED: Good manners, taste, tact and respect for the privacy of others are almost impossible to teach those who have developed tasteless, tactless and nosy habits. So if it's privacy you want, keep everything of a personal nature out of sight.

The Pizza Junkies Are Future Fatties

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Many of my readers have expressed interest in a monthly periodical, Real World, which is devoted entirely to the world of the adolescent. Their social problems, their planning for the future, the pressures upon them during the formative years, their interpersonal relationships, their attitude towards family, parents, and teachers, and their unique emotional and physical problems all come up for discussion in Real World.

More information about this magazine-periodical can be obtained by writing directly to King Features Syndicate at 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017.

A letter written to me in care of Real World was from Karyn L., a teen-ager who presented this problem:

"My friends and I load up with junk food when we get out of school. After the pizza, frankfurters, and French fries, I can barely get my dinner down. My mom gets furious, but it's so hard to resist when all your friends are at the pizza place. My question is: Do teen-agers' bodies need food that is different from grown-ups? All this junk food seems to agree with me although I am gaining weight."

To Karen I wrote, "Most teen-agers rarely give any thought to the junk food with which they stuff themselves. It's good to know that you are at least aware of the nutritional deficiencies that can come with careless eating.

"It's a mistaken notion that junk foods are not fattening. You've already found that out. The weight you gain is based on the number of calories you eat, regardless of the kind of food or the nutritional value of the food itself. The food that you eat at the pizza place depresses your dinner appetite, but it happens to be loaded with calories — which is the reason that you gain weight.

"Don't forget the prime rule of weight control: When the calories we eat are more than the calories we expend at work, exercise, or active play, we gain weight. The reverse is also true. That is, if we use up more calories in activities than we consume in food, then we lose weight. Only with unusual thyroid or other metabolic conditions does this rule not apply.

"During this period of your life, parents don't have as much control over your eating habits as they did when you were younger. You eat fewer meals with the family and more with friends outside the home. Consequently, it's a great temptation to fall into bad eating habits.

"This means that now you must assume some of the responsibilities for proper eating. Your health, your energy and your proper growth depend on it."

PLANT CHECK

CHICAGO (AP) — A worldwide survey is checking folklore and other reports on more than 5,000 species of plants that might be useful in fertility control.

Dr. Norman R. Farnsworth, pharmacologist of the Univsrsity of Illinois Medical Centre, said a computer is analysing all the information.

He said one reason for looking at plants is that primitive people, apparently used various plant extracts successfully for birth control.

'WOMEN STRONGER'

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Ashley Montagu, the British anthropologist, was in Rhode Island this week to expound on his theory that women are smarter and stronger than men.

Montagu told students at Rhode Island College that men are "muscularly more powerful" only because they have larger and coarser bones. Women, says Montagu, live longer and get sick less often, and that makes them the stronger sex.

As for IQ, the anthroplogist conceded women haven't produced as many masterpieces in art and music because they haven't had the same opportunities as men. But "women's intuition" makes them brighter than men.

The Bridge Expert

I recently received a letter from a reader who wanted to know whether North or South was responsible for the failure to arrive at a game contract in today's deal. The hand came up in a rubber-bridge game.

Both sides vulnerable.
South deals.

NORTH
♠ K 7 4 2
♡ 8 6 3
◇ A 9 6 3

WEST
♠ Q 5
♡ A J 10 2
◇ K Q J 10 7

♠ J
♡ K Q 9 4

SOUTH
♠ A 10 9 8 6 3
♣ A Q 5

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ◇	2 ♠	3 ♣
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♡.

As is evident, at a four-spade contract South's only losers would have been two hearts and one diamond (a successful club finesse, and the ruffing of South's third club by dummy would have avoided the loss of any club tricks).

In my opinion, the failure to arrive at a game must be placed squarely on South's shoulders, since North's single raise was proper. While it is true that South, for his opening bid, had only 10 high-card points, he failed to appreciate that his hand had increased in value as the bidding progressed. Let us look at the setup from South's point of view.

When North raised to two spades, he rated to have four-card support. Thus South, who had started with an indeterminate number of spade winners, could now count on a minimum of five spade winners (with ten spades in the combined hands). And if North happened to have the spade king, six spade tricks figured to be made (as was the actual case).

And so South should not have passed when East bid three clubs. He should have bid three spades; and even the aggressive bid of four spades would not have been subject to any criticism, since his queen of clubs figured to be a winner. Had South bid three spades, then North, with perhaps a figurative shrug of the shoulders, would have raised to four spades (his hand was worth eight points, counting distribution).

Thus, as the bidding developed, East "stole" the contract at three clubs. In the play, his only losers were two club tricks, one diamond and one spade. The result was a fulfilled contract.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, February 25

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Lie low — be positive concerning legal rights and permissions. Emphasis on responsibility, obstacles, challenges, older persons who want things their own way. One in authority will back you. Wait, listen, observe and learn.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Indirect approach is best — obtain hint from Aries message. Stop-and-go signals are in evidence. Key is to heed them, to time them and to make them work for you. This will be clarified. You are going to get credit, recognition due, but there will be a delay. Patience!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Good lunar aspect coincides today with change of scenery, participation in creative project, intensified relationship. Young person seeks your counsel. Be reasonable. Apply standards, not restrictions. New start, contact could bring love into your life.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Check tendency to overreact; maintain balance, steady pace, adhere to factual information. Aquarius person plays significant role. Older person wants you to succeed, but you will have to confide, to make clear your hopes, aspirations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be flexible, open to fresh methods, concepts. Forces tend to be scattered — be versatile, not confused. Talkative relative attempts to intimidate. Realize that words that come trippingly off the tongue are not backed by solid thought processes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on financial picture, specifics, details, judgments involving basic security. You learn lessons concerning fine print and what is written between the lines. Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio could figure prominently. In matters of speculation, stick to number 4.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Cycle high — move ahead, present views in direct, dynamic fashion. You gain supporters — and detractors. Envy figures prominently. Affair of heart is part of scenario. You attract favorable attention — those who previously were unavailable are now ready, willing and able to listen and aid.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Make adjustments at home base. Marital status, communication, business arrangements grab spotlight. Check areas usually neglected or taken for granted. Be in touch with one in hospital or confined to restricted area.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A gregarious friend exudes charm but very little information of value. Be sceptical. Member of opposite sex praises, flatters, but don't bank too much on durability. Means be light, not heavy. Frankly, on this day appearances are deceiving.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Handle added pressure, responsibility with aplomb. You need not take back seat—another Capricorn and a Cancer figure in scenario. Emphasis on making room for yourself at top, garnering rewards, asserting needs and obtaining them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis on journey, distance, communication — getting rid of a burden. Yes, it is time for you to take cold plunge into future. Get off sidelines of past. Make room for yourself in the present — you are due for an accolade from a very attractive source.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Love dominates — emotions confuse logic. If married, you rediscover mate. If single, you are rocked on your heels by confrontation. Married or single, you embark on adventure, gain confidence and find ways of increasing financial security.

IF FEBRUARY 25 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are perfectionist, sensitive, psychic, creative and introspective. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in your life. Last month was memorable — October also will be significant. This is a seed-planting year, a time of preparation. Efforts will bear fruit, but you need patience and persistence. Relationship is tested — if it lasts, you can be assured it will survive almost any situation.

FUN WITH FIGURES

"You didn't get so much after all," said Charlie, putting the last package on the table, and picking the check from the bottom of the bag. "D'you want this?"

"Not me," Betty replied. "But it shows where the money goes."

Charlie glanced at the slip of paper. "$16.64 in all, but it's a funny list," he commented. "Each item is exactly one cent more than the item above."

How much was the cheapest item on the list?

(Answer Monday)

Yesterday's answer: THIRTY was 154018.

Ghost Town Fears For Stewart

STEWART (CP) — The Granduc copper mine, the sole industry at this isolated northwest British Columbia town of 1,500 people, will be shut down June 30.

"It will be B.C.'s newest ghost town," Mayor Ian McLeod said when told Thursday of the closure.

McLeod said the shutdown would mean 325 employees would be laid off, virtually decimating the town's labor force.

The closure is due to economic conditions, Ralph Madsen, vice-president in charge of mine operations, said Thursday.

Production and development have been curtailed since 1975 in an effort to keep the mine in production, Madsen said. Despite this, the mine continued to lose money due to low copper prices.

"About three years ago the mine laid off half of its 800 workers, so we've been on this road before," McLeod said. "The 400 just went off across the country and got other jobs, so there wasn't any hanging around and crying about it."

That's just what McLeod thinks the remaining mine workers will do fatally damaging much of the remaining service industry in the area.

McLeod, who owns a hotel employing 25 people, said he probably would be forced to cut the staff to five.

John Lundquist, spokesman for the four unions representing workers at the mine, said new development is currently being carried out, but could not be brought into production for two years.

Harvey Parliament, president of Newmont Mines Ltd., which operates Granduc, said the company discussed the matter with union officials last November.

"I told them we couldn't tell them much, but we promised they'd be at work at least until after Christmas and at least they got that much," he said. "We're trying to hang on there — we've been hanging on for a year and a half and losing a hell of a lot of money.

Meanwhile, Cominco announced Thursday that a lack of ore will shut down its H. B. lead-zinc mine, 11 kilometres east of Salmo, by the end of August.

All 110 employees will be offered jobs at other Cominco operations, said Cominco spokesman Keith Meyer.

A news release issued by Newmont Mines Ltd. and ASARCO Incorporated outlines the company's ongoing economic problems, dating back almost as far as its start-up in 1970.

"Since the first part of 1975, in an effort to keep the mine open in the face of the continued severely depressed copper market, mine development and the rate of production have been curtailed," the release said.

"During this period the Granduc Mine sustained substantial losses."

Parliament said Granduc was able to overcome enormous operating difficulties at the Stewart site, such as tunnelling 17½ kilometres under three glaciers to bring out copper ore. But its economic problems intensified and in 1975 production was cut by 50 per cent to 4,000 tons of ore per day.

JUST BARE CONTEMPT

WINNIPEG (CP) — A 28-year-old man was jailed for contempt of court Thursday after he ignored a judge's request for him to button his shirt.

Wayne Winston Clarke of no fixed address appeared before Provincial Judge Robert Trudel on a charge of creating a disturbance with his shirt unbuttoned to his mid-section.

And he refused to heed several requests from the judge to button his shirt.

Finally, Judge Trudel sentenced to 30 days in jail for contempt of court.

Camosun In Urgent Cash Plea

An urgent request to the education ministry for funds to keep Camosun College open was made by the college council Thursday night.

A major housecleaning ordered by the Saanich fire marshal could close Camosun College's Lansdowne campus in June, chairman Janet Baird said today.

His order last month to sweep corridors clean of study stations, photo copiers and other material means the already-crowded campus must find another 7,000 square feet of space, Baird said.

The council is complying with the order and during an inspection Wednesday, was given permission to keep the campus open until June, provided all halls are cleared.

The college hopes to rent or lease space from Greater Victoria School District.

Baird said to obtain rooms in the media wing of the district's Paul Building or portable classrooms, the board must exceed the portion of the budget allocated for rent and lease arrangements.

Education Minister Pat McGeer must approve before the overrun can be authorized by the college council, she said.

She said after the June deadline there is a real possibility the campus will be ordered to close if the space problem is not solved.

Even if the college isn't ordered to close, it will have to start cutting programs in September.

Approval Split For Gas Pipe

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to allow construction of a 2,800-mile pipeline to move Alaska natural gas through Canada to U.S. markets received approval in principle Thursday in a split Commons vote.

The New Democratic Party voted against the Liberal, Progressive Conservative and Social Credit parties in a vain attempt to build in minimum guarantees for Canadian content for the $10-billion line.

The New Democrats said the government — in negotiations with the United States — had not protected Canadian interests by securing guarantees of major Canadian participation in construction of sections passing through the Yukon, British Columbia and Alberta.

They said that without those guarantees, foreign companies would likely pick off one-third of the contracts.

NDP leader ED Broadbent said the agreement "should have provided Canadians with an exclusive right to the production of steel and the construction of the pipeline."

Instead, he told the Commons, the agreement said only that Canadian steel companies were guaranteed the right to compete for contracts to supply the 56-inch-wide, half-inch thick pipe for the line.

"I consider that clause to be a sell-out clause," Broadbent said.

An NDP amendment to send the bill to a special Commons pipeline committee for addition of participation guarantees was defeated 146-11 with only the NDP voting in favor.

The vote on second reading — signifying approval of the bill in principle — was passed by the same margin but this time with the NDP in opposition.

The Conservatives say they consider the pipeline too important to be delayed and so voted in favor of it on second reading.

But some party members argued during the initial debate that there should be guarantees and the party has said it will take a list of changes it wants made into committee.

Chief among those changes is provision for a quarterly review of the huge project by a parliamentary committee. The bill would create a special monitoring agency with wide power to regulate work done in Canada, but the Conservatives want to be able to keep an eye on this agency.

The Liberals say the pipeline, in addition to transporting gas to U.S. markets, would allow Canadians cheap access to natural gas in the Mackenzie River delta.

A spur line along the Dempster Highway to connect with the pipeline is being considered and the bill calls for construction of a 54-inch line, beginning at Whitehorse, to carry the extra gas. The line to that point would be only 48 inches.

There have already been complaints in the United States that the extra-size pipe would cost U.S. consumers millions of dollars.

Deputy Prime Minister Allan MacEachen spoke for more than an hour Thursday defending the pipeline deal with the U.S.

He said the NDP had gone on at great lengths about how the government had been "out-slickered by those shrewd Yankee traders."

"I have been waiting in the course of the debate to find out where we have been outslickered," he said. "I find it interesting that in the U.S. Congress they are saying the same thing but in the opposite direction."

MacEachen said that although the bill did not have specific guarantees for Canadian content, Foothills Pipe Line (Yukon) Ltd., builder of the line, had assured the government it intended to buy Canadian.

In addition, procurement plans had to be submitted to the monitoring agency and could be rejected.

Any foreign bid on materials for the pipeline that appeared to indicate dumping at unreasonably low prices could also be rejected.

Top DREE Man Stays Mum

OTTAWA (CP) — A senior official of the department of regional economic expansion (DREE) refused Thursday, despite repeated questions from a Senate committee investigating his department, to divulge confidential departmental information.

Deputy minister Douglas Love would not tell the committee on national financing the names of private companies which had project proposals rejected by DREE.

Love said the department makes public company names only when applications for funding are accepted. Names of all other companies remained confidential.

Gillespie Cooling Refinery Project

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie cast some doubt Thursday on a heavy-oil refinery held out last week as a source of new employment.

Gillespie told a Commons resources committee meeting that the private company involved, Husky Oil Ltd., had not made it clear it is willing to assure enough heavy oil to feed a refinery.

Last week at the federal-provincial economic conference, provincial premiers were told by Gillespie the plant would provide jobs for 20,000 man-years — one man-year provides a job for one man for one year.

At the end of the conference, it was one of two projects agreed on by the prime minister and the premiers. A communique said Ottawa and Saskatchewan would jointly participate with the private sector in development of the plant.

Don Mazankowski (PC—Vegreville) asked "what right the minister had to make the kind of proclamation" since development of the plant was not assured.

Gillespie said all he could add was that if the governments can't get a commitment from Husky, they will have to look elsewhere for sources of heavy oil.

What's In a Name. . .?

OTTAWA (CP) — Question: How can you prove a minister is lying when you can't even call him a liar?

The question was posed in the Commons Thursday as Conservative Allan Lawrence withdrew a statement calling Finance Minister Jean Chretien a liar — a banned unparliamentary word.

He did this in a manner that made clear that he still considers the minister deliberately misled MPs when talking about the dollar Tuesday.

This is what it's all about:

On Wednesday night Lawrence (Northumberland-Durham) said the minister lied when he said the government is not supporting the Canadian dollar on world money markets.

He said Chretien had intentionally, deliberately, overtly and openly misled the House.

The MP said in the Commons Thursday he used the unparliamentary language purposely because he wanted the government to protest that Chretien's privileges as an MP were violated. He hoped it would demand that the whole matter be sent to the Commons committee dealing with MP's privileges.

Faced with demands that he withdraw, he did so. But he asked that Speaker James Jerome consider a proposition of his that there should be committee discussion of his charges.

Jerome expressed some sympathy and said he would make a ruling next week.

Fat Years Over Ottawa Warns

VANCOUVER (CP) — The fat years for energy in Canada have ended and the future will bring continually-rising prices for gasoline, home heat and industrial energy, G. M. McNabb, federal deputy minister of energy, mines and resources, said Thursday.

"Stripped to its bare essentials, the energy crisis means we must wean ourselves from our heavy petroleum diet — 64 per cent of Canada's energy needs in 1977 — before the world's appetite for oil outstrips the world's ability to produce it," he told an energy seminar.

"That may happen as early as the late 1980s.

"New technologies will not meet our pre-1990 requirements, although they will make a contribution," he said.

William Strachan, manager of the oil import conservation program for the ministry, said he is not entirely pessimistic about new oil and gas discoveries in Canada.

"Higher domestic prices, fiscal incentives and provincial programs have led to a dramatic increase in exploration with about 6,300 wells drilled in 1977," he said.

Women Battle Ouster Order

By JIM ROBB
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Nine Jamaican women who are landed immigrants in Canada and have been gainfully employed here for some years brought their case to Ottawa Thursday in an attempt to stave off deportation proceedings.

They face deportation because of failure to tell Canadian immigration authorities they had children when admitted as domestic workers, under an agreement between this country and Jamaica that dates back to the 1950s.

Elaine Peart, who has three children, and has lived and worked in Canada for several years, said she faces poverty and permanent unemployment if she is shipped back.

She said all nine women are gainfully employed and have never been a charge on the Canadian government. None has ever drawn a welfare cheque, she said.

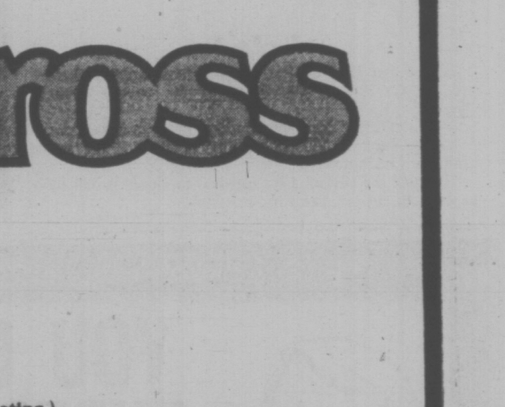
David Jacobs, of the International Committee Against Racism, who accompanied the women from Torontoo, said the government started to move against the women two years ago.

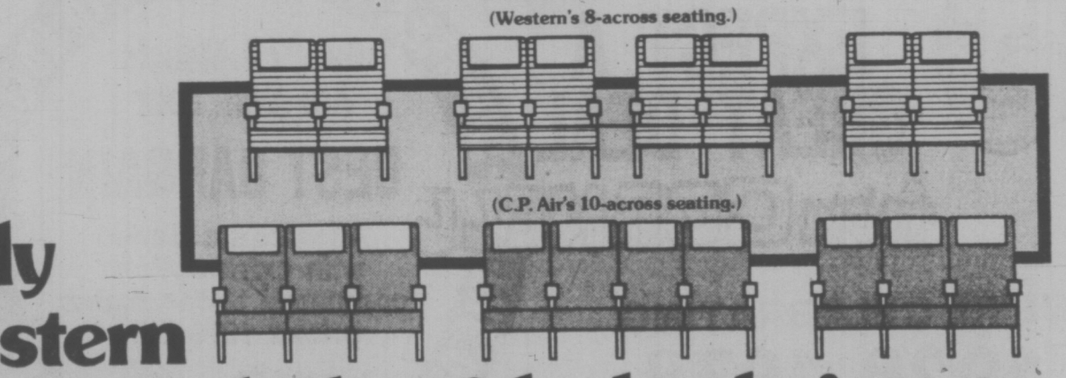
He charged the crackdown was racially motivated and was related to the growing inability of many well-to-do Canadian families to employ domestic because of poor economic conditions.

It amounts to "scapegoating immigrants" for the recession, he said.

Jacobs said the women told him that Jamaican and Canadian officials counselled them not to mention the children when they were in the process of being admitted as landed immigrants.

Two of the women face deportation a week from now, and Ms. Peart will learn today the date she is to be deported, from immigration authorities in Toronto.





You get more room on Western because our DC-10 Spaceships, departing every day, give you extra inches to make you extra comfortable on the way to Hawaii.

You see, in Coach we've got fewer seats across in our wide-body jets than C.P. Air has in its 747.

Our seats are also wider than theirs. And all of ours are in pairs, so you're never more than one seat away from an aisle.

But we not only give you more comfort, we also give you our famous Islander Service® — a taste of Hawaii on the way to Hawaii. With extras like complimentary beverages. And a choice of entrees.

So come fly Western to Hawaii. You'll go across with more of everything, including more comfort!

Get the Best with Canna

Canna is a showy tropical plant seen in sunny warm gardens on the coast, and then only if started into growth early indoors.

The foliage is bold and broad, the leaves being either a lustrous green with a hint of yellow or a deep purplish plum red.

Canna flowers have been likened to those of the gladiolus, but this similarity is scarcely valid, for they are smaller and in shorter, more stubby spikes just above the leaves.

In a boarder or bed late in a sunny summer, these plants make a fine show. I am sure Beacon Hill Park has succeeded with cannas in some season; even without flowers the plants are admired.

Seeds are listed in some catalogs and appear in seed rack displays. Late February is the time to sow for they need several weeks of growing in the warmth of a sunny porch or heated greenhouse. The plants will do no growing outdoors until nights are at least mild and days are warm.

The seeds are hard-shelled so it is recommended to pierce each shell with a darning needle, then soak in warm water at least 24 hours to start swelling.

Take a rather flat pot about 5 inches diameter, fill to within a half-inch of the rim with sandy humus over a half-inch of rough stones or pot crocking for drainage. Sow the canna seeds singly at one-inch intervals around the edge, continuing in a spiral to the centre. In this way each seed has space. You may have 10 or 12 seeds to a home gardener's size packet.

Colors may be anywhere in the range of the hybrids that have been raised in the past 40 years or so — yellow, red, ivory, salmon and scarlet.

Among your plants some may show the lovely, wide open flowers we associate with indoor Amaryllis (Hippeastrum), others will be smaller but all should be carefully grown on for two years to see the full potential of foliage and flowers.

From seed, when the second leaf is seen, each seedling must be put into a three-inch pot of sandy humusy soil. Roots are thick and fleshy as they develop and must not be broken, so that from a three-inch pot, transfer each young plant into a four-inch. During this time, give the plants a sunny warm porch window, or bench in greenhouse. Don't overwater, or you'll rot the roots.

If you have stored canna roots from last year, or buy a few from a garden centre now, plant each in a suitably large pot or in a can with drainage holes, and keep in a light warm place to make new roots and plenty of top growth.

The soil should be sandy loam; barely dampen the mixture throughout the pots before the root goes in and the pot is finaly filled to an inch below the rim.

After growth is well established, the soil must be always damp but never wet. Leaf stems must be transfered to the open garden with the hope of seeing flowers in late summer.

At the first light fall frost, lift the root clumps with some soil clinging and store in the same large pot or can with sifted sand to prevent complete drying out of the fleshy roots. Freedom from frost and an early indoor start are essentials for success with cannas.

39 PERSONALS

I KNOW YOU ARE THERE, THE trouble is finding you. You are as lonely at 25-40 years as I am at 47. You are feminine and a woman. Probably have been abused by men and are sick of it. I'm a divorced fisherman. I spend most of my life in a small isolated village on Vancouver Island. I'm creative and enjoy love, music, nature, writing, reading, walking hand in hand by the sea. I'm looking for you! One who enjoys the same sort of things. I am neither rich nor poor, depressed or eternally happy. If you have a heart, a mind, and an affection and can share these with someone such as me, then put me in your purse, walk around with me for a while, then write. What have you to lose? I'll reply as soon as I can. Captain Ahab. Victoria Press Box 261.

AREN'T YOU TIRED OF ALL those ads for good looking persons? Is it that important? Isn't the inside beauty of a person more important? If you agree maybe we could get together. I am looking for a gentleman, 55 to 65, intelligent and considerate. Victoria Press Box 257.

I have just listed this 8 yr. old, 1348 sq. ft. home on one of the nicest, quietest cul-de-sac streets I have seen in this city. All the homes are beautifully kept here. This home has that unique floor plan where the living room (1x14), separate formal dining room (11x10), and family kitchen are all on the front side of the home facing the neighbors' well-kept front yards. The three bedrooms are across the back for maximum privacy. Large ensuite master bedroom with walk-in closet. Downstairs has two more professionally finished bedrooms, washroom and 19x13 rec. room with second floor-to-ceiling fireplace. Personal reasons cause this lovely home to ve placed on the market at this time. Asking only $73,500. GEORGE WALL, 386-2955 or 477-0546.

HOW TO WRITE

A GOOD

CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc. for rent, or property for sale start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate

JUVENILE CURFEW 'FLAG AT A BULL'

Bringing in curfew laws to curb juvenile delinquents in Victoria would be like waving a red flag at a bull, the James Bay Residents' League (JBRL) said Thursday.

In opposing the possibility of a curfew law the association said it would aggravate the problem.

Last week Mayor Mike Young said he is considering responding to increasing juvenile delinquency by imposing a curfew.

But the JBRL says it doesn't want one in the community.

In a letter to the mayor and council, JBRL information officer Charles Ball said a curfew would simply aggravate an already sensitive situation.

He said there are only a few trouble-makers in James Bay and it would be unfair to punish all juveniles for the action of a minority.

"If a curfew were to be established in James Bay it would be no deterrent to those people who have no original interest in obeying the law. At the same time it would cause to alienate those young people who are not presently involved with the law, simply because they would by chance be caught up in the curfew net.

"Establishing a curfew in James Bay would be like waving a red flag in front of a bull. Delinquents would see it as one more opportuntiy to thwart the law."

Ball said the JBRL would prefer to see programs that stress prevention, such as team policing.

Mayor Young raised the possibility of a curfew after receiving complaints of juvenile delinquencies in the James Bay area. He said, however, that other regions of the city have also complained.

Young has asked police to provide him with an extensive report on the problem.

Carter to Coal Firms: Yield

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is sending the coal industry a message: Give in to United Mine Workers (UMW) contract demands or be prepared for presidential intervention in the coal strike.

As new strike-related layoffs were announced Thursday, the White House stepped up the pressure on the Bituminous Coal Operators Association (BCOA) to end the walkout.

President Carter met with three coal-state governors, all of whom emerged from the White House urging the industry to accept the miners' latest offer.

The U.S. Senate set aside an hour today to discuss the strike.

And Robert Strauss, White House special trade negotiator, is reported to be meeting with major steel companies owning coal mines, trying to persuade them to break with the BCOA and accept a contract reached independently by the UMW and one company.

Administration officials said the idea for the Senate session originated with the chamber's leadership. They said they are hoping it will increase pressure for a negotiated settlement.

In meetings with congressional leaders and the coal-state governors, Carter won support for intervention.

Aides said Carter will act by the weekend if no contract agreement is reached.

"We are talking about a small amount of time left before drastic action will be taken," said West Virginia Gov. Jay Rockefeller.

The only way for the strike to be resolved short of presidential intervention, Rockefeller said, is "for the operators to say yes to the PM contract."

The UMW reached a tentative contract accord on Monday with the Pittsburg and Midway Coal Mining Co., a major independent producer. The union's bargaining council, which must approve any contract, voted Wednesday to make the terms of the accord its "bottom line" for an industry-wide settlement.

The industry earlier this week rejected the contract as unacceptable, but a spokesman had no comment Thursday following the governor's statement.

Among Carter's options for government intervention are a declaration of a bargaining impasse, which officials believe would end industry-wide bargaining and facilitate company-by-company agreements, and seeking legislation to impose binding arbitration on the parties.

Appraisal Rate the Same For Private Car Insurance

The Insurance Corporation of B.C. will charge Royal Insurance about the same rates for damaged vehicle appraisals as a private appraiser, an ICBC spokesman said today.

Bob Egby, director of media relations, said ICBC claims centres will do appraisals on request for Royal Insurance of Canada and charge the private company $20 if the vehicle is driven into the centre and $25 if it is towed in.

Independent appraisers charge between $18 and $22, he said.

But New Westminister NDP MLA Dennis Cocke said "the $25 fee is a joke" considering what Royal gets for it.

"I am not at all satisfied with ICBC's explanation of the fee structure."

He said Royal is charged a negligible fee instead of having to set up its own claims centres.

"They don't need appraisers or staff. Everything is there for them."

Cocke said private companies shouldn't be allowed into the market unless they are willing to go the whole way on their own, or at least share in the development of claims centres and other facilities and provide part of the staff.

Egby said the agreement allows motor vehicle owners with Royal collision insurance to have appraisals done at ICBC claims centres if they wish.

He said they could go to private appraisers as well, but admitted there are few of them around today.

Cocke said the aspect of the private insurers that makes him most angry is the way they can "cream the best-risk customers off the top and leave all the iffy risks to the so-called competition (ICBC)."

He said Royal will be very careful in selecting potential customers and this will lead to higher ICBC rates.

Egby agreed that the creaming situation could exist to some extent, but added that all drivers have to get their basic insurance from ICBC. Royal is insuring only collision and comprehensive.

Coming Up: The Price

Coming up next on the Victoria Theatre Guild stage at Langham Court is Arthur Miller's fine searching play, The Price.

Under the direction of well-known Victoria actor and theatrical man-of-all-sorts, Adrian Jarvis, it will be seen from March 9 through 18. In the cast will be Robert Price, Jack Droy, Monica Jarvis and a newcomer to the scene, Victor Samoila, who has returned to Victoria after many years of theatre experience elsewhere.

Balance of the Theatre Guild season consists of a comedy, The Rape of the Belt by Benn Levy (April 20 — 29), and The Killing of Sister George by Frank Marcus (May 25 — June 3).

At the recent annual meeting, Jack Hopper, who is directing Rape of the Belt, was elected president. He comes to the post and to active participation in production with a considerable background of theatrical experience, particularly in Singapore where, with his wife, Joan, he was set designer and technical director in a number of classical and modern plays for the Singapore Stage Club, the Tanglin Players and Theatre World Association.

Others elected to office were Margaret Hall, vice-president; Neil Cumming, treasurer; Loraine Cumming, secretary; Mary Jane Scott, production chairman, and members-at-large, Angela Henry, Helen Smith and Tony Bukowiecki.

PROBATION AFTER BLAZE

A 19-year-old charged after the Tsartlip School, 7449 West Saanich, burned down in June, 1976, was given a year's probation Thursday in Victoria county court.

Carmen David Black pleaded guilty to wilfully causing a fire in the $200,000 blaze.

The Crown entered stays of proceedings on charges of breaking and entering and setting a fire at the school.

Judge E.J.C. Stewart was told Black had been drinking and went to the school after hours. While in the nurse's office he spilled some alcohol and set fire to it to see what would happen.

One of the conditions of sentence was that Black must perform 40 hours of community service work.

Mobile Park Approved

Sidney council Monday approved in principle a proposal by Leisure Villa Estates Ltd. to establish a 240-unit mobile home park on 38 acres of property in the southwest corner of the municipality.

A spokesman for the Vancouver firm said work on the project will start as soon as a land-use contract for the property is approved by council.

The land in question was in the agricultural land reserve, but council appealed to the B.C. Land Commission to release the land for the mobile home project.

The property borders North Saanich and the airport.

AMERICAN DREAM TURNED SOUR. . .

NEW YORK — On the outside, the home of Robert Rowe was a stately example of the American dream — a split-level $80,000 house with manicured lawn. Inside, neighbors say, it was a cauldron of conflict, where the spectre of failure haunted everything.

The neighbors heard nothing when Mary Rowe, 46, and her three children were beaten to death with a baseball bat allegedly wielded by Robert.

Police found him sitting by the kitchen stove with the gas running after neighbors reported the odor of gas. Police took Rowe to a hospital where he was expected to remain until his arraignment on murder charges. He was reported in fair condition.

Neighbors said Rowe, a lawyer, had been unemployed for some time. Several years ago he was taken to hospital after suffering a nervous collapse. He found himself unable to hang onto jobs, working for an insurance company and as a cab driver before he and his wife decided that he should run the house and she should go to work.

"This was a tragic case of role reversal," said Lisa Shaw, a neighbor and co-owner of a fuel-oil company where Mrs. Rowe worked as a secretary. "Bob was from the old school. He hated being home while Mary worked. He was not living up to his self image."

No Freedom For Charles

EDINBURGH — For want of two votes, the freedom of the city was lost to Prince Charles.

Eric Milligan said the the Queen's silver jubilee had seen quite enough "forelock-touching." He rallied fellow Laborites on the Conservative-controlled district council Thursday and the vote on a motion to make the prince an honorary citizen was 38-21, short of the required two-thirds majority.

Lord Provost (Mayor) Kenneth Borthwick told reporters he telephoned Buckingham Palace to say Charles, who already had indicated he would accept, would not be invited to become a freeman.

Borthwick said the vote has demeaned the Scottish capital in the eyes of the Royal Family.

Grammy winners Gayle and Rogers

Familiar Faces at Top

HOLLYWOOD — Last year was one of the biggest ever for Grammy Awards to newcomers in music, but it was mostly the familiar faces that picked up the top prizes in this year's show.

Barbra Streisand, who had not won a Grammy in a dozen years, was the surprise female pop singer of the year for her Evergreen, the theme from A Star is Born.

In another surprise, The Eagles won record of the year for Hotel California.

The group also won a Grammy for the arrangement on New Kid in Town, which took the award for best arrangement for voices.

Debby Boone said she was disappointed that You Light Up My Life did not win record of the year, but there was consolation for the teen-age daughter of singer Pat Boone — she took a Grammy as the best new artist of the year.

Another familar name, James Taylor, won his second Grammy, for best male pop artist with Handy Man. Taylor's other Grammy came in 1971 for You've Got a Friend.

The Bee Gees, who have been practising the art of pop since 1968, won their first Grammy, being named best pop group.

Fleetwood Mac, who had never won before, scored with Rumours, named album of the year. There was no surprise here, because the LP spent most of the year atop the pop charts.

In rhythm and blues, Thelma Houston won the female award for Don't Leave Me This Way, and Lou Rawls added a third Grammy to his collection, being named best male RB artist for Unmistakably Lou.

The best RB group Grammy went to the Emotions for Best of My Love, and the RB song of the year was You Make Me Feel Like Dancing, Leo Sayer's big hit, written with Vini Poncia. Best instrumental in the field was Q by the Brothers Johnson.

Kenny Rogers, who soared then flopped in pop in the late 1960s, turned to his first love, country, last year and scored big with Lucille. The catchy tear-jerker earned Rogers his first Grammy.

The country song of the year was Crystal Gayle's hit Don't it Make My Brown Eyes Blue.

Mamie On List For Home

WASHINGTON — Mamie Eisenhower, the 81-year-old widow of the late U.S. president, has applied for admission to a home for army widows and has been placed on a waiting list, a spokesman for the home said Thursday.

The spokesman said Mrs. Eisenhower was familiar with the waiting list procedure, and said she did not wish to use her position to gain preferential treatment.

Almost 300 women are on the waiting list for the home, which houses widows and mothers over 62 years of age of career army officers.

SO CLOSE AND YET. . .

LITTLE DIOMEDE, Alaska — Soviet writer Yuri Rytkheu, stranded on this tiny speck of rock in the Bering Straits, couldn't be much closer to home — or farther away.

Rytkheu, 48, flew to the island Saturday for a two-day visit. But poor flying conditions had extended the visit to six days by Thursday.

If not for the weather, Rytkheu could see his native Siberia.

And he could walk less than two miles across the frozen strait to the Soviet island of Big Diomede, except that no one is allowed to cross the frontier.

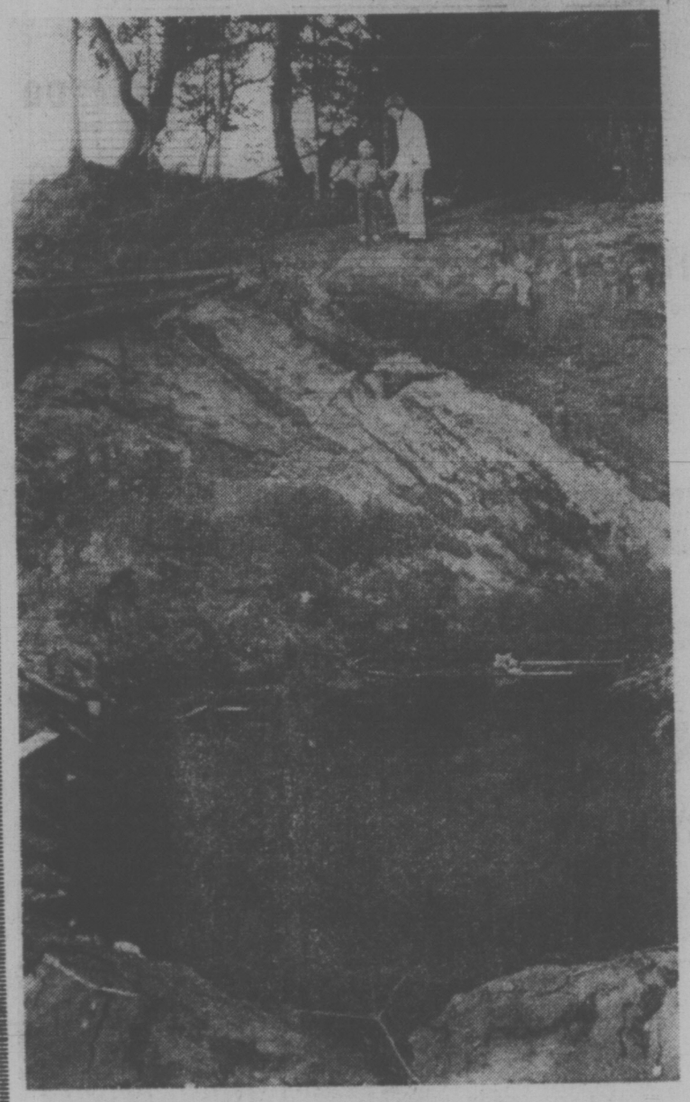
Five-Year-Old Hero Saves Sister's Life



Paul and his mother look at the scene of near tragedy

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Quick-thinking Paul Fournier is only five but he's a hero today in the eyes of his parents Ray and Bonnie Fournier and his three-year-old sister Karin.

Paul saved Karin's life Thursday afternoon when she fell into a deep pool in a gravel pit behind the family home at 3270 Galloway in Colwood.

"It amazes me he thought so fast," Mrs. Fournier said today.

Bill Young, Victoria representative of the Royal Life Saving Society, said today after being told of incident he will almost certainly recommend Paul for a special award.

He said when he gets the full details he will forward them to the society's awards committee in Vancouver.

The society hands out awards annually normally in November, at Government House.

If Paul is selected he would likely be the youngest recipient of the award in B.C.'s history.

Mrs. Fournier said Paul, Karin, and a friend Kenny Hardy, 4, were playing in the backyard when Karin tumbled over the edge of the pit and fell 20 feet into the water.

The youngsters saw Karin disappear under the surface and then bob up face down.

Mrs. Fournier said Paul scrambled down the bank taking off his clothes and waded in up to his armpits.

He removed a piece of a car bumper that had somehow become wedged over Karin's body and then stuggled to hold her head above water as he sank slowly in the mud.

Young Kenny, meanwhile, had run to get his father, Pete, who arrived moments later and carried Karin to safety.

"I don't know how to thank you," Mrs. Fournier said she told Hardy as he came to her door with Karin in his arms.

Karin was covered with mud, blue with cold and barely conscious.

"Don't thank me," Hardy replied. "It was your son who saved her life."

Mrs. Fournier said she put Karin in a hot bath but when she didn't respond she was taken by Langford ambulance to Royal Jubilee Hospital and admitted suffering shock and severe hypothermia.

She is in good condition today.

Mrs. Fournier said she has no idea how long Karin was in the water.

Before the children went out to play she said she told Paul, a kindergarten pupil at Wishart elementary school: "Stay out of water and don't get wet."

She said she believes the 'don't get wet' edict prompted Paul to remove his clothing before going in after his sister.

"It's lucky he did. He was wearing a heavy winter coat and the weight would have probably dragged him under."

She said the ordeal didn't really hit home to Paul until later in the night when she was settling him into bed.

"He looked up at me and said 'We kept sinking in the mud, Mom, we kept sinking in the mud.'"

She said area residents have been concerned about the pit for years and its danger for young children.

Mrs. Fournier said two years ago she asked the pit owners, Mattison and Patterson, to erect a fence around the property but nothing was ever done.

The pit has not been worked for some time and is now being used mainly for dumping unwanted fill and junk cars, she said.

JUST A PLOY?

Sudden Oil Port Death Surprise Puzzler

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opponents and proponents of a Kitimat oil port were caught by surprise by the federal government's announcement Thursday that an oil port is not needed on the British Columbia coast.

Jack Cressey, president of Kitimat Pipe Line Co. Ltd., charged the decision was made without the technical information to support it.

Dr. Andrew Thompson, commissioner of the West Coast Oil Ports Inquiry, returning here from Ottawa where he had presented the government with a report on the commission's findings, said he was disturbed by government policy.

Environmental and fisheries representatives greeted the announcement with qualified delight, seeking assurance that the oil port was permanently killed and not just as a politically expedient gesture.

The federal government rejected the $750 million oil port and pipeline as not needed to meet domestic energy needs.

The surprise decision leaves the United States with the sticky problem of finding a port on its own Pacific coast willing to accept the risks of oil spills.

It was announced in Ottawa by Environment Minister Len Marchand just after Thompson held a news conference on the report.

Thompson had said one of the government's alternatives was to kill the project entirely, but the assumption was that it was going ahead, and he said he intended to continue holding hearings on it pending a review of oil needs and official consideration by the National Energy Board.

He also said he wondered if the proposal has been killed definitely even though Marchand said the cabinet "sees no need for a West Coast oil port now or in the foreseeable future."

Thompson said in an interview he wants to make a detailed study of the government's order-in-council because he is sure people will ask if "the action the government has taken has decisively removed the application at this time?"

At his weekly news conference Thursday, Prime Minister Trudeau said the issue could be re-opened if such a port is required to meet domestic oil needs.

"Quite frankly, if it is just

Cabinet Return For Fox?

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said at his weekly news conference in Ottawa Thursday that he was pleased with the Ontario decision not to prosecute former federal solicitor-general Francis Fox.

Fox resigned Jan. 30 as solicitor-general after admitting in the Commons that he had an affair with a married woman who became pregnant and that he signed her husband's name to a hospital document when she entered hospital for a therapeutic abortion.

Trudeau said he did not anticipate any cabinet changes immediately but that if changes were made before a general election, Fox would be considered along with other candidates.

Opposition leader Joe Clark said he had no comment.

Aides to Fox say the 38-year-old MP will return to the Commons next week.

Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry said Thursday that "to launch a prosecution in this case would be to bring disproportionately harsh consequences to a person of good character who has already suffered greatly as a result of his act."

Justice Minister Ron Basford praised McMurtry, saying that "I think a very able attorney-general has arrived at that decision."

Fox, member for the Montreal-area riding of Argenteuil-Deux Montagnes, has not been seen in public since the resignation.

Blais Opens Probe On Allmand 'Bug'

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais has started in investigation within the RCMP to find out whether they ordered an informer to bug former solicitor-general Warren Allmand and New Democratic Party MP John Rodriguez (Nickel Belt).

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons on Thursday he stands by a statement he made last year that the RCMP has never ordered electronic surveillance of any MP without his consent.

Trudeau declined further comment until Blais completes his investigation of allegations made in documents tabled in the Commons on Wednesday by Progressive Conservative MP Elmer MacKay (Central Nova).

They quoted Warren Hart as saying he had bugged Allmand and Rodriguez during the 4½ years he worked for the RCMP in Canada. He was then an FBI agent, Hart claimed.

Trudeau said there obviously is some contradition between Hart's claims and the information given to him by the RCMP.

The allegations have been handed over to the McDonald commission, the federal royal commission investigating illegal RCMP activities, Trudeau added.

Trudeau also said he doesn't take "seriously" the charge by Conservative MP Tom Cossitt that a Soviet newsman in the Parliamentary Press Gallery is a spy.

At his regular news conference, Trudeau explained his reaction to the accusation by saying he has no faith in the MP's credibility.

"I never take Tom Cossitt seriously and I just don't take this last accusation seriously."

The PM said he "wouldn't even bother" to check out the charge made in the Commons earlier in the day by Cossitt, adding: "If he has some incriminating data, I think he should turn it over to the police."

The Ontario MP told the Commons that Alexander Palladin, a correspondent for the Novosti news agency, has been named in a report to the cabinet security committee as "a member of the Russian intelligence service."

Cossitt alleged the Soviet newsman had attempted "to cultivate two special assistants" to Canadian cabinet ministers in a bid "to obtain highly secretive cabinet documents."

Hydro Talks Break

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations aimed at averting a strike by 600 British Columbia Hydro gas workers were short lived Thursday.

A corporation spokesman said the talks with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers ended after the two parties failed to make headway on the two major stumbling blocks—wages and pensions.

The hydro spokesman said the IBEW is "considering again plans for strike action" but there were no indications when a strike would occur.

IBEW business agent Rick Dowling said he would make no comment until the union conveys its position to the membership.

Plans to strike at midnight Wednesday were cancelled while a final effort to resolve the dispute was undertaken.

M-B Profit $60.7M

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. Thursday reported net profit before extraordinary items in 1977 was $60.7 million or $2.70 a share.

This compares with $22.8 million or $1.07 a share with no extraordinary items in 1976.

Net profit in 1977 after extraordinary items was $38.4 million or $1.65 a share.

The lower profits result from a provision last year of $22.3 million against the company's 40 per cent interest in La Cellulose d'Aquitaine, a French pulp producer which had its financial viability seriously impaired by lower pulp prices, the company said.

The latest M-B profit compares with a loss of $18.9 million in 1975 due to losses incurred by a shipping company subsidiary, and profits of $72.3 million in 1974 and $81.7 million in 1973.

Net sales and other income was $1.71 billion in 1977, compared with $1.52 billion the previous year.

Net profit in the fourth quarter was $22.5 million or $1 a share on sales of $455.8 million.

CHANGE EYED FOR INDEXING

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday the government intends to alter its formula that ties social benefits to increases in the cost of living.

Trudeau said at his weekly news conference that the government had received a special study on indexation with very precise recommendations.

Treasury Board President Robert Andras would indicate the way the government intended to amend its current formula, which provides for full indexing of the cost of living, Trudeau said. An announcement could come next week.

Trudeau said the government agreed with the principle of indexation of benefits to protect them against inflation, but there might be some question of whether a particular formula is too rich.

"We support the general theory that a person who's able to earn his living should be protected against inflation," he said. "This could be done by bringing down inflation or bringing in indexing that is "just or economically feasible."

No French Here?

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Post Office official says an investigation will be held into a complaint from a Winnipeg businessman who believes a letter was returned to him because it was addressed in French.

Alex Sasnow said he mailed the letter Feb. 6 to his mother-in-law in St. Laurent, a small community about 40 miles northwest of Winnipeg.

He said he used the same address he has used without problem for "umpteen years," but this time it came back marked address incomplete.

"Nobody at the post office was able to tell me what was wrong with the address," he said. "I have to think it was rejected because of the French address."

Gilles Herbert, manager of the Post Office's northeast Manitoba district, says he cannot immediately explain why the letter was returned.

Advertising Doesn't Always Pay

Ozard
two-hour job

Bill Ozard was so happy he'd been hired as travel marketing supervisor by Grace McCarthy's travel ministry he ran a classified thank-you ad in Victoria newspapers.

A former deputy minister of travel for Nova Scotia, he learned Thursday that it doesn't always pay to advertise.

Ozard, 40, was fired from the $2,035-a-month job with the provincial government two hours after he started.

It turns out, says Ozard, that Mrs. McCarthy was "madder than hell" about the ad and he ended up getting the axe.

Ozard, a former Victoria radio man, said today he is waiting for a letter from A.G. Richardson, chairman of the Public Service Commission outlining the government's position. The letter will be sent to Ozard's lawyer who will decide if Ozard can take any action.

Ozard said he has no doubt that McCarthy was behind him losing his job although deputy travel minister Wayne Currie agreed what he had done was "not too smart."

However, Ozard said several senior public service people went to bat for him and told the minister he should be allowed to serve out his six-month probationary period and rise or fall on the basis of his actions during that period.

Ozard said when he called Richardson on Wednesday for an explanation of what was going on, Richardson told him the job was withdrawn.

Ozard said he was notified Feb. 3 by Richardson he had been hired for the position — one of several created by Currie.

He was told to report for work Feb. 13, but agreed to delay until Feb. 16 because Currie would be out of town.

Ozard, who earned $36,000 a year as deputy minister in Nova Scotia, said on the basis of his new job, he rented an apartment, took out a bank loan and decided to say thank you to the people

'Ghost Town' Fear

STEWART (CP) — The Granduc copper mine, the sole industry at this isolated northwest British Columbia town of 1,500 people, will be shut down June 30 and the community will become "B.C.'s newest ghost town," according to Mayor Ian McLeod. See story on Page 35.

Morely Safer's Exciting Climb

NEW YORK (CP) — To millions of television viewers, Morely Safer is as familiar as Walter Cronkite or Harry Reasoner.

But few know that Safer is a Canadian, and fewer still are aware that the 46-year-old co-host of CBS' 60 Minutes began his career in London, Ont., as a reporter with London Free Press and CFPL-TV.

Along with Mike Wallace and Dan Rather, Safer reports every Sunday night to an audience of more than 30 million. The first Neilsen ratings of 1978 show that 60 Minutes is television's third most popular program, behind Laverne and Shirley and Happy Days.

The last 25 years have been a tough and exciting climb to the top for Safer.

"I think the place that had the most profound effect on me was London, England," he said in an interview. "It was an important part of my education. I was exposed to eight or nine very lively newspapers, a great reporting tradition and a terrifically literate city."

After graduating from University of Western Ontario, Toronto-born Safer joined The Free Press as a reporter and was based in Woodstock, Ont. Later he returned to London and in 1955 a coincidence brought his first television assignment.

"A plane went down and I was out covering it for The Free Press." It was in the winter and somebody important was on it, somebody from Ontario Hydro (Chairman Robert Saunders died in the crash.)

"I managed to get out there, and there was still one more edition of the paper to go. It was the middle of the night and it was in a field.

"I remember I broke into a farmhouse. There was no other way of getting to a phone and I wouldn't otherwise make the deadline.

"The next day television came around and I did a kind of eyewitness thing of what happened. I doubt I ever saw it on the air because I didn't have a television set. Nobody had back then."

Still on the Air . . . 21 Years Later

IT WAS in February, 1957, and Capital Comment signed on the air, live from Victoria, for the first time with then premier W.A.C. Bennett and a panel of three newsmen and broadcaster Andy Stephen. Every week since then the interview show has beamed out from the province's capital city — now on CHAN and the BCTV Interior network as well as CHEK. During its 21 years the public affairs show, featuring guest interviewers, has attracted most of the major provincial polticians, and many federal figures. On Sunday, it begins its 22nd year — for what is believed to be the longest running public affirs program in Canadian television. The guest Sunday will be former premier W.A.C. Bennett, who appeared on the first program. He will be interviewed by the first guest panel: Alec Merriman, The Colonist; Pete Loudon, and Alex Young, both of whom were with The Times and are now with the Vanouver Province.

She Finds It Hard to Smile

By VICTORIA GRAHAM

NEW YORK (AP) — Buffy Sainte-Marie is the Sesame Street mommie who hugs little kids, teaches the Count to count in Sioux and Cree and shows Big Bird how to make Indian fry bread.

Off camera she shakes a fistful of bills pending in the U.S. Congress, shakes her head and speaks with urgency about lost Indian rights, broken treaties and the need to stop legislation.

"Smile," said a photographer as she glared at bills on hunting and fishing rights, energy proposals and criminal code reform.

"You couldn't smile if you knew what I know," said the granddaughter of Chief Starblanket of Saskatchewan. "But I'll try to think of the future." She managed a taut smile.

The 36-year-old Canadian Cree Indian who shows kids on television that Indians say more than "Ugh" and "How," is talking off camera about terror, murder and forced sterilization of Indians.

Buffy said that because she speaks out, she has been blacklisted as an entertainer in the United States, her songs get little play and her career has languished here while flourishing abroad.

For three years she has been a regular on the show with her husband, Sheldon Wolfchild, and her 16-month-old son, Dakota Starblanket — called Cody by Big Bird.

Her image has been tempered but her temper has not been stilled.

"I believed that if people only knew about Indian problems they would help," she said. "I was wrong. They did not help.

"I was blacklisted for years, and I still am," she said. "I used to think it was a matter of taste that my music did better overseas.

"There is a deliberate effort on the part of certain private interests, government and radio broadcasters who each felt that I deserved to be suppressed for my support of the Indian people and songs like Universal Soldier."

She remains in the public eye in her role on Sesame Street but she no longer has a recording contract, though she plans to do children's records for Sesame Street.

Meantime, she does benefit concerts for U.S. Indians and performs overseas. Recently she returned on the Concorde SST from a Paris concert that drew 55,000.

Last year she sang for Queen Elizabeth at her jubilee celebration in Ottawa.

But her immediate concern is legislation in Congress. She and other Indian activists say there are 11 bills which would harm Indians.

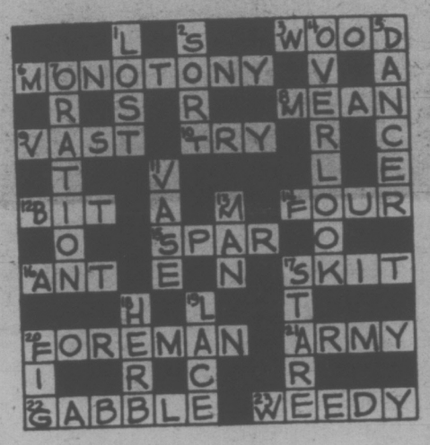
"The bills would do away with hunting, fishing, trapping, mineral and other rights. Treaties would be extinguished."

She recites a morbid litany: "There is terrorism against activist Indians and other 200 unsolved murders of Indians in South Dakota.

"More than 3,000 Native American women have been sterilized without their knowledge or consent in the last three years. Genocide is not too strong a word."

PAYOFF PUZZLE

Correct Answers to Last Week's Puzzle



CLUES ACROSS

3. WOOD not food. The clue tends to assume that all kinds can be cut; however, it is only some kinds of FOOD that are cut at all, much less easier than others.

8. MEAN not lean. The idea of "playing Santa Claus" links up with a benevolent nature rather than a rotund figure, so MEAN is preferred to lean.

9. VAST not past. The field of past events is "a VAST field of events," as the clue has it.

10. TRY not toy. An inventor will make more positive efforts than merely to toy with an idea.

12. BIT not pit. a BIT is just a little, which isn't too difficult. There's no knowing how much deeper a pit might be dug, or with what difficulty.

14. FOUR not sour. The clue's concern with quantity favors FOUR. Also, cooking apples are characteristically bitter, rather than "might be" sour.

15. SPAR not star. Since men who SPAR hit each other, there is a special pointedness in saying that they "may, in fact, be the best of friends."

17. SKIT not skid. Being a wild sort of "character" has little connection with one's performance as a driver in a skid. A character portrayed in a SKIT may well do "all the wrong things."

20. FOREMAN not fireman. A FOREMAN, typically, has a certain seniority allied to a knowledge of the job; but there is nothing to say that a fireman is experienced.

21. ARMY not arms. In general, soldiers are concerned with the ARMY, but are not expected to know about arms collectively — including many weapons of which they can have no knowledge (it's not a question of their not knowing everything about them).

22. GABBLE not gamble. There is a sort of overt continuity about GABBLING that makes "GABBLE" especially well suited to the theme of the clue.

CLUES DOWN

1. LOST not most. LOST is more satisfactory. "Most" is unwanted in this clue which already contains the word "usually."

4. OVERLOOK not overcook. The clue is more necessarily true of OVERLOOK. One can overcook things, without neglecting them, through inexperience, etc. Overbook is not favoured.

5. DANCER not danger. Every danger is worth watching if possible. Aptly, only a good DANCER is worth watching.

11. VASE not case. "May well be" is an understatement in the case of vase. Also, the clue's word "heavy" is wanted more for vase.

13. MAN not ban. Since a ban is authoritative anyway, the last three words of the clue are superflous for ban and favor MAN.

20. FIG not fog. A fog, a transient condition, is hardly a "product" in the positive sense that a FIG is.

SOAP OPERA SCENE

Uphill Climb for Jill

By STEVEN H. SCHEUER

NEW YORK — An uphill climb for Jill. Poor Jill Foster can't break her losing streak on The Young and the Restless. She's in love with a man, Derek Thurston, who's already married (that's right, he doesn't know he's married — a not-too far-fetched soap opera situation).

Fans are writing Jill's Brenda Dickson, warning her of the coming tragedy. But neither fans or actress Brenda, a former Miss California, have any influence on the latest heartbreak being cooked up for Brenda by the series creator and master planner, William J. Bell.

Bell works out of Chicago, sending finished scripts to L.A. No one tampers with Bell storylines or seeks changes. So the plotting isn't going to be reversed in favor of Jill, the working girl, who wants to better herself.

When Brenda Dickson began the role of Jill five years ago, as The Young and the Restless debuted, Jill was a dreamer. She always wanted to be one of the beautiful people, envisioning life from the servant's point-of-view as a maid in the rich Chancellor household. While Mrs. C. tippled away the hours of boredom, her multimillionaire hubby, dallied with Jill. Taking revenge, Mrs. C. drove her husband off a cliff, but before the man slipped away, he married Jill, so her son would be legitimate.

Now schemer Bell has Jill waltzing around once more with Mrs. Chancellor. Mrs. C. has a yen for Derek Thurston, bought him a car, backed his new shop, and just recently drugged the fellow so a marriage ceremony could be performed.

NOURI

Thus, Mrs. C. clashes with Jill again this winter. You can guess who will come out on top.

Creator Bell ruffles the deck on an average of once a year for Brenda Dickson's Jill, always serving up a generous portion of the action. For that, Brenda is most grateful. She thinks Bell is brilliant, but is unable to fathom how the man churns out such an abundance of material.

Five years as Jill has turned Brenda into a solid performer. She loves to work. The old days where you sat by the phone six months a year waiting for a job were hardly the good days in Brenda's opinion.

DICKSON

Now, happily married to dentist Robert Rifkin, with a house and a tennis court in the Pacific palisades, Brenda is so busy she has not time to play. That's the way it is in California. Owners of courts are usually too busy to play.

And what about Jill the dreamer? Will she ever achieve her ambitions? If she does, the character will be through, but Brenda often sees herself portraying a wealthy Jill, putting on the dog, looking down for once instead of always up.

Wearing beautifully cut clothes on camera would be worth it, says Brenda. "You know, Georgio's (a high fashion store) supplies the clothes for all the actresses on the show except me. I get to wear leftovers, anything old that's laying around the CBS wardrobe department."

CHANNEL CHATTER. Michael Nouri (Steve Kaslo in Search for Tomorrow) is set to co-star with Tony Curtis and Bianca Jagger in The Emerald Clue, a movie which will be filmed in Costa Rica in March. Michael will take a short leave from the soap to do the film . . . Candice Earley (Donna Beck in All My Children) chose Valentine's Day for her wedding to Peter Manera, ABC-TV exec. The couple are honeymooning in Hawaii . . . Larry Haines (Stu Bergman in Search for Tomorrow) will be featured in Tribute, Jack Lemmon's new play scheduled to open on the Great White Way in June, with an extensive pre-Broadway tour. Kathy Hicks is leaving her role as Faith Coleridge in Ryan's Hope to appear in Lemmon's play. The role of Faith will be recast shortly . . . Jane Badler, who plays Melinda Cramer in One Life to Live, surprised her producers and co-workers when they found they had some time to fill recently on the show. Since Jane, as Melinda, plays a piano player in a bar on the soap, they suggested she fill the time by singing a little. It turned out Jane has a nice singing voice . . . Jaime Lyn Bauer (she's Lorie Prentiss) is on a leave of absence for maternity purposes from The Young and the Restless, and filing in for her during the time is Victoria Thompson, whose soap credits include a short stint on Another World . . . Tom Hallick (who plays Brad Eliot in The Young and the Restless) will be seen in the role of Commander Tom Franklin in the prime time specials, The Return of Captain Nemo, airing March 8, 15 and 22 on CBS.

PLOT PORTENTS. Will Kay Chancellor accept the fact Derek is in love with Jill in The Young and the Restless? Not bloody likely. Lorie's book continues to raise havoc, and her own marriage to Lance seems less secure. That means. brother-in-law Lucas will play a larger part in Lorie's life.

Larry Atwood may have moved too fast on Julie, but he will try again on Days of Our Lives. David worries about Trish and the job move. Marlena and Laura also worry about Trish, fearful her split personality may return. As for Kate, how much longer can she hold off Bill?

Since Bruce Sterling finally revealed to his wife Vanessa that he's suffering from the fatal disease known as "aplastic anemia" on Love of Life, their relationship has taken a new bend in the rocky road. Vanessa's going to need all the strength she can muster to get through this terrible time.

Cupid takes a backseat on All My Children. Edna and David reach a dangerous impasse in their arguments about divorce; Ellen and Mark's one-time hot romance is also cooling; and Nick is going around with a long face, destitute over breaking up with Erica.

Martha just might consider marriage to Mel on Forever Fernwood, but marriage is not on Tom's mind at the moment . . . Penny must wage a new attack to snare the man! As for Merle and Eleanor, they should be at each other's throats shortly.

Spotlight on Movies

Amazing Dr. G., on 11 at 12 noon. A spoof of James Bond-type movies, made in Italy in 1965, starring Franco Franchi and Ciccio Ingassia. The plot involves a super-hero spy and an Oriental villain.

Tarzan the Magnificent, on 11 at 2 p.m. Gordon Scott plays the jungle man, in this typical 1960 piece, with Jock Mahoney as a criminal being escorted to a police outpost.

Monster Zero, on 12 at 7:30 p.m. A new planet is found behind Jupiter in another of the many Japanese-made sci-fi dramas, featuring Godzilla and Rodan. Starring Nick Adams. (1968)

LAUREN TEWES plays the role of the cruise director on the comedy series Love Boat, tonight at 9 on channels 4 and 13.

The Pit and the Pendulum, on 12 at 9:30 p.m. Loosely based on the Edgar Allen Poe work, this one features a very good Vincent Price — in a role he has almost trademarked — and is set in a spooky Spanish castle. It has good photography and a eery set, so the plot is less important. Made in 1961 by Roger Corman, with John Kerr, Luana Anders and Barbara Steele.

Play It as It Lays, on 7 at 11 p.m. The story of movie star's breakdown, made in 1972, and based on Joan Didion's novel of the same name. Starring Tuesday Weld, Anthony Perkins, Tammy Grimes and Adam Roarke.

Chamber of Horrors, on 12 at 11:15 p.m. Patrick O'Neal stars in this account about an crazy murderer stalking Baltimore in the last century. With Cesare Danova, Wilfrid Hyde-White and Laura Devon. (1966)

A Death in Canaan, on 8 at 8:30 p.m. and on 6 at 11:20 p.m. A 1978 made-for-TV movie about a real-life drama in which an 18-year-old boy is accused of killing his mother. The boy signed a confession after a lie detector test and police interrogation, but he later pleaded at his trial that he was innocent. Some of the townspeople believed him, and worked on his case until he was proven right. Starring Paul Clemens as the boy Peter Reilly, with Jacqueline Brookes, Tom Atkins and Conchata Ferrell.

Lydia, on 2 at 11:45 p.m. Merle Oberon plays an unlovable Boston beauty, and the highly-rated film traces her life over 40 years. Made in 1941, it also stars Joseph Cotten and Alan Marshal.

The Time Machine, on 4 at 11:45 p.m. An Academy-award winner, the movie is set in the last century and tells of a scientist (Rod Taylor) who discovers how to move through time. With Yvette Mimieux, Sebastian Cabot and Alan Young. (1960)

Survival, on 13 at 12 midnight. Barry Sullivan stars in this tale about a deadly party organized by a wealthy industrialist. (1976)

Man Friday, on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Robinson Crusoe cast away on his island, but this time the story is told from the vantage point of the native (Richard Round) in an unsuccessful attempt to update Daniel Defoe's classic. The 1975 drama stars Peter O'Toole as the shipwrecked survivor.

Thief, on 5 at 1 a.m. Richard Crenna is a catburglar out on parole who just can't break his light-fingered habit. Angie Dickinson is his suffering wife. Made for TV in 1971.

Tiger Force, on 13 at 1:30 a.m. A standard crime-police drama, but it's Japanese-made. It's about drugs and kidnappings. (1975)

Mister Moses, on 6 at 2:25 a.m. An odd movie, with Robert Mitchum playing a Moses character who leads a bunch of natives to their promised land. Ian Bannen and Alexander Knox are featured. Carroll Baker plays a missionary's daughter. (1965)

Getting Straight, on 8 at 2:25 a.m. A few years ago Elliott Gould seemed to be in every second movie. This is one them, and as almost is usual for these movies he plays a hyperactive nonconformist. This time it's a graduate student and the setting is a college campus. Candice Bergen is supposedly a student. (1970)

The 27th Day, on 2 at 2:40 a.m. Gene Barry stars in this sci-fi work. A selected group from five nations are given death capsules. (1957)

Juggernaut, on 6 at 4:05 a.m. A disaster movie made in 1974. A luxury liner has been wired with explosives. A star cast: Richard Harris, Omar Sharif and David Hemmings.

Today's Highlights

Razzmatazz, on 7 at 1:30 p.m. A special for children, with a report on a rodeo in Albuquerque, N.M., and the world of hula hoops.

Federal Liberal Convention, on 2 and 6 at 4 p.m. The second day of the session in Ottawa, with speeches and interviews.

Key to the Universe, on 9 at 8 p.m. Quarks, anti-matter and other mysteries of physics are examined in this special two-hour study.

Muppet Show, on 2 at 8:30 p.m. Peter Sellers is the guest and he comes equipped with a variety of characters: a masseur to Link Hogthrob, a gypsy violinist and a singing missionary.

Columbo, on 5 at 9 p.m. Peter Falk, as the great unkempt police detective, this time searching for the killer of a television executive. The suspect is another network executive, played by Trish Van Devere.

Today's Highlights

Federal Liberal Convention, on 2 and 6 at 9 a.m. Prime Minister Trudeau is to speak to his party's delegates in his major address marking the close of the session in Ottawa.

Continuing Creation, on 5 at 1 p.m. Science, and its relationship to religion, is the subject of this one-hour documentary. The work of Newton, Galileo and Darwin are all examined, as well as some of the trends of modern science.

Don Carlos, on 2 at 2:30 p.m. The first of two parts of Verdi's opera (the second will be shown at this time next week) the two-hour 30-minute production tells of the love triangle involving King Philip II, his son Don Carlos and Philip's new bride. Carlos is sung by Placido Domingo, Philip: Yevgeni Nesterenko, Elizabeth: Elena Obrastzova.

Capital Comment, on 8 at 5:30 p.m. and 6 at 11:20 p.m. The 21st anniversary of the longest-running public affairs program in Canadian television history. Former premier W.A.C. Bennett, first guest on the show, returns to be interviewed by the first panel: Peter Loudon, Alec Merriman and Alex Young.

Little Vic, on 4 at 6:30 p.m. The first of a six-part story about a racehorse. Everyone but Gillie Walker, who aims to become a groom and jockey, lacks faith in racehorse Little Vic.

Nellie McClung, on 2 and 6 at 9 p.m. It's 1913, and human rights pioneer Nellie McClung, played by Kate Reid, is set on barnstorming the Pairies with the suffragist crusade.

Loose Change, on 5 at 9 p.m. The first of a three-part mini-series based on the best seller by Sara Davidson. It's about three women who meet and become friends as students at the University of California in Berkeley. The second and third parts are Monday and Tuesday in this time slot.

Spotlight on Movies

Paint Your Wagon, on 5 at 10 a.m. Josh Logan made this Lerner and Lowe movie, but it was never the critics' choice, although it features some well-known tunes and colorful photography. Lee Marvin, Clint Eastwood and Jean Seberg head the cast. It's about the California gold rush. (1969)

The Long Ships, on 7 at 10:30 a.m. A sweeping adventure story made in 1964 and starring Richard Widmark and Sydney Poitier about the hunt for golden bell and involving the Vikings and Moors.

The Lost Missile, on 11 at 12 noon. A radioactive missile hurdles towards earth. Can scientists stop it? (1958)

Ma and Pa Kettle on Vacation, on 11 at 1:30 p.m. One of a series that grew out of the characters in the Egg and I. Starring, as usual, Marjorie Main and Percy Kilbride. They journey to Paris. (1953)

Punch and Jody, on 6 at 2:30 p.m. Glenn Ford is a circus worker; Pam Griffin plays his daughter who suddenly appears on the scene. Made for TV in 1974.

Sands of Iwo Jima, on 11 at 3 p.m. John Wayne-U.S. Marines classic action-packed story. The movie is considered one of the best of its type. (1949)

River of God, on 6 at 4 p.m. Hunting for treasure in Mexico, underwater. With Roger Davis and Ray Milland. (1971)

Tarzan and the Trappers, on 12 at 5:30 p.m. Gordon Scott swings from the vines, only to be interrupted by looters stealing treasure from an abandoned city. (1958)

War of the Gargantuas, on 12 at 8 p.m. Japanese-made monster movie, with Russ Tamblyn as an American scientist battling the beasts. (1967)

We're No Angels, on 13 at 8 p.m. A delightful movie and a light comedy, although set on Devil's Island. Humphrey Bogart, Peter Ustinov and Aldo Ray escape from the dreaded prison and end up hiding with a family with problems. (1955).

Live and Let Die, on 4 at 9 p.m. Roger Moore picks up from Sean Connery as superspy James Bond. Complete with all of the special effects, and the on-location shooting: New York City, New Orleans, Jamaica. The plot involves 007 tracing the killings of three agents. (1973)

Godzilla, on 12 at 10 p.m. Tokyo is terrorized by a monster from the deep, in this Japanese sci-fi drama. None other than Raymond Burr is featured. Made in 1956, before Burr scored it big on television.

I Want to Live, on 5 at 11:30 p.m. The late Susan Hayward won an Oscar for playing condemned murderess Barbara Graham. The movie includes dramatic pictures of

Spotlight on Movies

The Norliss Tapes, on 8 at 12:30 p.m. A dead man is walking, and the writer-hero wants to find out why. Starring Roy Thinnes. Made for TV in 1973.

A Man Called Adam, on 11 at 1 p.m. Sammy Davis and Peter Lawford star, with Davis playing a problem-ridden jazz musician. (1966)

Gigot, on 5 at 3 p.m. Set in Paris, Jackie Gleason plays a mute in this whimsical tale. (1962)

Such Good Friends, on 4 at 9 p.m. The medical profession gets little credit in this Otto Preminger-directed drama set in New York City. Starring Dyan Cannon, James Coco and Jennifer O'Neill. (1971)

Magnum Force, on 8 at 9 p.m. A violence-filled movie, with Clint Eastwood playing, once-again, Dirty Harry. The setting is San Francisco and the subject is the murder of mobsters. Eastwood is on the side of the law. With Hal Holbrook. (1973)

Scream of the Wolf, on 7 and 12 at 11:30 p.m. There's a creature out there and it is killing people. Peter Graves sets out to trap it. With Clint Walker and Jo Ann Pflug. Made for TV in 1974.

Watermelon Man, on 6 at 12:10 a.m. An interesting and amusing satire about a bigoted white man who turns black overnight. Godfrey Cambridge does a good job, with Estelle Parson. (1970)

Waterloo, on 8 at 12:30 a.m. The battle scenes make the movie, as Napoleon heads up to his defeat in 1815. Made in 1970 by an Italian-Russian team and starring Rod Steiger as Napoleon with Christopher Plummer and Orson Welles.

Cat Ballou, on 7 at 1:05 a.m. Lee Marvin plays two roles, the good guy and bad guy, and deserved the Oscar he won for the portrayals. It's a satire of the Old West and has some excellent comedy by Marvin, as Jane Fonda leads an outlaw band. (1965)

The Hostage, on 6 at 2:10 a.m. Killers get away on a truck, but aboard is a six-year-old stowaway boy in this 1966 drama.

Crucible of Terror, on 8 at 3 a.m. Occult murders in Cornwall, with Mike Raven and Mary Maude. (1972)

Today's Highlights

Evening at Symphony, on 9 at 8 p.m. Soloist Alexis Weissenberg joins the Boston Symphony tonight for Chopin's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E Minor.

Superspecial, on 2 and 6 at 9 p.m. Irish and American tunes are featured as the Irish Rovers invite a galaxy of stars to join them: Wilf Carter, Carl Perkins, Myrna Lorrie, Oscar Brand, George Wilson and Doug Dillard.

Reach for Tomorrow, on 9 at 9 p.m. A special documentary on the life of a thalidomide victim, in this case a Japanese boy who was born without arms.

Henry Ford's America, on 2 and 6 at 10 p.m. The impact of the car on our society is traced through one company and its head — Henry Ford II, who is shown in this documentary making decisions affecting one of the largest, and most influential, corporations in North America. The Emmy-winning documentary was made in 1976.

Lou Grant, on 7 at 10 p.m. A complicated investigation that eventually involves the CIA wraps the Tribune staffers into a tighter net when Lou Grant orders a look at the arrest of a businessman's son.

JILL VOIGHT had never sung a note in public, but that didn't stop her when she was cast to play a country and western singer on One Life to Live, weekdays on Channel 4 at 1 p.m. She searched out a nightclub in New York and joined a western band — and has turned out be so good that she sings there regularly.

Spotlight on Movies

The Affair, on 8 at 12:30 p.m. Natalie Wood and Robert Wagner star in this 1970 romance between a songwriter, who is crippled, and a lawyer.

Mambo, on 11 at 1 p.m. Silvana Mangano leaves her job as a shopgirl to become a dancing star. An Italian-made opus with Vittorio Gassman and Shelley Winters. (1954)

If It's Tuesday, This Must Be Belgium, on 5 at 3 p.m. Americans on a rush tour through Europe, with cameo bits played by stars. Suzanne Pleshette and Ian McShane star in the 1969 comedy.

Magnum Force, on 7 at 9 p.m. Clint Eastwood playing his Dirty Harry role, as a member of the San Francisco police department in a violent hunt for the murderers of three mobsters. (1973)

To Find a Man, on 4 at 11:30 p.m. Pamela Sue Martin is a teenager who finds herself pregnant in this 1972 drama starring Lloyd Bridges and Tom Ewell.

The Mountain, on 12 at 11:30 p.m. Spencer Tracy stars, and the setting is the Swiss Alps where mountain-climbing scenes steal the show. Two bothers are trying to reach a crashed plane. (1956)

The Thousand Plane Raid, on 7 at 11:55 p.m. It's the Second World War and in 1943 bombers are striking at the heart of Germany. Christopher George plays an officer who organizes a huge airborne raid. (1969)

The Impatient Heart, on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Made for TV in 1971, Carrie Snodgress plays the role of a social worker who is also beset by personal problems.

Experiment in Terror, on 7 at 1:50 a.m. Lee Remick, playing a bank teller, and her sister (Stefanie Powers) live in fear of an extortionist after $100,000. A better-than-average thriller starring Glenn Ford. (1962)

Innocent Bystanders, on 6 at 2:10 a.m. Espionage sweeps up Stanley Baker and Geraldine Chaplin in this 1972 movie about intrigue.

Dance Little Lady, on 8 at 2:55 a.m. Mai Zetterling plays a ballet dancer who's daughter is exploited. (1954)

Sunday Movies

the state of California gas chamber. (1958)

Spirits of the Dead, on 12 at 11:40 p.m. Brother and sister, Peter and Jane Fonda, are among the stars in three tales based on Edgar Allan Poe stories. Also starring Brigitte Bardot, Alain Delon and Terence Stamp. (1968)

Man on a String, on 2 at 11:45 p.m. Movie-maker Boris Morros is involved in the intricacies of spying. It's a factual account and stars Ernest Borgnine and Colleen Dewhurst. (1960)

Man Friday, on 6 at 11:50 p.m. Peter O'Toole is the castaway Robinson Crusoe, but Daniel Defoe's classic story is twisted around with the narrative told from the viewpoint of Friday, played by Richard Roundtree, in a none-too-successful movie. (1975)

A Night at the Opera, on 4 at 12:10 a.m. Most critics agree that this movie represented the highpoint of the Marx Brothers' work. Well-written and staged, it is a spoof on high opera. With, of course, the incomparable Margaret Dumont and Allan Jones as the romantic lead. (1935)

Mister Moses, on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Robert Mitchum leads a trek of natives through Africa to their promised land. Carroll Baker tags along. (1965)

The Happening, on 7 at 1 a.m. Anthony Quinn is a former Mafia boss, and he is kidnapped by a group of wild beach boys in this 1967 amalgam of satire and drama. With Faye Dunaway.

Getting Straight, on 6 at 2:05 a.m. A few years ago Elliott Gould seemed to be in every second movie. This is one them, and as almost is usual for these movies he plays a hyperactive nonconformist. This time it's a graduate student and the setting is a college campus. Candice Bergen is supposedly a student. (1970)

Juggernaut, on 8 at 2:25 a.m. A luxury liner is filled with explosives in this 1974 disaster movie. It is also filled with stars, including Richard Harris, Omar Sharif and David Hemmings.

ROBERT GUILLAUME portays the sharp-witted employee Benson, of the Tate family on Soap, Channel 4 tonight at 9:30 p.m.

Today's Highlights

Chuck Barris, on 8 at 8 p.m. The debut of a frenetic variety show, featuring some of the performers who first appeared on Barris' The Gong Show, as well as more professional entertainers such as singer Jaye P. Morgan and comedian George Carlin.

New Orleans Concerto, on 9 at 8 p.m. A profile of composer Roger Dickerson, culminating in the presentation of New Orleans Concerto for Piano and Orchestra.

Rene Simard, on 2 and 6 at 8:30 p.m. Phoebe Snow is the guest this week, and sings Poetry Man and Love Makes a Woman.

Funny Farm, on 8 at 9 p.m. Blake Emmons is joined by singer Faron Young and comedian Murray Langston.

Fever, on 9 at 9 p.m. A documentary on Brazil's annual pre-Lent carnival, with colorful parades and production numbers.

Lives, on 8 at 10 p.m. The first of a series on some of the top names in the news — tonight, Muhammad Ali. The boxer is interviewed in his home prior to his defeat by Leon Spinks and tells about his youth, winning the Olympics gold medal in 1960 and his plans for his eventual retirement.

Spotlight on Movies

Betrayal, on 8 at 12:30 p.m. Amanda Blake stars as widow who becomes involved with a gang of extortionists in this made-for-TV movie. (1974)

Wild Seed, on 11 at 1 p.m. A journey through the U.S. as a youngster (Celia Kaye) searches for her father. She is joined by a drifter (Michael Parks). Made for TV. (1965)

Call Me Madam, on 5 at 3 p.m. Ethel Merman re-creates her Broadway role as the U.S. ambassador to a tiny European country. With Donald O'Connor and music by Irving Berlin. (1953)

The Terminal Man, on 7 and 12 at 11:30 p.m. Michael Crichton wrote the book, a sci-fi drama about an electronic implant that is supposed to control violent behavior. George Segal, Joan Hackett and Jill Clayburgh star. (1974).

Fat City, on 6 at 12:10 a.m. Stacy Keach and Jeff Bridges star as two sluggers who hope to be bigtime boxers. It's director John Huston's movie, though, as it portrays the rundown life of small-time sports figures. (1972)

Boy, Did I Get a Wrong Number!, on 8 at 12:10 a.m. Bob Hope and Phyllis Diller trade shots in this 1966 farce. Elke Sommer is in the middle.

A Prize of Gold, on 7 at 1:40 a.m. Mai Zetterling is a refugee, and to help her, Richard Widmark plans a hijacking scheme. (1955)

Cry of Battle, on 6 at 2:10 a.m. A story of war, with a young soldier (James MacArthur) joining with a tough, uncaring veteran against the enemy on a Pacific island. (1963)

Hush . . . Hush, Sweet Charlotte, on 8 at 2:10 a.m. Betty Davis dominates in this lush drama set in the southern U.S., with Olivia de Havilland, Agnes Moorehead and Joseph Cotten. (1964)

BEN VEREEN is probably best known for the starring role he had in last year's Roots series, but before that he was known as a dynamic Broadway and cabaret singer and dancer. He illustrates some of his justifiably famous talent in his own special tonight at 10 p.m. on Channel 4 in Ben Vereen — His Roots.

Today's Highlights

Northerners, on 2 at 7:30 p.m. Arctic fur trader Ted Pedersen talks of his work in the early part of the century, and illustrates it with rare film that he shot at the time.

Canadian Express, on 2 at 9 p.m. The Cape Breton Fiddlers, John Allan Cameron, Debbie Fraser and Suzanne Stevens get together for an hour-long musical show.

Loose Change, on 6 at 9 p.m. The first of a three-part series based on Sara Davidson's novel about three friends in the 1960s, beginning with their meeting at the University of California, Berkeley.

CTV Reports, on 8 at 9 p.m. Juvenile delinquents in New Jersey learn what a life sentence would be like in hopes the experience will deter them from crime. Also a visit to a cancer ward at Vancouver General Hospital.

Jerusalem Peace, on 9 at 9 p.m. A special documentary on the lives of Israelis and Arabs in Israel's capital city.

Ben Vereen, on 4 at 10 p.m. Multi-talented Vereen — actor, singer and dancer — performs a musical look at his showbusiness career, with Louis Gossett Jr., Debbie Allen and Cheryl Ladd.

James Michener's World, on 9 at 10 p.m. This is the first of what is to be a nine-part documentary series stretching over three years. Michener takes a personal look at areas that have had the greatest impression upon him — the first being Israel. He explores landmarks such as the Via Dolorosa and talks of the religious background of the area.

Women's Sports Special on 4 at 11:30 p.m. Showbusiness combines with sports to raise money for the U.S. Women's Sports Foundation. Hosted by Alan King and Bonnie Franklin and taped at Las Vegas.

PLAN Nº. 75-1106-B
AREA: 1106 sq. ft.
WIDTH: 58 ft. 4 in.

All the Amenities Provided

This three bedroom, full basement bungalow design provides all of the necessary amenities, while offering the individual owner a range of options in exterior decor and future development.

The weather-sheltered entrance leads into a small foyer, which leads left to the large, L-shaped, living/dining room combination. The living room features a brick-faced fireplace and excellent natural light. The dining room separates from the kitchen via pocket door and has provision for a built-in china and linen storage sideboard.

All three bedrooms are well separated from the main living area for disturbance-free entertaining. Each has good natural light and adequate closet storage facilities. The master has two-piece ensuite bath, tucked behind a pocket door, and has the added benefit of a window facing the rear of the home, providing for gentle early-morning light.

Access to the full basement is gained from the hall and the large storage area off the kitchen. Here is abundant storage space and room for the future development of an extra bedroom and/or family room and recreational facilities.

If finished with the carport, vertical channel siding and shake roof, this practical home as all the charm of a rural western bungalow. If the garage option is selected, and the exterior finished in brick veneer with shingle roof, the design bears the solid, massy appearance so characteristic of the residential districts of our larger urban centres.

HOLLYWOOD — The TV Mailbag:

Q. Is it true Henry "The Fonz" Winkler plans to leave "Happy Days" at the end of the season? — B.K.

A. Despite many rumors, Henry Winkler will return for at least one more season on ABC's top—rated show, Happy Days.

His original five-year contract expires at the end of the current season and Winkler had given hints he might leave the show. In fact, Paramount, which produces Happy Days, had already decided to go forward with another season with or without Winkler, although Paramount officials admitted the character of Arthur Fonzarelli is the program's most popular character.

Winkler, with a little prompting from Paramount, recently agreed to stay with the show for at least one more season.

"I made the decision," he said, "because I want to be here. Everybody likes watching it and we like making it. It just didn't sit right for me to cut it off like that. It didn't seem the right thing to do."

He said he seriously considered leaving the series because "five years is enough for one man to play one character." But Paramount made him an offer he couldn't refuse.

As part of the agreement, Winkler will also develop projects for television and feature films. In addition, he will appear in more movi such as Heroes and his soc to-be released "The One a Only."

Pat Barclay

Last week I used up nearly a whole column not telling you about a collection of current and relevant thoughts, from 32 articulate Canadians, on the state of our troubled nation. They are contained in Divided We Stand, edited by Gary Geddes (Peter Martin, $7.95).

To be frank, I don't intend to review the book this week, either. Divided We Stand is too stimulating for that. It's the sort of book which no two people will read alike, because no two people will fasten on the same facts, details and opinions among the many it contains.

In my own case, it was Silver Donald Cameron's pugnacious article, "Rene Levesque and the Sovereign State of Atlantica," which rang the loudest bell. (In it, Silver hi-hoes through the history of the Maritime provinces and argues that Confederation was a poor bargain from the start: "Yes, I'd prefer a united Canada. But not at any price — and the price the Maritimes have paid in political, economic and human terms has been outrageous.")

It sounds so trite to describe a book as "stimulating." Yet that's the word which sums up Divided We Stand, which may even be too stimulating for its own good. Today's column, remember, is another non-review. I thought I'd tell you, instead, about the time I tiptoed into Quebec.

It happened last summer, when our family of four faced its moment of racial truth: Did we have what it takes to travel to Newfoundland (our ultimate destination) via Quebec, or were we going to chicken out and turn south, through New England? (I hope somebody out there catches the symbolic overtone to this momentous decision.)

On the debit side were our misgivings about travelling across Quebec with an Ontario licence plate (we feel the same way about travelling through B.C., actually, but by now we're used to it), and our meagre knowledge of French. (One of us has the vocabulary without the accent, two of us have the accent without the vocabulary, and one of us still thinks that saying "Parsley-voose fronkays" is funny.)

Offsetting these handicaps was the fundamental feeling, not that something good was bound to turn up, but that anything bad probably wouldn't. And what were we, anyway, Canadians or mice?

Our first encounter of any importance occurred in downtown Montreal, when an urbane Palestinian Arab desk clerk rented us a $60-a-day suite for $32. Emboldened by this stroke of good fortune, we spent St. Jean Baptiste Day in Quebec City, where the locals celebrated with an open air concert and we fell asleep marvelling at the gentle sound of the flutes.

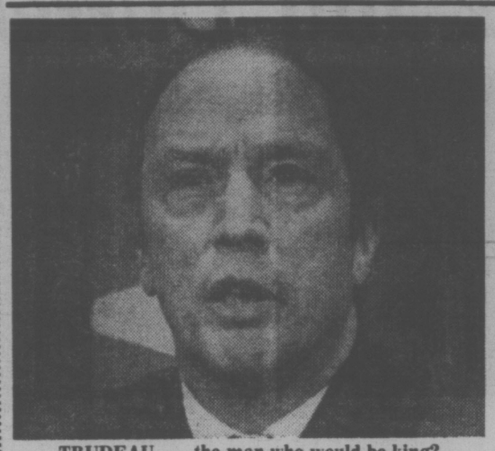
But it was the return trip that bowled us over. "Let's stay in a small town," decided my husband, and the choice fell on St. Hyacinthe, about 45 miles east of Montreal. We found what sounded a suitable hostelry in the guidebook, drove into town, and got thoroughly lost. At last I stumbled into a corner telephone box and launched into my fractured French, which was matched and possibly even outdone by the fractured English on the other end. ("You take Excite 17," a young voice kept saying.)

Finally, with the help of an avuncular taxi driver ("Suivez, suivez"), we found the hotel. It was brand new and adjacent to a large emporium labelled "Zeller's." This would never do. I re-consulted the guide. "L'hotel Ottawa" sounded promising. Then followed a six-way consultation at the Zeller's information desk, where three clerks, a cashier and a department manager took turns drawing me maps on brown paper bags. Everybody waved goodbye.

When we found the hotel, it was kitty-corner from an open air market and vibrating softly as a band played somewhere in the basement. Speakers on the corners played music in the streets. We bought strawberry tarts at a bakery and the salesgirl took the opportunity to practise her English, solemnly counting out the change. "Ne derangez pas," said the sign for the chambermaid, "Angels at rest!!"

By the time we left the province, my daughter and I were brushing past the U.S. lady tourists in gas station washrooms, saying politely, "S'cusez." It was a mindless little game, but it proved that we knew on which side we belonged.

I do not believe that a majority of the people of Quebec will vote for separation. But if they should, I'll know whom they are really separating from. And I'd like it, very much, if all of us could separate together.



TRUDEAU . . . the man who would be king?

To Arms! The Linguists Are Coming!

By ROSS LAMBERTSON

A pity that the Leacock award for Canadian humor has not been given to J. V. Andrew for his book Bilingual Today, French Tomorrow. It may not be exactly a French farce, but it does place the author roughly in the same league as the author of Sunshine Sketches and My Financial Career.

As the title suggests, this book reveals a clear and present danger of political conquest and cultural assimilation. Like the mourners around Sir Wilfrid Laurier's grave, we are faced with a French-Canadian plot. The leader of this conspiracy is, of course, none other than that evil genius, Pierre Elliot Trudeau; his major tools the Official Language Act of 1969 and federal fiscal sabre-rattling to force the provincial governments into consent.

BTFT contains an expose (pardon my French) of this fictional skullduggery and suggestions for combatting it. the author, now retired from the Canadian armed forces, pretends to believe that the Official Languages Act is intended to make the federal public service, including the RCMP and the military, unilingual rather than bilingual. (This will come about because most French-Canadians can speak at least some English, while most English-Canadians cannot speak French.)

At the same time, scores of "agitators" have been sent throughout Canada by the federal government to press for the provision of provincial and municipal services in French. This will necessitate the hiring of French-Canadians to supply these services, who will in turn demand more services, which will in turn necessitate the hiring of . . . and so on, until complete unilingualism is a fait accompli.

As the author says, "If Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Pelletier have their way, there will be language schools in every city, town and village in Canada (except Quebec), until every last English-speaking Canadian has married a French-Canadian and has promised to bring the children up in the French language. Or am I now getting mixed up with religion? Maybe it's the same thing."

Evidence of this diabolical scheme is everywhere, we are told. For example, French-Canadians no longer regard the public service as a largely Anglophone preserve. Why, exclaims Mr. Andrew (perhaps with bilingual tongue tucked firmly in both cheeks), when Francophone bureaucrats in Ottawa now leave the offices for coffee-breaks they often "join more French-Canadians in the cafeteria, where they sit around in one or more groups speaking French.!"

Other examples of the dry-rot include: French on the top of government publications, instead of the bottom, where it belongs; federal prison guards made to wear shoulder-badges "bearing French insigia"; automobiles with French names, such as Grand Prix and Chevelle. And, to top it all off, "the bagpipes have been struck off the list of instruments which qualify a Canadian serviceman for the trade of musician."

But surely, the chuckling reader wishes to ask, would not English-Canadians call a stop to this if it went much further? Not so. Bilingualism in the RCMP and the armed forces is "a very necessary part of the planning for the imposition of a police state in Canada." We are faced with the threat of a coup d'etat! Already the government, steered by former cabinet minister Gerard Pelletier, has "imposed just as effective censorship on Canada as was exercised on Nazi Germany." When the "open hostility" between the "races" heats up even further as a result of bilingual policies, Mr. Trudeau will bring in a "police state" and "dictatorship."

Larry Zolf, another keen-eyed satirist of the Canadian political scene, once argued that Trudeau, in a dazzling dialectical pirouette, had changed his image from that of a philosopher-king to that of a Mackenzie King. Our Mr. Andrew, in a no less breath-taking tour de force, seems to be suggesting that Trudeau is really The Man Who Would Be King. But not, by any means, a constitutional monarch.

To foil this blackguard's "master plan," Mr. Andrew prescribes "a bit of real Canadian unity." More precisely, Canadians should vote Liberal in Joe Clark's constituency (so as to purge the party of his pre-bilingual leadership), but vote Conservative in the other constituencies (so as to purge the nation of Trudeau and his bilingualism). Then Quebec should be allowed to separate. Anglophones of the nation unite, you have nothing to lose but a province!

There is, however, one weakness to this book. We all know that the work of Charlie Farqhuarson, Fred C. Dobbs, and the Honourable Member from Kicking Horse Pass are supposed to be funny, but Mr. Andrew's reputation as a humorist is not yet universally acclaimed. Indeed, some people have taken his book seriously, and one overly serious and misguided student of politics has even taken out a classified advertisement in the Victoria papers exhorting concerned Canadians to read this piece of fiction.

Let me, therefore, point out some reasons why BTFT should not be taken seriously. First of all, it contains many statements that would be laughed out of class by a group of first-year political science students. For example, we are told that the BNA Act enshrines English as the language of Canada; that Trudeau could legally declare the city of Winnipeg a "bilingual district"; and that prior to bilingualization the federal public service was 25 per cent French-Canadian.

Other pieces of misinformation include the statement that we are about to replace all British trade and defence relations with a French connection, and a suggestion that Ottawa can control the provinces by means of its "control of the purse strings." When Mr. Andrew states that the federal bilingual program has frequently been bungled and has created much resentment, he is dead on, but these kernels of truth are almost lost in the chaff of his misconceptions.

Secondly, the book is an exercise in fantasy when it imputes evil motives to Trudeau's desire to continue and improve the Liberal bilingualism plans begun originally by Lester B. Pearson. It must be remembered that Trudeau has always felt that both Quebec nationalism (especially in the Duplessis era) and the culturally-homogenizing nationalism of English-Canada have unfortunagely made Quebec a sort of francophone ghetto. His bilingualism is not an attempt to swamp English-Canada with francophones, but rather an attempt to make francophones feel that Canada outside of Quebec is not a totally foreign country.

Since present demographical projections indicate that the French language is an endangered species outside of Quebec (and even in some areas within Quebec), his plans should be seen more as a holding action than as an assault. At bottom, it is largely a matter of identification and symbols. Is "mon pays" — "my country" — to be Canada or Quebec?

Thirdly, the willing suspension of disbelief is strained to the point of rupture when our author suggests that the unilingual policies of recent Quebec governments dovetail nicely with Mr. Trudeau's drive toward French-Canadian imperial control. Quebec's willingness to sacrifice the francophone minorities of other provinces in order to safeguard French-Canadian culture within its own borders is a theme which recurs constantly in Canadian history. Bourassa's drive toward Quebec unilingualism, and Levesque's tightening up of the screws, have nothing at all to do with pleasing Trudeau; they have everything to do with protecting French within Quebec, even at the expense of undermining the moral authority of Ottawa to encourage bilingualism in the other provinces.

Fourthly, and finally, it would have been better if Mr. Andrew had laid on his humor with a slightly heavier hand when he borrows from the television series, All in the Family. One of the curiosities of that series is that certain people mistook Archie Bunker for a sage instead of a fool; the same types may mistake the racism of FTBT as wisdom rather than wit.

More Poldark and Durrell's Animals

By ANTHONY JENKINS

Where writing is concerned, what separates the men from the boys, or the women from the girls, is the gift of knowing when to leave things out. Winston Graham's The Angry Tide, the seventh novel in the Poldark saga, is a fine example of that gift.

To begin with, he faces the problem of filling in the background information for those readers, if there still are any, who haven't met Ross Poldark before. He does this by casually dropping the more crucial events from the past into the conversation of the characters and spreading them throughout the book so that those who have read the other novels or seen the TV version won't be bogged down with a lengthy synopsis in the first chapter. In this way, the new novel is perfectly understandable on its own while its characters gain an added depth from the fact that they so often refer to happenings from a shared past.

The Angry Tide opens with a shadow across the lives of Ross and his wife: "The worm in the bud, the rot in the deeps of the heart." This is the legacy of Demelza's previous attraction for the now-dead Hugh Armitage. The events that follow take the Cornish tin-mining community at Nampara through the years 1798 and 1799 to the turn of the century.

Ross is now often away in London as a member of parliament and his absence does not make things easier between the Poldarks. But it does allow Graham to dot the edges of his tale with such names as Nelson, Napoleon, Wilberforce and Humphry Davy. Those details are never allowed to obtrude upon the main action; they simply plot the leading characters' course along the current of time, the angry tide of the book's title.

Everything that occurs in the book is in fact crucial to the final resolution of the hurt that now divides Ross from Demelza. Although the action is as colorful as always (a pit disaster, an early-morning duel, murder, rape and death), it all plays a role in shaping the central relationship.

The other major characters also have their place in the pattern. Ross' life-long enemy, George Warleggan, seems to have found a new peace with his wife, Elizabeth, though behind that marriage lurks a doubt about the paternity of their son, Valentine. And that fear drives George into renewed hatred of Ross and leads directly to the novel's surprising conclusion.

The Poldark series on TV tends to present the plot only, but in the novels the characters are more rounded, thanks to a continuing narrative voice which analyzes and assesses their inner motivations. They become so "real" that one is rarely aware of the carefully dovetailed patterns of the plot.

Yet TV has done wonders for the books. Reading this one, I could see Ross, Demelza and Co. just as they were on the screen, and the actors' personalities seem to have given Graham a new assurance in his dialogue.

DURRELL

BRAINE
. . . a boring thriller

When one stands back from the unfolding story one sees that its plots hinge on a few well-tried romantic elements. A hero who is fiery, independent, yet honest-for-all-that (Tom Jones); a heroine whose poor social background belies a loyal heart and a determined good sense (Jane Eyre); a villain who has all the social graces but is driven by an illogical passion (Dickens' Steerforth).

The various pairs find and lose each other and Ross frequently faces disaster, yet there is always the satisfaction of watching him pick up the pieces and press on to greater triumph.

The recipe, then, is conventional. What gives the novel its bite, as I've tried to indicate, is Graham's skill as a story-teller.

He weaves each strand of his story into the total picture, builds economically to each climax, cuts things off at the crucial moment and sends his readers scurrying into the next chapter and, one hopes, to lots more novels.

One cannot say the same of John Braine's Finger Of Fire. While the basic idea of a deadly laser beam is fairly exciting, his style is cluttered and ponderous. Years ago he hit the jackpot with Room At The Top, which struck the right note in the angry fifties. His excursions into the thriller are mediocre when they're not pretentious.

Partly this is because he describes everything to the point of tedium. The first short paragraph tells us that a panel is "slim white plastic, some three feet by four," that a room is "small windowless" and that a character has "an All-American face, a 1930 college boy face, a clean-cut wholesome face . . ." And he goes on like this piling up the adjectives. He is fascinated by brand-names and trendy fashions, even down to the make of someone's sunglasses.

I know that this can be part of the genre, but the only way for that style to work is to go full-out into escapist mayhem, as in the sexy glitter of the Bond books.

Braine (or his publisher) lays claim to a new realism. His protagonist, Xavier Flynn, first appeared in The Pious Agent, and his pretence to reality seems to derive from his admiration for his sister's quiet domesticity and from the fact that he mutters a swift prayer or two after he kills or beds someone.

Braine's major premise is that Britain is going to the financial and political dogs. You can't trust anyone; enemies of the state hold positions of power, and liberal do-gooders are making an even slicker job of selling the country out. Caught between the forces of FIST with their laser panel and a confused and treacherous bureaucracy, Xavier's only answer is kill or be killed.

If it could be taken seriously the novel offers the fascistic solution of raw force. Kick the liberals in the teeth before their meddling delivers us to evil enemies. As it was, the book simply bored me.

It was therefore a relief to turn to Gerald Durrell's Golden Bats and Pink Pigeons. This is an account of his travels to Mauritius in his continued attempts to save endangered species by taking back pairs to breed at his Wildlife Preservation Trust in Jersey and to organize a similar captive breeding program in the animals' native country.

As usual, Durrell provides a light and frothy read, but I get the feeling of a self-conscious effort to entertain. He has gained the reputation of describing animals and people in an unsentimental yet amusing way, so his books have become studded with set-pieces where he piles up words to exaggerate his picture.

I still enjoy his books and admire what he is trying to do for wildlife, but I find that he's best when his irrespressible curiousity overcomes that urge to be funny. This book contains a stunning chapter describing the coral reef around the island. Here Durrell is in an unfamiliar world and he helps us see it all through his own sense of wonder without striving for effect.

The book makes no attempt at a coherent narrative; each chapter is an independent "occasion". But it's worth reading for those moments when his unquenchable excitement overpowers the word-maker in him.

THE ANGRY TIDE, by Winston Graham. Collins. $9.95.
FINGER OF FIRE, by John Braine. Methuen. $10.95.

Science Fiction With a 'Religious' Theme

By JULIAN REID

As the popular success of the film Close Encounters of the Third Kind demonstrates, science fiction owes much of its appeal to its implicit religious dimension. Just as our forefathers sought enlightenment in the sagas of superhuman gods and goddesses, so we today turn to our own contemporary "myths of the space age" to find new revelations tailored to fit the needs of a technological era.

And in response, SF writers are being increasingly drawn to explicitly religious themes. One example is If the Stars Are Gods, a novel-of-sorts assembled by Gregory Benford and Gordon Eklund around their award-winning novelette of the same title.

The book version recounts five distinct episodes in the space-going pilgrimage of Bradley Reynolds, an astronomer-astronaut who has constituted himself "a sort of one-man proselytizing force for the long-neglected religion of Man In Space." And the basic posture is one tacitly underlying a great deal of SF, past and present — that the quest for alien intelligence is a fundamentally religious one, motivated by a deep-seated hunger for cosmic communion on the part of a species until now condemned to an earth-bound purgatory of ingrown solitude amid an overwhelmingly vast universe.

Each episode is a variation on this common theme, focussing on the various mundane forces which interfere with Reynolds' single-minded pursuit of his cosmic epiphany. Unfortunately, while the two longest sections are very good stories in their own right, the book as a whole is regrettably less than the sum of its part. The individual episodes fail to meld together properly into a coherent unity, while far too much weight is placed on a hurried and rather pretentious epilogue.

A very different, and on its own terms far more successful, treatment of religion is offered in Michael Bishop's A Little Knowledge. This is the latest in an ongoing series set in the Atlanta, Georgia of the 21st century — a domed city firmly under the theocratic thumb of "Ortho-Urbanism," a neo-fundamentalist political-religious movement.

The plot centres around the troubles the Ortho-Urban establishment has in coming to terms with the unexpected conversion of a grotesquely inhuman visitor from outer space. Despite occasional lapses into self-consciously literary mannerisms, Bishop's writing is delightfully witty, abounding with subtle ironies and neatly humorous touches.

Standing poles apart from the Bishop novel is The Dark Design, the third volume in Philip Jose Farmer's extremely popular "Riverworld" series.

The first and best book in this series, To Your Scattered Bodies Go, appeared in 1971. Through the eyes of the great Victorian explorer, Sir Richard Francis Burton, it introduced Farmer's brilliantly compelling premise — that on the banks of a 10-million-mile-long river on an alien planet, everyone who ever lived on Earth has been mysteriously resurrected by a shadowy group of technologically super-powerful strangers, the "Ethicals." The same year brought a second volume, The Fabulous Riverboat, in which Sam Clemens (better known as Mark Twain) struggled to build a giant paddlewheeler which could carry him, like Burton before him, to the river's source and the legendary Dark Tower where the Ethicals and the secret of their motivations might be found.

The third volume, readers were promised, would round off the series, and there the secret of the Ethicals would finally be revealed. But in the event, after six years of waiting, The Dark Design proves doubly disappointing.

For one thing, although longer than its two predecessors put together, it ends in midstream — the climactic revelations, it turns out, have been reserved for yet another volume, The Magic Labyrinth. This one might not mind so much, if it weren't so patently evident that Farmer has lost control over his material.

The Dark Design is a diffuse, wordy, and self-indulgent book — an embarrassingly pretentious betrayal of what remains a magnificent concept. Riverworld buffs will have to bear with it, since almost despite itself the narrative does further the progress towards the series' promised climax. But I, for one, feel let down.

For compensation, one could do worse than turn to Earthwind, the second novel by a very promising new British SF writer, Robert Holdstock. Here, too, things fall apart at the end, but for most of its length Earthwind is a remarkable achievement, a consistently exciting blend of other-worldly adventure with searching metaphysical speculation.

Superficially, this is the story of Elspeth Mueller, a black amazon who voluntarily strands herself on a planet where the lost descendants of a human colony have unaccountably re-created the 7,000-year-old culture of Stone Age Ireland. But it is also a serious consideration of the complex relationship between the human will, with its capacity for free choice, and the "cosmic tides" of transhuman destiny that sweep the universe.

What makes Holdstock's treatment of this material particularly satisfying is the fact that he has the courage to approach his story on its own terms, rather than falling into the trap of self-conscious pretentiousness in which so many modern myth-makers become snared. For most of its length, as a result, Earthwind is not just a story about a pilgrimage, but an imaginative pilgrimage in its own right.

And that is as it should be — for it is precisely this distinctive capacity to enable the sophisticated modern reader to participate vicariously in symbolic pilgrimages that accords SF its special status as one of the pre-eminent vehicles of religious exploration in the bright new Age of Space.

History of the Congo River
A saga of adventure, courage, evil

In 1964 Peter Forbath, a much-travelled American foreign correspondent, was in the Congo covering the ghastly Simba uprising which followed liberation from Belgian rule. At Stanleyville he saw the River Congo for the first time and began to understand why the West had been fascinated by the Congo for centuries.

He sought a book that would tell him of the river's history and found that none existed. He decided to write such a book and now, 14 years later, we have The River Congo, in which Forbath describes the discovery, exploration and exploitation of the world's most dramatic river.

Before going to the Congo Forbath had read Alan Moorehead's twin classics, The White Nile and The Blue Nile, so he must have known that his book would overlap those of Moorehead's because the search for the source of the Nile led to the discovery of the Congo and some of the characters involved were concerned with both rivers.

Early slave trade

However, centuries before the Congo was explored and exploited by explorers and traders entering Africa from the west, the Portuguese had discovered its Atlantic estuary and had established a profitable trade in slaves and ivory, so the story rightly begins at the river's estuary, at the boundary between present-day Zaire and Angola.

In fact, Forbath doesn't really come to grips with the river until page 142, having been carried away by the events that led to the accidental discovery of the Congo. This is fortuitous because this is by far the most interesting portion of the book.

We begin therefore in the 12th century with the failure of the first two Christian crusades to oust Moslems from the Holy Land. The Pope and the Christian rulers of Europe badly needed some help and they hoped that this would come from Prester John, the legendary Christian king who was believed to live in Africa and possess untold riches and a vast army.

The fruitless quest for the non-existent Prester John eventuallay led to the exploration of the western coast of Africa and at the height of that exploratory period, in 1482 to be exact, a Portuguese naval captain named Diogo Cao discovered the estuary to a great river, a possible route to the interior — and so to Prester John.

Cao traded trinkets for ivory and eventually made contact with the Mani-Kongo, king of Bukongo, who turned out to be an enlightened monarch who over the years gladly allied himself to the Portuguese, converted to Catholicism and welcomed priests and all the other doubtful benefits of civilization.

Soon, the traders arrived and religion, Prester John and the naive Mani-Kongo were forgotten in the mad scramble for ivory and, later, the much more profitable slaves. As time went on every maritime nation of Europe muscled in on the filthy trade in an effort to supply the insatiable demand for slave labor in the West Indies and America.

When in due course the fiendish cruelties practised by the slave-traders began to stir consciences in England an attempt was made by the British navy to negotiate the 32 cataracts on the Congo in a bid to reach the interior. The object, as advertised, was to stop slaving and colonize the country. The real objective, as usual, was to find and exploit raw materials and create a market for imported manufactured goods. The cataracts proved impassable, the navy withdrew, and slaving continued.

Switch to other side

This early history of the Congo, which spans some seven centuries and occupies one half of Forbath's book, is enthralling. The author has done a formidable amount of research and has presented his findings with sensitivity and has managed, not without difficulty I imagine, to retain the impartiality requied of a journalist-historian.

At this point — and we are now in the 19th century — Forbath switches his attention to the other side of Africa where Arab slavers operated ruthlessly and a succession of British explorers, including Baker, Burton, Speke, Grant and, of course, David Livingstone, ventured into the interior in search of the source of the Nile.

It was, you'll recall, Henry Morton Stanley, the intrepid journalist, who found the lost Livingstone and who, following Livingstone's death, turned explorer and after confirming lake Victoria as the source of the White Nile decided to carry out Livingstone's intention to explore the Lualaba River.

Hostile cannibals

His epic journey, which included a double crossing of the Equator through rain forests never before seen by a white man, and frequent battles with hostile cannibalistic tribes, led him the full length of the mighty Congo River, and back again, and established him as the greatest African explorer of them all.

Before reading the latter half of Forbath's book I re-read Moorehead's Nile classics, and I would advise everyone to do this. After all, these are the prototypes of what this sort of book should be and not only are they magnificent examples of the work of this master of the art of reliving, but they are the essential preliminary reading to a full understanding of the horrors that befell the Congo prior to and after independence.

After re-reading Moorehead I had to read about 100 pages of Forbath's book which covered some of the same ground. To compete with Moorehead's distinguished mind and creative imagination, to say nothing of his lucid prose, is a devilishly hard task for any author so I cannot pay a higher tribute to Forbath than to say that he never lost my attention for a moment.

For the final hundred pages Forbath again leaves Moorehead territory to concentrate on the Congo. Here we see how the Arab slavers exploited the river route Stanley had pioneered and how, when slaving was finally abolished, Belgium's infamous King Leopold II tricked the European powers into giving him the entire Congo as his personal kingdom

Leopold never set foot in the Congo, but he exploited its natural resources — chiefly rubber and copper — in such a way that he gained a personal fortune of some $100 million. This heartless swine, who was a sort of absentee Idi Amin, appointed white agents, who were paid on a commission basis, and sanctioned the formation of a private army composed of feared cannibal tribesmen who were encouaged to mutilate, kill, and eat natives who could not produce their daily quotas of raw materials.

Before the Congo was taken from him and given to the Belgian government in 1907, Leopold was personally responsible for some ten million deaths and for unspeakable atrocities.

Leopold died comfortably in his bed. The Belgian government stopped the killings but continued the exploitation, and when the colonial powers shed their African possessions during the wind of change after the Second World War, Belgium shed the Congo with indecent haste, leaving behind not a single black professional man or trained bureaucrat and no soldier above the rank of sergeant, so making the horrendous civil war of the 1960s inevitable.

The River Congo is liquid history, a fantastic seamless story of adventure, courage and unmitigated evil and Peter Forbath has told it well.

Origin of 'Zaire'

The Belgian Congo is, of course, no longer called that. In common with other newly-independent African states its rulers sought a new name for the country and its great river, one that would erase from memory all connections with white men.

With fine irony they chose, not an African word or indeed any other kind of real word, but a word coined by the Portuguese who was indirectly responsible for all their woes. The Bakongo called their river nzere, meaning the river that swallows all rivers, but our old friend Diogo Cao couldn't pronounce it; the best he could manage was Zaire!

Murder Yarn Strong Stuff But It's Gripping

By FRED BARNES

True Confessions is a remarkable study of two Irish-Catholic brothers, with Los Angeles as the setting — a smashing first novel by John Gregory Dunne, known previously for three excellent non-fiction works and collaboration with his wife, novelist Joan Didion, on screen plays.

Dunne's prose seems to be an amalgam of the toughness of a Raymond Chandler, the dialogue of a Damon Runyon, and the outrageous imagery of a Thorne Smith. Crudity shines through every page; potential readers should take warning, but somehow it all seems in context.

Tom Spellacy is an L.A. detective-inspector, living in a semi-world of favors and payoffs. These days he is inclined to be honest, having narrowly missed being caught as a bagman between a mobster named Jack Amsterdam who controlled hundreds of prostitutes, and the vice squad. Tom's link with Amsterdam was his former mistress, Brenda, a madam.

Tom can't help thinking that he might have been saved from disgrace, or even prison, by the influence of his brother, Monsignor Desmond Spellacy, chancellor of the Catholic diocese. But he's afraid to ask, for fear it may be true. Des is brilliant, hard, a Machiavellian administrator for the diocese and Cardinal Danaher, who hears everything and forgets nothing.

The two brothers have a love-hate relationship typical of many brothers. In truth, they are very much alike, and come to realize this as the book rolls to its conclusion.

The book revolves around the investigation of an unusual murder that dominates the front pages for weeks on end, and inevitably involves every major and minor character in the novel. The murder victim, Lois Fazenda, is a prostitute who has been killed, mutilated, cut in half, and dumped in the shadow of the Los Angeles Coliseum.

Tom and his partner, Frank Crotty, who is little interested in police work but consumed by putting together deals to buy motels with partners, start to work on the crime.

During his investigation, Tom finds that his brother and Jack Amsterdam — who is improving his current image by building cathedrals — had innocently picked up the murdered girl coming back from the racetrack one day, and therefore knew her. Des can't recall the incident until he remembers the girl telling him she was a Christian Scientist, but said, "Who?" when he asked her about Mary Baker Eddy.

The detective eventually solves the murder through some extremely dogged police work, but forgets to tell anyone when he finds that the murderer was killed in an automobile accident even before the grisly corpse was discovered. His scheming nature can't allow him to pass up the opportunity to pin the rap on Amsterdam. And Amsterdam, in turn, has the grace to die before coming to trial.

Unfortunately for Des, his link with Lois becomes public, and there is scandal about Amsterdam's building contracts with the diocese. The cardinal's recommendation that his chancellor be appointed a bishop — and be considered as a future cardinal — is rudely withdrawn, and Des must settle for a poor parish the rest of his days.

Tom eventually retires, and the brothers find they can adjust to life and share a feeling of mutual respect and fondness that they never had before.

True Confessions— an odd but apt title — is never going to be a favorite of police officials or the Catholic church. And it will offend many readers.

But if you like raw, taut, compelling prose, don't miss it.

TRUE CONFESSIONS, by John Gregary Dunne. Clarke Irwin. $10.95.

FLESH AND BLOOD, by Pete Hamill. Random House. $10.25.

Cast in the same rude mold is Flesh and Blood, a creditable third novel by Pete Hamill, a self-educated former newspaperman. Lacking the depth and superb characterization of True Confessions, it is still a powerful look at a young Irishman, Bobby Fallon, who decides in prison to become a prizefighter and makes it to the point of becoming the leading white heavyweight of his day, and a contender for the crown.

Although he can't get his weight above the low 180s, Fallon is a vicious punching machine who often fights in a white haze of rage that leaves him unaware of whether he has won or lost.

Deserted by his father at a young age, Fallon eventually winds up in an incestuous relationship with his attractive Irish-Indian mother, then remeets his father.

Crude, and rather shallow in many respects, Flesh and Blood is still a hard book to put down.

SEE AND FEEL THE LUXURIOUS BUILT-IN COMFORT IN SOFA SLEEPER UNITS BY

BEDLINE

Buoyant level sleeping surface supports the mattress for firm, restful sleep!

Full length mattress opens out ready for use. No tugging or pulling.

Rounded front tube eliminates sharp corners, for safety and appearance.

Superb soft styling. The bed unit rises over the upholstered front panel. Your sofa sleeper is styled like any fine stationary sofa.

Miracle "open-close" mechanism is fully automatic. No latches, catches, or pins.

STILL MORE LUXURY AND COMFORT IN YOUR BEDLINE UNIT:

Comfortable seating • Bed opens to regular bed height • Deluxe inner-spring or foam mattress • Casters on center legs of the unit for "tilt and clean" • Counterbalanced for effortless opening and closing.
